Eagleton, Lehr and Burlison win decisively

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Missourians gave a ringing endorsement to Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton Tuesday and the senator's 243,000-victory margin seemed to have a coattail effect that nudged Republican John Ashcroft out of the state auditor's office in favor of Democrat George Lehr.

Lehr won by 73,000 with 98 per cent of the vote counted.

The Republicans had a battle but held on to the 7th District seat in southwest Missouri as Republican incumbent Gene Taylor of Sarcoxie beat Richard L. Franks, 31, former Greene County magistrate.

The Republicans lost three state senators, giving the Democrats a 24-10 margin for the upcoming legislative session, if Democrat Bob Bauer maintained his 403-vote lead over Republican Joseph Frappier in St. Louis County.

The nine Democratic incumbents in the U.S. House easily won re-election, and Missourians gave overwhelming endorsement to a campaign-financing measure requiring candidates to make public each contribution of $25 or more if they spend $500 or more on an election. The law takes effect Jan. 1.

Also approved by wide majorities were two constitutional amendments. One would make the state constitution comply with federal law on the 18-year-old vote and 30-day residency requirement for voting.

The other would allow counties, plus cities of 400,000 or more persons, to issue general obligation bonds for industrial development, upon a two-thirds voter approval. Smaller cities now have the authority. The second part of the amendment allows any incorporated city to issue revenue bonds upon a simple majority vote — rather than four-sevenths — to finance airports, municipally owned utilities or industrial plants.

The campaign-financing law passed, 700,680 to 202,925, with 93 per cent of the vote counted.

The 18-year-old vote measure passed 717,922 to 206,511 and the bond measure was approved 544,165 to 292,791 with 94 per cent of the vote in.

In the state senate races, Democrat Marvin Dinger of Ironton defeated Republican Ralph Smith of Union to grab the seat left vacated by Republican Don Owens' retirement. In Kansas City, Democrat Harry Wiggins ousted Republican Lem T. Jones, and Democrat Hardin Cox of Rock Port dumped Republican Sen. William Esely of Bethany.

Eagleton, who appealed for a big victory to "send President Ford a message" that people don't like the administration's economic policies, beat Republican Thomas Curtis, a former 18-year congressman, cut into two areas where Curtis was expected to win.

In St. Louis County, Eagleton won by 42,000 votes. In Greene County, Eagleton outpolled Curtis by 4,000.

With 98 per cent of the vote in, Eagleton totaled 706,955 votes to 463,290 for Curtis. Independent Cliff Talmage of Ballwin received 12,342 votes in the U.S. Senate race.

Lehr acknowledged that Eagleton's large margin helped him. He took St. Louis City 83,083 to 39,383, and took Jackson County, 80,675 to 42,606. In Greene County, Ashcroft won 27,950 to 14,812 with six precincts unreported.

In St. Louis County, Ashcroft hoped for 60 per cent of the vote but got 53 per cent, 142,132 to Lehr's 126,492.

With 98 per cent of the total state vote tallied, Lehr showed 612,450 to Ashcroft's 539,630.

Taylor, who won handily in 1972, got a scare from Franks, who won in Greene County, 24,626 to 18,382 with 91 of 101 precincts reporting. Taylor won in 16 other counties of the district and Franks narrowly took Webster County.

With 98 per cent of the total vote counted, Taylor showed 74,954 to Franks' 66,316.

In the 1st Congressional District, of St. Louis, Democrat William Clay was returned for his fourth term, turning back Republican Arthur O.Martin, a real estate broker.

Clay polled 61,067 to Martin's 28,530.

In the 2nd District of St. Louis County and City, James Symington was elected to his fourth term over Republican Howard C. Ohlendorf.

Symington totaled 85,982 to Ohlendorf's 55,147.

Rep. Leonor Sullivan won her 12th term, receiving 94,045 to 31,250 for Republican Jo Ann P. Raisch, wife of State Rep. William Raisch of Affton, who was re-elected, and 1,816 for Independent Marie S. Nowak.

Rep. Bill Burlison of Cape Girardeau easily beat Republican Truman Farrow of Jackson, 72-522 to 26,954 with 96 per cent of the vote in, to his fourth two-year term in the 10th District of southeast Missouri.

"I hope that my second term in the Senate will fulfill their (the voters) expectations," Eagleton said in a victory statement. "The loud message of this election nationwide was the beleaguered nature of our economy. We now have the responsibility of beginning to work on solutions to our economic ills—cutting the budget, reducing interest rates and enacting meaningful tax reform."

Ark-Mo receives 12 bids

BLYTHEVILLE Ark.-- Arkansas- Missouri Power Co. has received 12 bids from parties interested in purchasing its subsidiary, Associated Natural Gas.

Ark- Mo was ordered to sell the gas company by the Securities and Exchange Commission following the purchase of Ark- Mo in 1971 by Middle- South Utilities.

Bids submitted by the Monday deadline were from Arkansas- Louisiana Gas Co. of Shreveport, La.; Tennessee Natural Gas Lines, Inc. of Nashville, Tenn; Osage Natural Gas Co. of Salem, Ill.; Iowa Southern Utilities Co., of Centerville, Iowa; Keokuk Gas Service Co of Keokuk, Iowa; Financial Planning Associates of Danbury, Conn., and from the Commission for Municipal Pooling Services, a consortium composed of the cities of Sikeston Chaffee, Oran, Benton, Miner, Morehouse, Bertrand, Charleston, East Prairie, Matthews, New Madrid, Howardsville, Marston, Kennett, Clarkton, Holcomb, Gideon, and Malden.

In addition, individual bids were submitted by Sikeston, Kennett, Campbell, Chaffee and Malden for the purchase of facilities in the communities.

Ark- Mo President Frank G. Smith, said it will take a considerable amount of time for the firm to study and evaluate the bids. No announcements on the sale will be made until after all bids are studied, he said.

Matthews approves 2 bonds

MATTHEWS - City voters in a special election Tuesday gave overwhelming support to two bond issue proposals totaling $250,000 for funds to construct a city sewage system. The election was scheduled to coincide with the general elections.

The first proposal called for the issuance of $100,000 in general obligation bonds which would be repaid by taxes levied against real estate and personal property. The vote in precinct 1 was 50 yes, 8 no. In precinct 2 the vote was 97 yes, 9 no, winning approval by a total of 147 to 17.

Proposition two, which called for the issuance of $150,000 in revenue bonds and to be repaid with revenue from operation of the sewage system, was passed by a total vote of 145 to 10. Break down by precinct was: precinct 1 -- 48 yes, 4 no; and precinct 2 -- 93 yes and 6 no.

Construction is expected to begin sometime next year, and will include 24,000 feet of eight-inch clay pipe, 300 service lines, three lift stations, and a four-celled lagoon.

There will be a fixed charge of $3.75 per month for the service, but, Mayor A. W. Wagley said there will be no tax increase and the lines will be hooked directly to the house.

Sikeston voters approve bond issue

Sikeston voters gave overwhelming approval Tuesday to a $600,000 bond issue that will finance a water treatment plant capable of doubling the city's water supply.

Democrats running for state and federal office carried seven of the city's nine precincts. The exceptions were in Big Prairie Precinct Four, where State Auditor John Ashcroft edged Democratic challenger George Lehr, 39-36, and Allen Precinct, where Republican Tomas Curtis outpolled Democratic incumbent Sen. Thomas Eagleton, 251-207.

The water treatment plant was approved 1,807-524. City officials say construction is expected to begin as soon as the bonds can be sold.

The plant, tentatively scheduled to begin operation in late 1975 or early 1976, will be located near the city steam plant on Compress Road.

Man dies of injuries from crash

A Millersville man died early Tuesday of injuries suffered in a two-car accident on Monday, and four persons received minor injuries in two traffic accidents Tuesday and early today, the highway patrol announced today.

The death of Jerry J. Wright, 45, at 9 a.m. Tuesday in Southeast Missouri Hospital at Cape Girardeau raised this year's death toll on Southeast Missouri roads to 94, compared to 124 for the same period in 1973.

The accident in which Wright was fatally injured occurred at 9:10 p.m. Monday .2 mile north of Millersville on Route E in Cape Girardeau County. Three other persons were seriously injured and a fourth received minor injuries in the accident.

The accident occurred when a southbound car driven by Dennis M. Kraft, 16, of Jackson rounded a curve at a high rate of speed on the wrong side of the road and collided, head on with a northbound pickup truck driven by Kenneth C. Wright, 46, of Millersville.Wright's body was taken to McCombs Funeral Home in Jackson.

Two Bernie residents received minor injuries in a two-car accident at 2:35 a.m. today on Interstate 55 one and a half miles south of Howardville.

The accident occurred when a northbound tractor-trailer truck driven by Edd Arnold, 60, of Clinton, Miss., came up behind and struck the back of a northbound pickup driven by Abram Huffman, 22, of Bernie.

Huffman and a passenger, Betty Huffman, 39, of Bernie, were injured and taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston.

Two Qulin residents received minor injuries in a two-car accident at 6:40 p.m. Tuesday on Route N three miles west of Qulin.

The accident occurred when an eastbound car driven by Jesse Dale Mims, 49, of Qulin rounded a curve across the center line and struck a westbound car driven by Vicky Lynn Yeley, 18, of Qulin.

Miss Yeley and a passenger, Loris Yeley, 41, of Qulin, were injured but were not hospitalized.

Zoning issue passes in Scott County

BENTON - Voting in Scott County Tuesday was heavier than anticipated by county election officials, as county voters elected an unopposed slate of Democratic county officers, heavily supported district and statewide Democratic candidates and expressed their approval of a county planning and zoning program, two constitutional amendments and a campaign financing proposition.

Incumbent U.S. Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton received 4,035 votes to easily outdistance Republican opponent Tom Curtis, who polled 1,958 votes in the county. Nonpartisan candidate C. E. "Cliff" Talmage received only 22 votes for the Senate seat.

Incumbent State Auditor John Ashcroft, who was defeated by Democrat George W. Lehr in the statewide race, also lost in Scott County. Lehr received 4,114 votes and Ashcroft polled 2,263.

Tenth District Congressman Bill D. Burlison, who defeated his Republican opponent, Republican Truman Farrow, collected 4,720 votes to 1,264 for Farrow in Scott County;

Marvin Proffer of Jackson, who was re-elected state representative for the 155th District, which covers the northern portion of Scott County and parts of Cape Girardeau and Bollinger counties, led his Republican challenger Vernon Devault by a 632-97 margin in the Scott County portion of the district.

The proposed planning and zoning program passed by an 825-vote margin, with 2,966 votes cast in favor of the issue to 2,142 against.

The purpose of the planning and zoning proposal is to develop a comprehensive plan to conserve and protect property and building values, to secure the most economical use of the land and to facilitate adequate provisions for public improvements of unincorporated portions of the county.

Fern Arnold of Scott City received 3,034 votes and Charles L. Blanton III of Sikeston collected 3,508, as unopposed candidates for the Scott County Health Center board of trustees.

Constitutional Amendment No. 1 was favored by 4,108 and opposed by 1,068 county voters to permit 18-year-old registered voters to vote in all elections.

Amendment No. 2, to authorize indebtedness by municipalities and counties for industrial development, received 3,114 votes in favor

Burglars take $307 worth of merchandise

Thieves took $307 worth of personal property from an apartment occupied by Gussie Brown, 1509 W. North St., according to police.

The burglary occurred between 8 o'clock and 11:50 Tuesday night.

Taken were a stereo component system valued at $100, 10 dinner rings valued at $75, an empty coin bank worth $7.50 and 75 to 100 record albums worth $125.

Police said the burglars apparently forced open the lock on the front door.

Miner votes to remain village

Miner voters rejected by a 92-28 margin a proposal to change Miner from a village to a fourth class city.

The proposition had been placed on the ballot after the town board received a petition calling for the election signed by 250 people.

Mayor L. F. Wheeler said he was not surprised by the outcome, but said he thought the voting would be a little closer.

One of the reasons for changing to a fourth class city, Wheeler said, was to increase Miner's bonding power to finance a sewer system.

For Miner to get a sewer system with the bonding power of a village "would be a miracle," Wheeler said.

GEORGE MEANY
(Part I)

The Soviet Union has been called the "workers' paradise" by those who don't know any better. But George Meany, president of the AFL-CIO, knows better.

The man who represents more workers than any other American testified recently on the possibility of the U.S. doing more business with the Soviet Union. "The labor movement has thought about it," said Meany, "and we don't want any part of it. We're not interested in seeing cheap goods made by Soviet slave labor pour into this country. We're not interested in seeing American workers displaced by slave labor."

Meany's testimony came before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in a discussion of detente. He had sharp words for American businessmen and others whose sense of humanity has been blurred by a quest for profit or the political mirage of detente.

"To American big business, it (detente) means beautiful visions of new profits and expanded markets — the old quest for the Almighty Dollar now transplanted to the land of the commissars," says Meany. "Now, I have nothing against a man making an honest buck. But what's happening here is that some American businessmen are developing a vested interest in downplaying the repressive and inhuman character of the Soviet regime — or in selling the idea that this has nothing to do with us."

Pressure is mounting to grant the USSR "most favored nation" trading status, thus allowing them to purchase particular U.S. goods as easily and cheaply as any other nation can purchase them. Meany maintains, however, that "there are no economic benefits for the United States in this deal. All the economic benefits flow to the Soviet Union. The most we can hope for are political benefits — but these are very, very doubtful."

"What I see," adds Meany, "is a one-way street in whicn the Soviet Union maintains all of its basic political objectives which are fundamentally antagonistic to the West, while it acquires from the West the technology it needs to help overcome the disastrous economic consequences of totalitarian planning."

Meany notes that, through the Export-Import Bank, U.S. taxpayers have loaned the USSR nearly $469 million in the past year and one-half — most of it at 6 per cent interest. "What American worker can get a loan at 6 or 7 percent? You can't get a mortgage for under 10 unless you're lucky. This isn't trade. This is an economic aid program! It's a welfare program!"

Meany emphasizes that a genuine detente, built on mutual concessions and cooperation for peace, would be welcomed by American labor and Americans as a whole.

"But that is not what we have today," he concludes. "We are not building lasting structure of peace. We are building castles of sand on the watery foundations of petty greed, wishful thinking, irresponsibility, self-indulgence, and plain old ignorance."

We do not always agree with Mr. Meany. But on the subject of detente, we believe he is absolutely right.

LIFESAVING NUISANCE

Those child-proof caps on medicine bottles and other dangerous products found around the house are a pain in the neck, frequently resisting the best efforts of adults to open them, too.

But they're doing the job they were designed to do: Saving young lives.

In the first full year that the tops were used on aspirin bottles, child poisonings from aspirin alone dropped nearly 20 per cent reports George Maisel, director of the Poison Prevention Packaging Division of the Consumer Product Safety Commission in Washington, D.C.

Since then, nine other household products have come under the Poison Prevention Act — things like furniture polish, oven cleaners and lighter fluid — bringing the total to about 65 per cent of all the products involved in child poisonings. Maisel expects the number of poisonings to drop even more when those such as pesticides and paint solvents are included under the act.

NO PATRIOTS
AS IN 1776

As of last week 48 cities, including small towns in Missouri, have been accepted for Bi-Centennial Celebration. Shelbina is not one of them. Maybe we don't have any civic organizations which want to sponsor, develop and put on what possibly will be the biggest affair ever held in Shelbina. Two hundred years ago right now, the patriots of our country were getting near to the day when the Declaration of Independence would be signed, and when George Washington would lead those heroes of the Revolution to victory. Do we have any people today who love their country like those 18th century Americans did?

REMEMBERING WORLD WAR I

We are glad to learn the Shelbina Bank will observe Veterans' Day by closing on November 11, instead of the Congressional holiday date of October 28. The president of the Shelbina Bank, a veteran of World War I when the armistice was signed at the 11th hour of the 11th day of the 11th month, in 1918. Julius Buckman was in a German hospital where he was recovering from the amputation of a leg because of wounds suffered on the battlefield. He has strong memories of that historical date, just as do all veterans of the first World War. We were having our advanced flying at Post Field, Fort Sill, Okla. Although we could send messages by wireless from a plane, there was no regular broadcasts, so the newspapers got their news by wire. We lived with our wife off the post in Lawton, and when the newspaper came out with the news fighting had ceased, we hurried out to the field with the word. Our fellow fliers were engaged in a poker game when we reached them, and there was no excitement, the most common expressing being, "Oh Hell." We wouldn't reach combat and had been taught we were so good it would be a cinch to meet any of the German elite.

Rational Transportation System

How long, we wonder, are people of Michigan going to permit the vested interests to dictate their own narrow vision of what would be best for this state in its transportation policy?

The answer is plainly not forever. The evidence is piling up that freeways alone cannot meet the transportation needs of cities, that mass transit is a necessary supplement to, not a threat to, the private automobile, and that our spending on transportation has been terribly out of balance. As these factors become more apparent, the citizens are likely to demand a more rational transportation system.

The freeways simply cannot provide the rush hour capacity, they necessitate too many parking places at the end of the commuting line and they provide a threat to clean air, safety and to the neighborhoods through which they must be routed.

Moreover, the idea that the gas tax is today the sole source of highway funding is a myth. Local governments are big spenders for road construction and maintenance, and a significant percentage of their spending for streets comes out of their own general funds. And that doesn't take funds for freeway and parking lot space.

It is simply not true that the cities are lurking around, trying to divert funds that ought to go to highways. They simply ask a small share of the proposed increas increase in the gasoline tax to meet the transportation needs of their citizens. Since more than half of the gas tax revenues in the nation are generated in urban areas, they are notraiding something that belongs to someone else.

Gov. Milliken's transportation program is not a radical departure. It would increase the gas tax by two cents a gallon, and most of that increase would go for road building. Only a half-cent of the money-and that subject to heavy qualifications-would go for public transit.

BETTER THAN FIRST THANKSGIVING

Since the church is cooperating in the natural gas shortage by cutting back its temperature, those attending the Community Thanksgiving service at the First Baptist Church in Paris Wednesday evening of last week found the room cooler than usual, with women keeping on their cloaks.

It was more comfortable at that than it was for the Pilgrims long ago on that first Thanksgiving, where the only heat came from an open fireplace, and lighting was by the dim flare of candles and torches, and few of them at that. Paris people at least had a full blaze of electric lights, and a temperature that was even throughout the meeting room-not burning on one side and freezing on the other.

Looking back those 35 years Paris people were thankful that they are living in the present instead of the early days of this nation

Naming Names

In many news situations more will be printed than may have been customary in the recent past because the public is requiring greater incisiveness in what it reads and hears.

The self-cleaning efforts within the democratic system of freedon demand an informed public that is insisting on being better informed. Burdened with a multiplicity of laws beyond the capacity of police to enforce, the public is calling upon governmental agencies to make known the violators of regulations, orders, administrative rulings, on the theory that certain results can be achieved through the use of publicity.

New York City has begun to announce the names of restaurants and markets which violate the health codes. The New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets is naming those who fail to meet the state requirements as to marketing and meat inspection, milk sanitation and also is listing the establishments from which bad meat and foods have been seized.

Sanitation requirements are drafted on behalf of consumers and the whole society. Many consumers and much of society determine their purchasing habits after learning who breaks the standards.

In periods of mistrust the truth has a way of getting out. This becomes the best guidance that citizens can possess, and they are increasingly insistent upon getting the names and places. The public is not powerless when it learns the truth. The same public today is relying upon their brand of power in asking that facts be printed so they can form their own opinions as to what is right and wrong and make their own decision accordingly.

By 1975, nine years ahead of Orwellian projections, every West German citizen may be officially known to his government by a 12-digit number. The government explains that its voluminous registration system is being computerized, with the hope of eliminating the confusion that arises in a country where many people have the same surname (there are 300,000 Mullers alone in West Germany). Israel, Norway, Sweden and Denmark already have such systems, and others, including Japan, are preparing to follow suit.-Time

An Edinburgh businessman, Stephen Horchler, has invented a golf ball that cannot be lost. It contains a tiny radio transmitter that sends out a distress signal and has, says Horchler, the same playing characteristics as any good ball. On the first tee youput your Horchler ball next to a tranistor radio and tune in until you get a high-pitched signal. Then you move the ball three feet away from the radio and tune in carefully until you get a stronger signal. Switch off and play. When the ball goes into the rough, turn on the radio and walk in the ball's direction. Listen and search in the area where the bleeps from the ball are loudest.-Sports Illustrated

Yesterday was the anniversary of Pearl Harbor Day. Well do we we remember that day. We had been to Paris and not turned on our radio, learning first about it when we drove up in front of our office and the late Dr. R.L. Caldwell, a close personal friend, told us of Japan's attack. We said to him, "You know what that means, your boy and both of mine will have to go." It so happens that in June 1944 we got terrible telegran and in the following September, Dr. Caldwell staggered into our office holding out a similar message. Such a coincidence that both of us lost a son. Our other son brought us pride with his service in the Navy. We are not sure flags should floy on Pearl Harbor Day, for Franklin D. Roosevelt declared, This Day Shall Live in Infamy." But we do hope Cngress will not set aside a Monday for observance of the day as it has so many other historic days.-Shelbina Democrat

I asked him why he thought that, and got this reply: "Because I'm missing 25 cents from my piggy bank."

There aren't rules for success that work unless you do.

In the good old days before the Supreme Court ruled there must be "one man and one vote," Shelby County had one representative. Although our population has gone down to where we are now one of Missouri's smallest counties, we have three representatives in the legislature. And how many of you know any of of them personally? In the good old days, you knew your representative, and he wanted you vote badly enought to come and see you every two years. Il know who all three are, much less know them personally. They are Ozzie Osbourn of Monroe City, Harold L. Volkmer of Hannibal and none of them live in Shelby County. And what chance would we have for support if some special Shelby County mattercame up in the Counties? Interestingly, we note that our three representatives come from counties which start with the same letter. Shelbina Democrat

IGNORANCE

A survey of the editors of 21 major magazines with a combined circulation of over 50 million reveals an amazing lack of understanding of the U.S. timber industry, timber management and the forest resources of the nation. By the same token, the public is even more confused on these important matters.

Many think the U.S. is exhausting its forests. The fact is that 75 percent of the continent's orgininal forest land is still growing trees. A good share of editors and the public believe that trees can be "saved" in perpetuity by simply tightening controls over harvesting. A great many people apparently feel that we could do without wood entirely. Clearly, there is a great dearth of information on facts concerning the forest products industry. Trees are this country's largest renewable natural resource. For many years-- thanks to the advancing science of forestry practiced by timber companies--timber growth, harvesting and utilization has steadily improved.

Trees, like other crops, grow to maturity and die. In the course of their growth, they contribute in manifold ways to the preservation of wildlife and to the health and recreational needs of man. That is why timber companies have evolved a multiple-use conservation philosophy in the management of forest lands. This philosophy is consistent with the necessity of harvesting as well as utilizing America's trees. The greatest threat to the perpetuation of forests is sheer public ignorance as reflected in the recent poll.

A FIRST STEP TOWARD AMNESTY?

Reaction to President Ford's announced intention to devise some kind of conditional amnesty for Vietnam war resisters and deserters promises that no matter what he does, he will displease a large part of the public.

Even if a compromise is arrived at somewhere between those who, at the one extreme, are against any amnesty at all and those who, at the other extreme, argue that amnesty should be total and unconditional, the exiles themselves have made clear that they will reject anything short of the latter.

There may, however, be one step the President could take that would give something to everyone.

Many of the exiles have not only made new lives for themselves but have become citizens of other countries, chiefly Canada, and have stated that they have no desire to return to the United States permanently. But one reason they want amnesty is so that they may at least freely visit relatives and friends here.

Would it not be possible to grant amnesty to those exiles who have become foreign citizens, as well as those willing to certify their intention of becoming foreign citizens, to the extend that they may qualify for visitors' permits?

Conditions on this right of visitation could include such prohibitions as not engaging in politics or making public statements denouncing the Vietnam war or engaging in other kinds of activities denied foreign nationals. Otherwise, these amnestied exiles would be accorded the same rights and privileges- and no more- as any other foreign, temporary residents.

Admittedly, this limited form of amnesty might apply to only a small fraction of the expatriates. But it is something that could be done now, and could be made acceptable to the majority of Americans.

LOOKING AT THE ECONOMY

Sen. Mike Mansfield, the majority leader in the Senate, said in an interview that he believes the nation must get back to wage and price controls to check the inflation spiral and avoid a severe recession. He should look back to recent history to find that controls do not work. They have been put into effect during previous administrations and the nation experienced no termination of its economic woes. The marketplace is still the place to check inflation and that means we have to produce more and regulate less.

The economic picture is not pretty, but CBS News did find some bright spots and they did not involve government controls. CBS asked several economists if any light was shining through the current gloom; some said it was. Among those listed were a slight drop in prime interest rates and an increase in the amount of building materials available. This points to transfusion for a sick housing industry. It is a refreshing thought.

This nation developed to greatness through good work and high production and without government controls. Sen Mansfield's advocacy of wage price regulations is at variance with this national experience, but there is certain merit in one of his statements during the recent interview. He favors the end of foreign aid. That would represent a tremendous stride in reducing the federal budget. Let us get on with cutting our national spending and produce more of that building material. The marketplace will accomplish the rest. HLH

Jack Anderson

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:
People Still Have Faith

WASHINGTON — As the nation's attention turns from Watergate to the economy, the headlines have become blacker with grim news.

Prohibitive oil prices have thrown the economy out of whack. Outgoing energy czar John Sawhill warns that the United States has no clear policy to deal with the crisis. There are forecasts of a worldwide depression. Columnist Joseph Alsop questions whether the West can survive.

Yet we have mailbags bulging with evidence that the American people have faith in their country and confidence in the future.

All we did was invite our readers to express their feelings about America in a slogan, which could be used as the official slogan for our bicentennial celebration. We offered no prizes. We simply asked for "the right words to reaffirm our faith in America."

We have been inundated with stirring slogans, which have poured into our office by the tens of thoussnds. Our mail has become so swamped that we have arranged with the Bicentennial Administration to use their postal box. So send your future slogans, please, to Slogans -- USA, Post Office Box 1976, Washington, D. C.

The Jaycees and American Legion, meanwhile, are helping us sort out all the slogans. The Copernicus Society has also joined us in sponsoring the slogan search. As an extra incentive, the society is putting up $10,000 in prize money -- $5,000 for the best slogan and $1,000 apiece for the next five.

The response to our appeal, both the slogans themselves and the accompanying lettters, have been heartwarming. Despite all the shabby performances and prominent failures of leading politicians, most American remain upbeat about the basic worth and prospects of this country.

The prevailing attitude is summed up in a slogan from the late Ernest Siipola (cq), who died of a heart attack before he could mail it to us. He was popular in his Fortuna, Calif., hometown, according to the tributes from his friends, as a forester who loved the outdoors and had a natural ease with his neighbors.

"In going through his pockets," his widow wrote to us, "I found his handwritten theme for the Bicentennial." Ernie Siipola's slogan for America was: "Golden Past to a Golden Future."

STRANGE SAGA: From secret grand jury transcripts, we have been writing the strange saga of Dr. Timothy Leary, the former saint of the psychedelic set. Today's chapter deals with his mysterious mistress.

Back in the 1960s, Leary was a Harvard psychology professor who found happiness in hallucinants and became the high priest of the drug cult. He was jailed on a marijuana rap, broke out of prison and fled to Algeria.

He drifted to Switzerland where he met a 28-year-old jetsetter named Joanna Harcourt-Smith. They flew off together on a romantic odyssey and wound up in Afghanistan in the custody of U.S. authorities.

The peripatetic professor was brought back under guard to California, where the faithful Joanna has been visiting him in various prisons. She wanted to marry him, but prison rules prevented it. So she took on his name anyway.

"I changed my name in the Superior Court of California to Leary," she told the grand jury, "so Leary is my legal name."

As we reported in an earlier column, Leary has made a dramatic break with his past and has turned against the drug cult. It is uncertain from the grand jury transcripts whether he enlisted her or she persuaded him to cooperate with federal narcotics agents. But she helped agents get evidence against Leary's former lawyer, George Chula, who has pleaded innocent to a drug indictment.

"Is Mr. Leary aware of what you were doing at the time you were doing it?" Los Angeles District Attorney Art Koelle asked Joanna.

"Yes, sir," she replied. She had worked with the agents, she said, "in the hopes" it would help Leary. But she added fiercely that she didn't like the people in the drug culture.

" I found 99.9 per cent of them to be dishonest, lying people," she said, "not telling the truth and not knowing where they were coming and where they were going."

She told about sniffing cocaine with Chula through rolled-up $100 bills. "And then he gets up," she testified, "and he says, 'Let's do this in style,' and he pulls out a hundred-dollar bill from his pocket and then he starts rolling the hundred bill. Then he says, 'You put it in your nose and take it.'"

The ritual, complete with the $100 bill, was repeated on other occasions, she swore. Shortly before his arrest she lectured him on the evils of cocaine.

"I took this opportunity to tell him," she testified, "that it was very bad to take that much cocaine or any cocaine, because it just makes you see life in a crazy way and you are seeing crazy things."

Democrats roll up significant gains

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Democrats rolled up significant gains in both houses of the Missouri General Assembly Tuesday.

Unofficial returns showed two Senate Republicans unseated along with at least seven members of the House. The Democrats also picked up several House seats in which incumbent Republicans decided against re-election.

"This was a Democratic year," said state Democratic Party Chairman James Spain, who predicted that dissatisfied voter reaction to Republicans over Watergate and the economy would filter down to the legislative races and give his party an increased majority.

The Democrats, who held a 97-66 majority in the House and a 21-13 margin in the Senate after the 1972 balloting, went into Tuesday's general election with a healthy advantage even before the polls opened. They had 48 unopposed House candidates to the Republicans' 16 and a 5-1 advantage in unopposed Senate contenders.

Two districts in northwest Missouri saw Republican incumbents fail in their bids for re-election to the Senate. Former Missouri Public Service Commission counsel Harry Wiggins soundly defeated two-term Sen. Lem T. Jones in a predominately GOP Kansas City district and Democratic State Rep. Hardin Cox of Rock Port bested freshman Sen. William Esely of Bethany.

Marvin Dinger, a Democratic attorney from Ironton, picked up a third previously Eepublican Senate seat as he outlasted Ralph Smith of Union in a race to succeed retiring GOP incumbent Don Owens of Gerald.

Those three victories were key ones in the Democratic push toward what appeared to be a 24-10 margin in the upper chamber, only one seat shy of the majority they held before the balloting two years ago.

Democrat Clifford Gannon of Desoto, a freshman state representative, fought off a stiff GOP challenge to retain control for his party of the seat of retiring Earl Blackwell of Hillsboro. In what was a close race, St. Charles County Assessor Robert Bauer held a slim 403-vote lead over GOP State Rep. Joe Frappier with 85 per cent of the vote counted. That seat was vacated by Democrat John Joynt of Florissant, who is retiring.

In the House, where Democrats boosted their majority to at least 106 members with several races still undecided, Republicans in the metropolitan areas took the brunt of the Democratic assault.

Freshman David Reed, from a staunchly Republican district in Kansas City

Ann Landers

Former patient disturbed

Dear Ann Landers: In 1964 I went to a psychiatrist. After two visits I decided I didn't need any more therapy. My conscience had been bothering me because of something I had done. Two talking sessions gave me the relief and peace of mind I needed. I really spilled my guts, and this is what I am worried about.

Both sessions were taped. The psychiatrist said he likes to refer to "earlier sessions" if necessary. This means a secretary had to transcribe those tapes and they are probably on file in his office.

How can I protect myself against possible blackmail by an unscrupulous person who might get his or her hand on them? I am deeply concerned and need your advice. -- Vulnerable

Dear V.: If you saw the psychiatrist only twice, in 1964, the records were probably tossed out long ago. However, since this is preying on your mind, call the doctor and ask for his assurance that your records have been disposed of. Or get his word that he will destroy them at once.

Dear Ann Landers: What do you think of giving birthday parties for one-year-olds? I've been to a few lately, and there have been as many as 25 guests present.

The babies have no idea what is going on. The mothers open the gifts and "Oo-oo" and "Ah!" The babies would rather play with the ribbonsa nd wrappings.

I feel these parties are for the parents and are a sheer waste of time and money for everyone else. What do you say?--Turned Off

Dear Turned: Of course the parties are for the parents. Who else? The child realizes people are around, but he doesn't know why and couldn't care less.

If parents want to celebrate the baby's birthday, I see nothing wrong with it. Someone usually has a camera. The pictures are nice to have later -- so "Baby" can see what he looked like, smearing the frosting all over Aunt Ethel's navy blue dress.

Dear Ann Landers: I disagree with your reply to "Sloppy in Omaha." As a professional home economist, I have these comments:

A kitchen is a workshop. In the best designed workshops, tools are kept where they are most accessible, not out of sight. The pots and pans most frequently used should be hanging from a rack in the open. They can be very attractive and it's an added incentive to keep them bright and shiny.

Now about thte "dishrags," as you call them. (I was taught to say "dishcloth" and I teach my students the same. Rags are usually used on floors, but please, not on dishes.) I see nothing wrong with keeping a dishcloth draped over the faucet. It will be sweeter-smelling than if it is stuck in a closed cabinet. And, of course, since it will be "on display," it must be kept clean.

A kitchen with totally "cleared decks" has as much personality as a living room that looks like a furniture-store window. -- Efficient In Texas

Dear Tex: You may be right about calling them dishcloths instead of dishrags but as for the "cleared deck," I disagree. To me, the hallmark of a good housekeeper is one whose kitchen has nothing in sight except the appliances and cannisters that are being used -- and with the dishcloth out of sight.

Discover how to be date bait without falling hook, line and sinker. Ann Landers's booklet, "Dating Do's and Don'ts," will help you be more poised and sure of yourself on dates. Send 35 cents in coin along with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope and your request to Ann Landers, P. O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Energy, survival are subjects of new book

PORTAGEVILLE— A new book at the New Madrid County Library in Portageville is "Energy for Survival", by Wilson Clark.

We have all been forcibly reminded of how intimately our lives and our civilization are entwined with the production and use of energy. It is obvious that a new way of thinking is needed and clearly it is not forthcoming from traditional pundits or conventional institutions.

Several years ago, Wilson Clark, then in his early 20s, arrived in Washington and began to write about energy and society. At the time, hardly anyone saw any connection between the two. Energy was simply the monthly utility bill.

However, Clark clearly perceived the limits of the globe's finite fossil fuels and saw that many environmental and social ills were directly connected to the misuse of energy. He looked for new ideas, sought out inventors of fresh technologies and tried to see things whole.

This book--- forceful, detailed, lucid, definitive-- is the result: a profound, authoritative examination of energy policy and potential by an astute observer with nothing to sell but good sense. It analyzes the ramifications of our oil addiction and lays bare the tarnished promise of nuclear power. It exposes the political and economic non-sequiturs that stand between the present crisis and the successful harnessing of the sun, the wind and the earth's heat.

"Energy for Survival" is strong medicine for a society in need of a cure.

By Erma Bombeck

My finteen-year-old son said to me the other day, "Mom, I think I'm in trouble. Mitzi is referring my case to Mr. Weems."

"Who is Mitzi?"

"She's the girl at the record club who has been writing me letters saying I can't get out of the club because I still have to buy two more selections."

"Then who is Mr. Weems?"

"He's Mitzi's boss."

"Let me see the letter," I said.

Mitzi was a sweetheart. I could tell by the way she used phrases like, "You are forcing me to do something I really don't want to do, Mr. Bombeck, but you have left me no choice then to speak to Mr. Weems."

I had visions of Mitzi stamping out her cigarettes in her cottage cheese and letting her coffee get cold as she anguished over my son's case. I called her the next morning at the record club office.

"Hello, Mitzi Green please."

"Who?"

"Mitzi Green. She's the girl who has been corresponding with my son about his account."

"Oh, Mitzi isn't a person. She's a computer."

"So, put her on."

"You don't understand. Mitzi can't talk."

"Nonsense, she has just written us that she will be talking soon with Mr. Weems about the possibility of bringing legal action against my son."

"But Mr. Weems is a computer too."

"Can he listen?"

"Yes, but you have to understand computers. You can speak to them, but they will not answer you back. You can feed information into them, but it doesn't necessarily mean it will come out 100 per cent perfect. They're an important part of the family here at Freako Records, but they are without emotion and without income."

"You have described my son perfectly," I said. "He's an X-70 model we purchased 15 years ago. Unknown to us, he punched out a membership in your club. According to his print-out, he has already fulfilled his obligation. However, if these two machines want to battle it out, it's all right with me."

"You mean our computer has been corresponding with another computer?" asked the girl on the phone.

It was just a gut feeling, but I had the distinct sensation they were going to kick a few buttons in the Freako Record Company.

State resources disappear

JEFFERSON CITY - Missour is a state rich in natural resources -- land, water, forests, wildlife and minerals - to say nothing of scenery and open space.

But these resources are being eroded rapidly. In 10 years, for example, more than 1.5 million acres of Missouri's forest resources were lost. Subdivisions, highways and "urban sprawl" were among the culprits.

The situation has not yet reached a crisis stage, as it has in some states, and perhaps that is one reason the Legislature has been reluctant to tackle the problem.

"Government by crisis" is a familiar phenomenon to anyone who has ever watched a state legislature in action.

.So far in Missouri, only piecemeal efforts have been made. Wildlife resources have been well protected and have even grown under the careful management policies of the State Conservation Commission.

The Forestry Division of the Commission has done the best it could with the money available to protect forest resources. By a long process of education, it has cut down sharply on the old wasteful practices of spring burning but it has not been able to do much about landowners who strip the woodlands with chemical killers like the defoliant aerial sprays used in Vietnam.

Similarly, an effort has been made to control the spoilage of land by strip mining. The Legislature created the Land Reclamation Commission in an effort to control the ravages of strip mining but it is not certain whether its powers will be strong enough to resist the economic pressures generated by the increasing demands for coal.

Years ago an attempt was made to control water resources by the establishment of the State Water Resources Board with a directive to establish a long range plan for management and control of state water resources. The goal was never achieved and the agency was abolished under the new Reorganization Act.

Despite reorganization, water resources planning is still fragmented and largely futile.

So it goes, on down the line. Some preliminary studies of land use planning needs have been made in certain critical areas, but there is no statewide land and resource management plan or agency.

The problem may explode like a bombshell in the Legislature some day when the federal government passes a bill requiring state action.

Such a bill, giving states financial incentives to develop land management and control systems, was passed by the Senate last year but was abandoned in the House of Representatives.

The subject is certain to come up again, however, and a few of the coastal states already have limited land use control laws in effect.

One of the basic problems seems to be that most people continue to think of land as a commodity to be bought and sold and not as a dwindling state or national resource. Nationally, open space is being swallowed up by urbanization at a rate of more than 1,000 square miles a year but the impact of that has not yet hit home to most citizens.

No one has come up with any complete solution. It's just one of those gnawing problems eating away at the Legislature like termites gnawing at the supporting beams of a house.

Campaign financing law to go into effect after January 1

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A campaign-financing law hailed as a method to plug some big loopholes in the state's current law will go into effect Jan. 1 after receiving overwhelming voter acceptance Tuesday.

The measure, which will require candidates to keep records of all contributions and publicly disclose contributions of more than $25, received 700,680 "yes" votes and 202,925 "no" votes, with 93 per cent of the total vote tabulated. It was approved in all counties, including a 10,349-3,751 majority in Cape Girardeau County; 15,777-3,451 in Clay County; 11,100-3,773 in Cole; 65,190-19,514 in Greene; 15,785-4,027 in Jasper; 19,559-4,762 in Jefferson; 8,013-2,241 in Pettis; 17,175-3,692 in St. Charles; 185,403-32,622 in St. Louis County and 59,077-28,407 in St. Louis City.

The measure forbids anonymous contributions of more than $5 each or $500 for one candidate during an election campaign.

It also restricts contributions from persons or groups to not more than $50,000 to all candidates in one year, and a person or group could not give more than $10,000 per election—the primary and general count as separate elections—to any one caneidate.

The measure requires reports of contributions to be filed 40 days before an election, seven days before and within 30 days after an election. At present the reporting requirement is within 30 days after the election and the reports only cover the 90 days leading up to the election. The measure sets up a six-member elections commission with the governor to choose from 18 persons nominated by the state supreme court.

Violation of the law would bring a fine of $5,000 or one year in jail.

Democrats cash in

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats cashed in on voter discontent with Republican scandals and the nations's deepening economic ills and headed for a two-thirds bulge in the House, an expanded margin in the Senate and a near-record total of governorships.

They gained at least four seats in the Senate, at least 38 in the House and elected more governors than either party has held since the Democratic landslide in the elections of 1958.

Their precise margins, however, depended on a half-dozen extremely tight races, including a tangled Ohio governor's contest in which Republican James Rhodes conceded defeat to Democratic Gov. John J. Gilligan, then shot into the lead.

The victors included some new national Democratic stars, potential candidates for national office: Govs.-elect Hugh L. Carey of New York and Edmund G. Brown Jr. of California, and Sens.-elect John H. Glenn Jr. of Ohio and Dale Bumpers of Arkansas.

And the losers included a half-dozen Republicans who had been among the loudest and longest defenders of former President Richard M. Nixon: four members of the House Judiciary Committee who stood by Nixon during last summer's hearings and Reps. Dan H. Kuykendall of Tennessee and Earl F. Landgrebe of Indiana.

Though the Democratic gains Tuesday were a bit below some pre-election forecasts and in line with the normal off-year pattern of opposition party success, Democratic spokesmen hailed their victory as a signal to supplant Ford's economic policies with measures of their own.

"This is not just a victory, this is a mandate," declared Speaker Carl B. Albert of Oklahoma, scheduled to preside over the first House in a decade with a two-thirds Democratic margin, theoretically the "veto-proof" body Ford warned might block his programs.

Other Democrats cocked their eyes towards 1976 and the presidential contest they hope will restore them to White House control.

If Ford doesn't change his economic programs "we will win the White House in 1976," declared Sen. Lloyd M. Bentsen of Texas, a likely Democratic presidential contender. And Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington said he might unveil his White House bid before year's end.

"We're seeing the rebuilding of the old Democratic coalition which served the Democratic party and the nation so well for so many years," declared Democratic Chairman Robert S. Strauss.

At the White House, President Ford watched the returns on television and conceded his party had lost.

'I have accepted the verdict," he said. "Those who lose often come back to win another day."

With final returns still being tabulated in a number of states, this was the picture:

Senate — Democrats picked up five seats but were trailing in one they now hold, giving them a likely margin of 62 to 38 in the new Senate compared to their 58 to 42 lead in the current one.

House — Democrats had picked up at least 43 seats from Republicans while losing five to GOP candidates. They had elected 281 House members and led in 12 other races, for a possible total of 293, 45 more than the current House in which they hold a 248 to 187 majority. The margin is the biggest since the 295-140 majority after the Lyndon B. Johnson landslide of 1964.

Governors — Democrats had captured another from the Republicans, lost one to the GOP and lost another to an independent candidate in Maine. They led for another GOP spot, while Republicans led in three current Democratic states, for an indicated breakdown of 36 Democrats, 13 Republicans and one independent, surpassing the 35 to 14 margin after 1958 but short of the record 39 governors elected in 1936.

As expected, the Democrats captured Senate seats in Florida, Kentucky, Colorado and North Dakota.

In Florida, former Secretary of State Richard Stone, a moderate Democrat, defeated conservative GOP businessman Jack Eckerd for the seat of Republican Sen. Edward J. Gurney, under federal indictment for bribery, conspiracy and perjury.

In Kentucky, Democratic Gov. Wendell Ford scored heavily in rural areas and held his own in Louisville to unseat freshman GOP Sen. Marlow W. Cook.

In Colorado, Gary Hart, the 36-year-old 1972 campaign manager for Democratic presidential nominee George S. McGovern, swamped two-term Republican Sen. Peter H. Dominick.

In Vermont, a 34-year-old Democrat, Latrick Leahy, surprised Republican Rep. Richard Mallary in the race to succeed retiring Sen George D. Aiken. He became the first Democrat ever elected to the Senate from that once rock-ribbed Republican state.

And in North Dakota, former Gov. William L. Guy narrowly defeated veteran GOP Sen. Milton Young.

In Oklahoma, former Rep. Ed Edmondson was closing in on front-running Republican Sen. Henry Bellmon.

In Nevada, former Republican Gov. Paul A. Laxalt edged ahead of Democratic Lt. Gov. Harry Reid for the seat of retiring Democrat Alan Bible.

Elsewhere, the incumbents generally won. The two biggest names among the Democratic senators, George McGovern of South Dakota and Birch Bayh of Indiana, captured third terms.

And Bumpers and Glenn won easily the Arkansas and Ohio Senate seats now held by Democrats J. W. Fulbright and Howard Metzenbaum, their victims in bitter primary battles last May.

In Kansas, scene of one of the nation's most bitter Senate races, former Republican National Chairman Robert Dole battled back to edge Democratic Rep. William Roy.

And in Utah, Republican Mayor Jake Garn of Salt Lake City defeated Democratic Rep. Wayne Owens, a member of the House Judiciary Committee, for the seat of retiring Republican Wallace Bennett.

Other new Senators included Rep. John C. Culver in Iowa and former Atty. Gen. Robert Morgan of North Caroline, both Democrats.

In the House, the biggest name casualties were on the House Judiciary Committee — four Republicans who had defended Nixon, Reps. Charles W. Sandman Jr. and Joseph J. Maraziti of New Jersey; David W. Dennis of Indiana; Wiley Mayne of Iowa, and a fifth who voted against the former President, freshman Harold V. Froehlich of Wisconsin.

Of the five Democrats who unseated Republicans in special elections last spring, all won again except Rep. Tom Luken of Ohio, edged in his rematch with Republican Willis Gradison in the Cincinnati district.

In Ford's home district in Grand Rapids, Mich., which he represented for a quarter century before Nixon picked him for the vice presidency, Democratic Rep. Richard VanderVeen won again despite Ford's visit last week.

Republican losses tended to come in clusters — five in Indiana, four in New Jersey, four in New York, two in Wisconsin and two in Virginia, including suburban Washington Rep. Joel Broyhill, a 22-year-veteran.

In California, the GOP was losing in four races.

On the Democratic side, there were single losses in Florida, Louisiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania and South Dakota.

But in Arkansas, Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., the embattled chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, was easily re-elected over Republican Judy Petty, despite the adverse publicity of last month's incident in which police stopped his speeding car, found the congressman intoxicated and a former stripper jumped out and into Washington's Tidal Basin.

In the governor's races, Democrats scored expected victories over Republicans in a number of states, including New York, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Colorado, Oregon, Tennessee and Wyoming.

And in California, Brown, the 36-year-old son of the state's last Democratic governor, became the youngest governor in over a century by defeating Republican Houston Flournoy.

But Democrat Sander Levin's second bid to unseat Republican Gov. William G. Milliken again fell short in Michigan, and Republican James Edwards was elected the first GOP governor im a century in South Carolina as the result of controversy surrounding the disqualification of the Democratic primary winner.

In Maine, meanwhile, independent James B. Longley surprised Democrat George Mitchell and Republican James Erwin.

In New York, Carey ran up an 800,000-vote margin over Republican Gov. Malcolm Wilson, who became governor when Nelson A. Rockefeller resigned last December, to recapture the state for his party for the first time in 16 years.

In Connecticut, Rep. Ella T. Grasso became the first woman to win a governorship without suceeding her husband.

Incumbents re-elected included Democrats George C. Wallace in Alabama, Reubin Askew in Florida, Milton Shapp in Pennsylvania, Wendell Anderson in Minnesota, Marvin Mandel in Maryland, Patrick J. Lucey in Wisconsin, Philip W. Noel in Rhode Island and Republicans Robert Ray of Iowa and Meldrim Thomson of New Hampshire.

Lobbyists is AP film topic

The controversial subject of lobbyists and lobbying activities is examined in a new color-and-sound AP Special Report filmstrip to be distributed to area schools shortly by this newspaper.

Lobbyists, whose job it is to monitor and influence legislation for special interest groups, have often been referred to as "the fourth branch of government."

Do lobbyists wield undue influence on the nation's legislative process? Or are they the servants of the public, fulfilling a constitutional role in petitioning Congress?

These and many other questions are examined in detail in "Lobbying: The Fourth Branch of Government."

Among those interviewed for the program are Congrtessmen, other people in government who deal with lobbyists, and the lobbyists themselves, including representatives of big business, the unions and "peoples" lobbies such as Common Cause.

A key discussion in this Special Report revolves around the laws regulating lobby activities.

Plant contributes $16,145

CAPE GIRARDEAU - The 1975 Cape Girardeau United Way and Jackson Community Chest drives received a total of $16,145.44 from Charmin Paper Products Co. and its employes at the Cape Girardeau plant.

The amount pledged this year topped last year's record-setting gift by $1,002.54. The total contribution is split between Cape Girardeau and Jackson in proportion to the number of employes residing in each community and the relative fund goals of each campaign.

Of the total amount, $5,613.05 will be distributed to the Jackson fund and $10,432.39 will go to the Cape Girardeau fund.

Network correspondent slated for Charleston group banquet

Mal Goode

CHARLESTON— Mal Goode, special correspondent for international affairs with American Broadcasting Company, will be the featured speaker at the Charleston National Association for the Advancement of Colored People freedom fund banquet scheduled Nov. 16 at 7:30 p.m. in the Lincoln Community Center on Elm Street.

Goode, considered by many to be the dean of black professional broadcast journalism, began his career in broadcasting with station KQV in Pittsburgh, and later joined station WHOD as a news reporter. He was named news director of the station in 1952.

From 1956 to 1962, Goode continued to work for the Pittsburgh Courier while also broadcasting for WMCK, WEDO and television station WTAE- TV.

In 1962, he was hired by ABC News in New York, thus becoming the first black to hold membership in the National Association of Radio and Television News Directors and the Association of Radio and TV News Analysts. In 1972, he served as president of the United Nations Correspondents Association with a membership drawn from around the world.

Goode, a well- known public speaker, has appeared before audiences in more than 300 cities since 1962 in discussions of civil rights or the United Nations. He holds an honorary doctor of humanities degree from Shaw University at Raleigh, N.C., and was recently presented the Mary McLeed Bethune medallion by Bethune- Cookman College in Daytona Beach, Fla.

Woodrow J. "Pedro" Simmons will be the toastmaster for the banquet.

Bell offers new line of decorator phones

A new line of 10 decorator telephones is now available to Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. customers.

The new phones, called Design Line, range in styles from an old-fashioned type with a hanging receiver to a contemporary model that features a phone concealed in a wooden chest. There are 67 possible color and style variations in the lineup, including one red, white and blue combination.

Purchasers of the sets will own the housing, or shell, outright. The telephone company will own and maintain all the working parts -- dial, cord and electrical componentss.

According to Don Smith, Southwestern Bell vice president and general manager, this is the first time in its history that the telephone company has sold telephone shells to its customers.

"Under this arrangement, we'll be able to maintain the quality of service by making sure the inner parts work correctly with the telephone network," Smith said. "At the same time, we'll be offering customers a greater selectin of telephones to suit their living style."

Smith said the shell of each Design Line phone is under warranty for six months after initial purchase, then the customer becomes responsible for repairs. Any necessary repairs of the working parts will be performed, without charge, by the telephone company throughout the life of the instrument.

Cost of the 10 phones ranges from $50 for the Exeter, a contemporary phone with several appliques available, to $135 for the Stowaway, a phone concealed in a wooden chest. The Candlestick, a reproduction of an old-fashioned phone with a hanging receiver, sells for $60.

Customers have the option of being billed for the full purchase price of a Design Line phone or spreading payments over two, three, four or five months without interest or carrying charges.

In addition to the initial purchase price and installation charges, Smith said Design Line customers will be billed the monthly extension rate if the set is used as an extension, or the basic monthly service charge if the set is installed as a main telephone.

"We want to be in a position of providing the type of telephone our customers want," Smith said. "Combined with our standard models, Design Line lets us offer a tremendous variety -- now we can provide something for just about everyone."

Office nears completion

The new Sikeston office of First Federal Savings and Loan is nearing completion by Ryan Construction Co. of Sikeston. Chuck Grant, vice president of the financial institution, said he expects the new office to be open by Nov. 15. The new facility will be located at 303 S. Kingshighway. The office is now temporarily located at 208 S. Kingshighway. Grant, noting that First Federal is the largest financial institution in Southeast Missouri, said the new facility will have two drive-in windows for the convenience of customers.

The second nicest thing about masonry is that it costs less.

The nicest, of course, is beauty. The result of skilled masons creating walls with craftmanship, texture and durability that can't be imitated by machines.

You might think it would cost more than its metal, glass or precast concrete competitors. But in most cases, it costs less — initially and over the life of the building. And finance charges and real estate taxes are less. If that isn't enough, masonry walls are far less expensive to maintain — because masonry doesn't warp, dent, buckle or rot. And it never needs painting. Also, walls of masonry reduce heating and cooling expenses.

P'ville telethon

PORTAGEVILLE — A male teacher modeling panty-hose? A police chief standing on his head? Another teacher pushing a doctor's wife down the street in a wheelbarrow? It all happened here recently as part of the Portageville Lions Club-sponsored telethon for crippled children.

"I'm really proud of the town," Mrs. Jerry Mayo, the overall coordinator, said. She was quick, however, to give credit to the youth of Portageville, without whom "the telethon would not be the success it was."

"Some people may feel teenagers are bad," Mrs. Mayo said, "but give them a job to do and they'll do it. They canvassed door-to-door, set up roadblocks, challenged each other to see who could raise the most money and sold chains in school-- each link costing a nickel."

Mrs. Mayo said the whole community was involved, including the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Cub Scouts, student council, varsity club and virtually every other youth group.

Their efforts seemed to pay off. The people of Portageville succeeded in raising $4,175, compared to $3,109 during the 1973 campaign. This is as much money as some of the bigger towns have raised, and as much as all of New Madrid County raised last year, Mrs. Mayo said.

The telethon started at 10 a.m. Saturday morning and continued until 2 p.m. Sunday over the Delta Video cable television system. Entertainment included several musical groups from the area, high school bands and choruses, church-sponsored groups and cheerleaders and majorettes.

The Portageville telethon was part of the larger telethon coming out of Paducah, Ky., this weekend to raise money for the Easter Seal Society.

The Kentucky telethon will be televised over WPSD television station Channel 6, and will feature such stars as Bill Hays, Susan Seaforth, Johnnie Whittaker and Tanya Tucker.

It will start at 10 p.m. Saturday and run through 1 p.m. Sunday, with one of the stars acting as master of ceremonies at all times.

The 1973 program raised $308,351.25 for the benefit of crippled children, with Southeast Missouri's Crippled Children Program receiving $25,564.85 as its share of the funds.

Mrs. Mayo said that even though the money raised through the Portageville telethon will go into the Paducah telethon funds, Portageville will get back every cent it raised.

"Any advance pledges comes back to Missouri," she said, "that's why we hold our telethon a week early."

None of the performers on the Paducah telethon will be paid for their time, but a percentage of the gross proceeds is paid to the Actors Guild.

Services provided by the Crippled Children Program include equipment loans, prosthetic aids, transportation, homecraft programs, speech and hearing services, physical therapy, occupational counseling, summer camp and information services.

Mrs. Mayo said pledges are still being accepted and may be made through the New Madrid Health Center, phone number 748-5541.

Big Red leader

In a gesture typical of the St. Louis Cardinals this year, Big Red quarterback Jim Hart points to the defensive unit in explaining the club's turnaround from 4-9-1 the last three years to 7-1 after eight games in 1974.

"I look at the defense and I think the way they've improved has been the difference," Hart says. "The offense has always been able to score points, but now the defense is stopping the opponent more often than not and we're getting better field position. We used to get the ball at the 15 or 20, now we're getting it more ane at the 40 or 50, and that makes a lot of difference."

Since he came to the Big Red as a free agent in 1966, Hart's career and the success of his team have had more downs than ups. So many more downs as a matter of fact, that, according to Hart, the law of averages had to catch up with the Cardinals some time.

"It was only a matter of time before it started to happen," Hart explains. "Things had been going too poorly for so long, that something had to happen sooner or later."

Through the first six years of his career, the 6-1, 215-pound, product of Southern Illinois spent his time either sitting on the bench or playing, but looking over his shoulder if he made any mistakes.

But following the 1972 season, the Big Red named Don Coryell as their head coach. Coryell -- whose San Diego State teams were always near the top of NCAA offensive statistics while winning 104 of 125 games with two ties -- took a look at the Cardinals' films and decided then who would be his quarterback.

"There was no question about it," Coryell says. "We could see easily by the films when we came here that he had the best arm and now he's proven to have all the other assets that a great quarterback has to have.

"We're so pleased with Jimmy and the way he's come into his own," the second-year Big Red coach continues. "He just doesn't throw interceptions. Two of the three that he has thrown were balls that bounced off other people. They were not his fault in any way."

But there's more to it, the coach says, than Hart's ability to throw the ball: "He's been a very good leader out there, very calm, very cool, and he doesn't seem to get rattled at all."

Any credit for an improved mental attitude goes to the coach, thought, in Hart's estimation.

"There's a much more relaxed atmosphere on the club since Coryell came," Hart says, "and in this relaxed atmosphere, we're able to play a looser game. He placed a great deal of responsibility on the players and we have responded Technically, there's a great deal of difference between Coryell and the other coaches I played for in that he's a very offensive - offensive-minded coach," Hart continues. "The rest of my years, the head coaches were concerned mainly with defense, but now we have a head coach who's mainly concerned with offense. His offense is very imaginative, innovative and really exciting."

The average fan may not be able to tell if Coryell's offense is innovative or not, but he certainly won't quarrel with the idea that it is exciting.

Monday night FB

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — Their seven-game winning streak stopped by the Dallas Cowboys, the St. Louis Football Cardinals hope to bounce back against an equally formidable foe -- the Minnesota Vikings -- in a Monday night game, the Big Red's first since 1972. Kickoff in Busch Memorial Stadium will be at 8:05 p.m. (CST).

The Vikings will take a 6-2 record and a two-game lead in the NFC's Central Division into this weekend's games. The Cardinals, with their 7-1 mark, have a two-game lead in the NFC East over the Washington Redskins (5-3), and a three-game edge over Philadelphia and Dallas (4-4).

In Sunday games involving NFC East opponents, the Redskins meet the Eagles in Philadelphia, Dallas entertains San Franciscco and the New York Giants (2-6 host the New York Jets at New Haven, Conn.

Against the Cowboys, the Cardinals were forced to play for nearly three quarters without running back Terry Metcalf, who injured a knee, and Ernie McMillan, who suffered a concussion, and for most of the second half without starting guard Bob Yound, who also injured a knee. Their status for the Vikings game will be known later in the week.

Nevertheless, the Big Red managed a 7-7 halftime deadlock with the Cowboys and took the opening kickoff of the second half and drove to a second touchdown -- recorded on a ten-yard pass from Jim Hart to wide receiver Mel Gray. The Cardinals' first TD was a 19-yard pass play from Hart to tight end Jackie Smith.

However, later in the period, the Cowboys forced the Big Red to punt from their end zone and took over on the Cardinal 38-yard-line. Five plays later, Calvin Hill ran in from two yards out and the score was tied 14-14 early in the fourth quarter.

The teams exchanged punts, and then the BigRed punted again to the Cowboys on the Dallas 29 with 4:52 left. The Cowboys, aided by three penalties on the Cardinals, moved to the Big Red two-yard-line, and then place-kicker Efren Herrera booted a game-winning 20-yard field goal with four seconds left.

Against the Vikings, the Big Red lead in the series, three games to one, with the one defeat coming in St. Louis by a 27-10 score in 1969. All three of the Cardinal victories were recorded in Minnesota.

The game will mark the Cardinals' fifth Monday night outing since the current league format began in 1970. The Big Red have split the first four Monday games -- defeating Dallas (38-0) in 1970 and the New York Jets (17-10) in 1971 and losing to San Diego (20-17) in 1971 and Miami (31-10) in 1972.

The Big Red's difficult schedule continues next Sunday when the Cardinals move to Philadelphia for a rematch with the Eagles. St. Louis then will visit the New York Giants on November 24 before returning to St. Louis on December 1 to entertain the Kansas City Chiefs.

Tickets for the Kansas City game and the final home game -- December 15 against the Giants -- are on sale at the Cardinal Ticket Office, 200 Stadium Plaza, St. Louis, Missouri 63120.

SPORTS

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The American Basketball Association's Spirits of St. Louis have announced the signing of guard Mike Barr to fill out the their 11-man roster.

A spokesman said the 6-foot-3 Barr is expected to add defense and speed to the Spirits' roster. Barr spent the past two seasons with the ABA Virginia Squires, averaging 7.4 points a game.

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — The Portland Storm is offering ticket refunds for the team's World Football League game against Florida, but Storm officials say there haven't been too many takers.

Cubs, Hornets among finalists

BELL CITY — The Bell City Cubs and the Advance Hornets advanced to the semi-finals of the annual BCCHS B team tournament as first round action was ccompleted here Tuesday night.

Bell City had a rather easy time disposing of Scott Central 56-50 but Advance had to sweat out a 52-44 win over over Oran.

In the first game of the night the Advance Hornets jumped to a 14-10 first perio lead but their only veteran player Steve Vavak ran into foul trouble in the first half and had to be rested with three fouls. Oran was able to cut the lead a little as the Eagles outscored the Hornets 14-13 in the second period.

With Vavak on the bench the Hornets had to rely on their defense to get the job done against the Eagles as their zone kept Oran outside most of the game.

Vavak, showing his experience from his freshman year on the team, scored 27 points on the night as the big center, forward, guard drove past his defenders to the hoop.

Lynn Burlison and Roger Moret divided the high scoring for Oran with 10 apiece.

The Bell City Cubs behind the leadership of head coach Ronnie Stone, propelled themselves into the semi-finals behind the shooting and rebounding of big Sol Byrd.

Scott Central stayed in the game through the first quater as Bell City led 16-15 but the Cubs used their man to man press to make numerous steal in the second period and began to pull away from the little Braves and led 33-26 at the half and were never headed.

Scott Central tried to stay close but too many mistakes kept the Cubs in front.

Tournament action resumes Thursday night with the semi-finals as fourth seeded Advance squares off against the tallest team in the tournament, Kelly, at 6:30. Little Puxico plays the bigger Bell City Cubs at 8 p.m. Finals will be Saturday night.

Grand National pays $79,500

DENVER, Colo. — The Grand National rodeo at the Cow Palace in San Francisco, Calif., closed out the 1974 professional rodeo season Sunday with a total payoff of better than $79,500, the Rodeo Cowboys Association said.

The largest single winner of the rodeo was Charlie Battles of Delaware, Okla., who gathered $3,372 from steer wrestling. He moved into 12th position in the national standings, and assured himself a trip to Oklahoma City, Okla., for for the National Finals Rodeo, Dec. 7-15.

Tommy Puryear of Norman, Okla., who has been charging up through the standings in steer wrestling during the latter part of the season, grabbed $1,500 in his event at the Cow Palace and went into the lead, passing Tom Ferguson of Miami, Okla. Puryear's season total is $24,210.

Other event winners at the rodeo included Steve Hiatt of Milburn, Neb., $3,042 in bull riding; Royce Smith, Challis, Ida., $2,176 in bareback riding; J. C. Bonine, Hysham, Mont., $2,029 in saddle bronc riding; and Gary Ledford, Comanche, Okla., $2,019 in calf roping. The team roping had the Camarillo cousins, Reg of Mea, Ariz., and Leo of Oakdale, Calif., winning $1,180 each.

The top 15 cowboys in each event will head the Finals now, which is offering the largest purse ever. Total prize money for cowboys and the top 15 women in barrel racing is approximately $150,000.

Many contestants are also headed this week for the Sioux Falls, S. Dak., rodeo, and the "second-half" payoff of the $120,000 Winston Rodeo Awards. Bonus checks totalling $40,000 will be handed out to nearly 60 cowboys this Saturday at the rodeo.

Money won at Sioux Falls will count toward 1975 championships.

Unofficial bowl pairings

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

Secrets are flying faster than rumors as the nation's college football bowls rush to line up post-season opponents.

Notre Dame reportedly will meet Alabama in the Orange Bowl in a rematch of last year's national championship battle. Nebraska and Florida will face each other in a Sugar Bowl clash while Penn State will take on the Southwestern Conference champion in the Cotton Bowl.

Miami of Ohio, which has a bid to the Tangerine Bowl, says its wants to meet Miami of Florida in the Dec. 21 clash.

And Oklahoma State will meet Pittsburgh and Tony Dorsett in the Sun Bowl Dec. 28.

Until this year, the first day a bowl invitation could be extended was the third Saturday in November. But the National Collegiate Athletic Association rescinded its rule when it found it impossible to enforce.

The bowls then agreed among themselves to wait until Nov. 16. But, as usual, early bids have apparently been offered and leaked.

The Orange Bowl collision between Notre Dame and Alabama will match the two teams that fought for the national championship in the Sugar Bowl last New Year's Eve when the Irish edged the Crimson Tide 24-23.

Notre Dame is ranked eighth with a 7-1 record while Alabama, 8-0, is third behind Ohio State and Oklahoma.

A Notre Dame spokesman said "no decision would be made before Nov. 16," although Frank Rentz, president of the Orange Bowl Committee, said official announcement of the Notre Dame-Alabama matchup could come Saturday following the Alabama-Louisiana State game.

Penn State Coach Joe Paterno said his team has voted to go to the Cotton Bowl against the winner of the Southwest Conference — either Texas, Texas A&M or Baylor — but qualified his statement by saying the Nittany Lions would go "if" they are invited.

Cotton Bowl officials in Dallas declined to confirm the reports that Penn State, ranked seventh with a 7-1 record, would be invited. But one official said Penn State "is under very strong consideration."

Unbeaten Oklahoma is banned from postseason play because of recruiting violations.

Sikeston 8th lose final

Coach John Heacox's eighth grade football team ended their season on a losing note at Public School Stadium Tuesday night, bowing to Cape Girardeau 12- 8 and finishing with a 5- 2 season record.

Even with the defeat, the Bulldog eighth grade finished with the best record of any of the Sikeston gridiron teams.

The eighth graders lost their opening game, 30- 20, to Poplar Bluff and then reeled off five straight wins before losing Tuesday evening.

"We made too many mistakes," coach Heacox noted.

Sikeston fumbled three times inside their own 25 yard line and held off the Bengals twice before allowing them to score on a four yarder on a fourth down play in the second period for a 6- 0 lead.

Cape charged back with a 35 yard score in the third when the Bulldog pass defense broke down.

Sikeston's lone score came in the fourth quarter when Dwight Mills passed to Jeff Young for a 28 yard score. Scott Walls ran for a two point conversion and the final points in the 12- 8 loss.

This was the final game of the season for all of the Sikeston gridiron teams, except for the varsity which wraps up its campaign at PSS Friday against Poplar Bluff. A sophomore game postponed Monday because of high water on the Cape field and rescheduled for this coming Monday, was postponed Tuesday.

Spirits return home against Dr. J.

ST. LOUIS-- The Spirits of St. Louis, slowly putting together a backcourt, return home Wednesday for a four-game home stand that they only hope will be as entertaining for them as it will be for their fans.

First, the Spirits get their second regular season look at the incredible Dr. J., Julius Erving, when they take on the defending ABA champion New York Nets at the Arena on Wednesday night in an 8 p.m. start. It was the Nets and The Doctor who attracted the largest basketball crowd to the Arena earlier this season when New York beat the young Spirits.

The Spirits will get another shot at revenge on Friday night when the Denver Nuggets, who defeated St. Louis in Denver last week, and their fast- break attack arrive on a night that will be a special treat for the fans-- Polaroid Night. Every youngster 16 and under will have an opportunity to have his or her picture taken with one of the Spirits between 6:30 and 7:20 p.m. with the picture enclosed in a handsome card containing all the Spirits autographs.

Then on Sunday, George McGinnis, the Superman of basketball, brings the Indiana Pacers to St. Louis for their first visit to the Arena at 7 p.m. That game will be Family Night with the head of the household paying the regular price while every other member of the family pays only $1 regardless of the price of the ticket.

The Spirits close out the stand against Memphis next Tuesday, Nov. 13, in a game that will mark the changeover to a 7:30 p.m. week night starting time for Spirits home games.

The Spirits, 4- 7 after coming away with one victory in three games on the road last week, had a chance to acquaint themselves with their newest member-- Freddie Lewis-- with two days of practice Monday and Tuesday before swinging back into action.

Lewis, a 6- 0 former All Star guard acquired from Memphis for Tom Owens last Tuesday night, had only one chance to work out with the team last Thursday before playing two games. He immediately made his presence felt by scoring 61 points in the two contests and running the offense, but Coach Bob MacKinnon still was thankful for the chance to let Freddie and the team work together in practice for several days.

With guard Bernie Fryer now on injured reserve for at least 15 days with a torn thigh muscle, the Spirits also were looking for more backcourt help with Steve Jones and rookie Jimmy Foster the only other guards, although Fly Williams moved to the backcourt a bit last week from his forward spot.

The Nets, 7- 4, battling Kentucky for first place in the East, present one of the more talented lineups in basketball to complement Erving, who is averaging about 27 points a game as he shoots for his third consecutive ABA scoring title. Larry Kenon, 6- 9, is the other forward the Spirits must stop while husky 6- 10 Billy Paultz is at center and speedster Brian Taylor and rookie Al Skinner are in the backcourt with John Williamson and Mike Gale.

Denver, 7- 1 after last week's play, is the surprise leader in the West as Coach Larry Brown has completely reversed the team from the plodding, power club of a year ago to a run, run, run offense and pressing defense led by All Stars Mack Calvin and Ralph Simpson and rookie Bobby Jones.

McGinnis, perhaps the strongest man in basketball at 6- 8, 235 pounds of muscle, is also one of the greatest players in the game with quickness to match his strength. He also is averaging in the high 20s with about 14 rebounds a game. With him will be Dr. Dunk, Darnell Hillman, and hot- shot rookie Billy Knight.

Next Tuesday Owens will make his first return to St. Louis since the trade with the Sounds. The 6- 10 center has helped Memphis with several high scoring games inside to complement the great outside firepower of Rick Mount, the former Purdue star.

Between the action on the court, the Spirits take time off Thursday for a bit of fun-- the selection of 10 Spirettes, who will represent the Spirits during games and off the court in promotional duties. The girls will be selected by a panel of celebrity judges in downtown St. Louis at 11:30 a.m. with Eighth St. blocked off between Olive and Locust Sts. The public is invited at no charge.

Mizzou's Galbreath honored

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Tony Galbreath has done it again.

For the second straight week, the new running sensation of the Missouri Tigers was named Big Eight Conference offensive football player of the week by a panel of sports writers today. Galbreath's selection was unanimous.

Galbreath did a little of most everything in Missouri's 52-15 victory last Saturday over Kansas State and a lot of rushing. He carried the ball 32 times for a career high of 194 yards.

Galbreath threw two passes from his halfback position for 51 yards, including a 20-yarder to Mark Miller for a touchdown. In addition, he scored on a seven-yar run and caught three passes for 14 yards. His second pass led to a Tiger field goal.

"Tony Galbreath was a second team fullback during the spring," said Missouri Coach Al Onofrio. "He looked okay but he didn't look great. We tried him at tailback this year, and he took to it very well."

Vince Gibson, the Kansas State coach, praised Galbreath.

"That Galbreath is a heckuva player," said Gibson. "What a fine player he is."

Galbreath himself has little to say about his performancces. He likes to let his actions on the field speak for him.

Other nominations on offense were Dave Greenwoo of Iowa State, Laverne Smith of Kansas, Dave Humm of Nebraska, Terry Kunz of Colorado, Stan Ross of Kansas State, Steve Davis of Oklahoma and Gary Clouber of Oklahoma State.

Gary Spani, a freshman linebacker at Kansas State, was selected defensive player of the week by a unanimous vote. He was the first freshman ever named on defense in the Big Eight.

Spani, making his first start of the season, had 21 tackles, including 10 unassisted.

Missouri 27 point underdog!

NEW YORK (AP) — "We're going after the Big Ten championship."

No, the speaker wasn't Ohio State's Woody Hayes or Michigan's Bo Schembechler. That was Michigan State's Denny Stolz sounding a warning to the two Big Ten giants after his Spartans beat Wisconsin last Saturday.

"Don't give me any of that Big Two and Little Eight business," Stolz snapped.

The Spartans are only 3-1-1 in Big Ten play to 5-0-0 for coleaders Ohio State and Michigan, but they're taking dead aim at Ohio State this weekend at East Lansing.

"We're gonna be ready for it," Stolz promised. "We're gonna be there. Then we'll see what our chances are."

For those who think the Spartans have two chances — slim and none — remember that Ohio State's last regular-season loss was to Michigan State ... in 1972 ... at East Lansing.

But, snorts Ohio State's Woody Hayes: "Jinxes don't belong in football. I've broken jinxes wherever I've been." It says here Woody will come home a 31-14 winner Saturday.

Last week's score was 44 right, 19 wrong and two ties for .698. Two of the three Upset Specials came through — Florida over Auburn and Washington over UCLA. The season count is 372-144-14—.721.

Upset Special of the Week ... Georgia 24, FLORIDA ⅛⅞: "We can't be stopped now," says Florida fullback Jimmy DuBose. But Georgia has only been held under 24 points once all season and Florida's coming off that emotional win over Auburn.

Oklahoma 34, Missouri 7: "Missouri is the best football team we've played since Texas," says OU Coach Barry Switzer.

Alabama 28, Louisiana State 14: "I think our team is just beginning to get good," says Bear Bryant, coach of the 8-0 Crimson Tide.

Michigan 27, Illinois 10: Illinois' Bob Blackman is president of the American Football Coaches Association. Oh, well, it's been a bad year for presidents.

Texas A&M 24, Southern Methodist 14: Aggies' offense is banged up but their defense is one of the best around.

Penn State 29, North Carolina State 24: Lions and Wolfpack put on a scoring circus.

Nebraska 28, Iowa State 10: Huskers think they're as good as Oklahoma, which beat Iowa State 28-10.

Auburn 20, Mississippi State 10: Who would you pick when a Tiger meets a Bulldog?

Southern California 28, Stanford 16: This pick comes to you courtesy of UCLA Coach Dick Vermeil. "If I were picking a winner, I would say I think SC will beat them."

Texas 34, Baylor 9: Longhorns must keep winning to stay in the Southwest Conference race. So, for that matter, must Baylor.

Miami, Ohio 24, Kent State 14: Tangerine Bowl, here come the Redskins.

Arizona State 35, Brigham Young 21: Cougars get whacked in the WAC.

Oklahoma State 40, Kansas State 20: Ride 'em, cowboys.

California 21, Washington 20: Cal coming off Southern Cal, Huskies looking ahead to Southern Cal.

Pitt 28, Temple 14: It's a good thing these two teams are as far apart as you can get in Pennsylvania. They don't like each other.

Army 17, Air Force 14: Falcons are flying low this year.

Yale 28, Penn 24: Quakers were too peaceful against Harvard last week.

Vanderbilt 24, Kentucky 21: Commodores in line for a bowl bid ... if they win.

Archery hunters warned

PUXICO— The archery deer season at Mingo National Wildlife Refuge is off to a good start this fall, but the failure of some hunters to sign in and out as required is causing some problems, reports Refuge Manager, Jerry Clawson.

"The main purpose of the sign- in requirement is to give us an estimate of how many hunters use the area," Clawson stated, "but the sign- in sheets also help us to find a hunter in an emergency."

"Twice this fall we have received calls asking for help in locating hunters. In one case the daughter of a hunter was ill, and the father was needed at the hospital; but either he had changed his mind and was hunting elsewhere or had forgotten to register. In any case we spent several hours trying to locate him without success."

When going hunting for the day, it makes good sense to leave word of where you are, with whom you are hunting, and when you expect to return home.

"Also," adds Clawson, "When hunting on the Mingo-Duck Creek Area, please have everyone in the party sign in and out!"

Day care center opens

NEW MADRID — The New Madrid A-B-C Playskool, a state licensed day care center at 936 Davis Street was opened Monday by Mrs. Helen Tollison.

Mrs. Tollison has had five years experienced and training in the pre-school education field as head teacher and ccoordinator in the Head Start program. She also has 55 college credit hours towards a degree in early childhood education.

The center is licensed and has facilities for the care of 15 children ranging in ages from two to eight years.

Planned daily educational activities, nutritionally balanced hot lunches and morning and afternoon snacks are provided at the center.

Mrs. Tollison said she aims at teaching the youngsters a sense of order and routine. A daily schedule of activities includes quiet play periods with puzzles, crayons, books, easel painting, cutting with scissors or block building.

Swings, bars, large wheel toys, musical games and exercises are some of the outside recreational activities.

Mrs. Tollison is assisted by Mrs. Donna Gibson of Kewanee in the operation of the center which is opened Monday through Friday from 7 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

Workday begins early for executive housekeeper

By ALICE JACKSON

Executive housekeeper since 1968 at Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston, Sybil Wathen's work day begins early. She sees the night shift employes before they leave at 7 a.m. Supervising a housekeeping staff of 24, she is at the hospital five days a week and is on call at any time.

Going through a work day with Mrs. Wathen involves much walking. She checks areas from x-ray to lobby to pediatrics. She jots down supplies to be ordered and checks equipment for repairs or replacement. Mrs. Wathen pauses to answer a question from a hospital visitor, then checks out a specific complaint from a patient.

Housekeeping works around the schedules of the other departments, and this requires coordinating with department supervisors. She notes what her staff is doing as she moves from floor to floor.

Several technical schools,, colleges and universities now offer training in hospital houskeeping. Mrs. Wathen values this education.

"I learned on the job," she said. "Previously, I had worked as a housewife, records keeper and had done general office work. All these were helpful. But I had never handled people, just books and money.

"Personnel management is important and must be on an individual basis, I've found. I hire all the people on my staff. I explain what is expected in the particular job, go into detail about the health reports that must be kept and emphasize how their work will be evaluated.

"They need to know I care, that I'm here to help with the problems that come up," she remarked.

Other areas of importance that are part of housekeeping are safety, maintainence, economics, environmental control, infection control and interior decoration.

Mrs. Wathen is a member of the National Executive Housekeepers Association. The association requires members to attend institutes to keep up to date in techniques and products.

"These sessions are good, as the leader will be an expert. I learn from other housekeepers as we talk over problems.

"The parts of my work I enjoy most and like least? The first is easy to answer. Working with people. For an employe to improve — to know I helped — this is great! I don't like having to fire anyone. Always unpleasant, too, is finding work undone.

"Exectuvie housekeeping was a man's field until the last 10 years. And the men still make better salaries than women having the same responsibilities."

Mrs. Wather's comments on being a working wife and mother: "My husband Charles and sons Paul, 10, and John, 8, help at home. Charles appreciates the satisfaction working gives me. And he appreciates my paycheck, too! An understanding family makes a good job better."

28 more banks to receive funds

JEFFERSON CITY — State Treasurer James I. Spainhower has announced that the number of banks qualifying for merit funds under provisions of the Missouri model for the investment of inactive state funds has increased by 28 in 1974 over 1973 to 52 banks which will share in the $25 million deposit that will remain in the merit banks for a period of one year.

The banks will pay the state the market rate of interest for the investments. Last year only 24 banks qualified and shared in a $15 million distribution of merit funds.

The 52 banks receiving these deposits were chosen from more than 200 applicants and met the rigid qualifications outlined by the state treasurer's office.

"The merit funds program was set up to encourage banks to make more loans for the betterment of their communities," Spainhower said.

Spainhower said the banks named as merit fund recipients show a particularly strong community involvement, considering the tightness of the current money market. "I believe the increase in qualifying banks indicates that the incentive factor of this program is working as well or better than we expected," he stated.

"The merit funds program is designed to place inactive state funds in any Missouri bank which has demonstrated, through both kind and degree of its loan activity, an above average service to its communnity and the state," Spainhower explained.

"The fact that just over 25 per cent of the banks applying for merit funds qualified indicates the special kind of service these banks are providing their own community and the state," Spainhower added.

Kneezle retires from service

PAINTON - Donald E. Kneezle retired from the Air Force Oct. 1 and is making his home in Painton.

Kneezle started his Air Force career at Lackland Air Force Base at San Antonio, Tex., and held the rank of technical sergeant at the time of his retirement after 20 years of service.

Kneezle and his wife Irene are the parents of four children, Kirk, 16, Janet, 15, Cynthia, 11, and Karen, 8. The children are students in the Bell City schools.

Kneezle is the son of Mrs. Earl Kneezle of Painton and the late Earl Kneezle.

The Kneezles are members of the Advance Assembly of God Church, and both Mr. and Mrs. Kneezle are employed at the Inland Shoe Co. factory in Advance.

During the time Kneezle was in service, he spent two years in Southeast Asia, one year in England and two years in France, where their daughter Cynthia was born. His last station was Homestead Air Force Base in Florida.

Usury laws may be part of legislative session

JEFFERSON CITY - It now appears the state's usury law may be a part of the predicted special legislative session to begin the latter part of November.

Usury laws are simply those which deal with interest rates lending institutions can charge for money. But the definition is about the only thing that is simple.

Missouri first passed an interest rate ceiling in 1891. Its main purpose was to keep those who needed to borrow money from being charged unfair amounts of interest.

Missouri's present usury law was passed by the legislature in 1948. It allows a maximum of eight per cent to be charged on loans, except for loans to corporations and certain other exceptions.

Now lending institutions in Missouri say it costs them more in interest to borrow from the federal government than they can in turn charge their customers to borrow from them. The result is many lending institutions are not making personal loans within the state and are contracting out-of-state where usury laws set a higher limit or none at all.

Missouri's eight per cent rate is among the lowest of Midwestern states. Most states in the area have set the rate at 10 per cent, and in some of these, there are moves to raise it even higher.

A seven-member study commission was appointed by the governor last year to look into the present law. That commission held hearings in Kansas City, St. Louis and Columbia, as well as receiving written reports from throughout the state.

During early March of this year, the committee submitted its report to the governor. However, it was not made public until more than a month later.

The governor claimed the report was incomplete, a charge hotly denied by the commission chairman, Murray Weidenbaum, a consulting economist to the First National Bank of St. Louis and a college professor.

That report recommended that interest rates be increased to 10 per cent. but the legislature was only days away from its close and no action could be taken.

With increasing inflation, money problems have only increased since the first of the year. The governor then asked his director of the Department of Consumer Affairs, Alfred Sikes to study the problem.

Sikes' recently released report included a recommendation to raise interest rates to 10 per cent. But it also included a recommendation to abolish the so-called "points" charged to home buyers. "Points" are figured as one point to one per cent of the loan. In effect, these points have raised interest rates on home loans above the maximum eight per cent.

Many who support an increase in the interest rate were happy to hear about the proposed increase, but disappointed about the recommendation to abolish points.

Several legislative leaders say they simply have not made up their mind about a change in the interest rate. Some feel strongly that a change should be made, and others feel just as strongly that a change is not needed now or that it should be considered in the regular session which begins in January.

If it is considered in a special session, there will be many long nights of hearings and many witnesses will be questioned. Some legislators feel a special session will not give them enough time to fully consider the many ramifications of any change.

But it appears some change will be made at least by next summer.

Ghost entertains

2 bound over on weapons charge

NEW MADRID — Two men charged in separate cases of exhibiting dangerous weapons were bound over to Circuit Court for trial after they waived preliminary hearings in Magistrate Court before Judge William L. Ragland.

Charles Asa of Canalou is charged with exhibiting a .22-caliber pistol on Oct. 19 in a rude, angry and threatening manner on complaint by Walter Ellison. Asa posted $500 bond on the charge.

Willie Lee Hicks of New Madrid is charged with exhibiting a shotgun in a threatening manner on Oct. 28 in the presence of Hazel Collins. Hicks has been released under $500 bond.

Verlin Lee Ford was levied a $125 fine, given a six-month suspended jail sentence and placed on probation for one year for driving while intoxicated.

Lloyd Miles and Mae Lenn were fined $25 each for public intoxication.

Assessed $50 fines each were Verlon Leroy Douglas, public intoxication; Calvin Kent Tillman, no operator license and defective brakes; and Rodger Dale Ervin, expired vehicle license, no operator license and careless and imprudent driving.

William Earl Rickman paid a $40 fine for peace disturbance by fighting and using loud and profane language. Others levied $40 fines were Jackie Marie Patton, no operator's license, and Bobby Joe Quinn, failure to stop for stop sign.

Other cases and fines included: Charles Gregory Runnells, speeding, $28; Virgil Aaron Miller, failure to register on transfer of plates, $25; and David Franklin Smith, improper registration, $20.

Extension members entertain children

The Merry Mixers Extension Club of Wyatt and Charleston hosted a party for the Severely Handicapped on Halloween in the classroom of the Bertrand elementary school.

The club was organized in 1969 and its first assignment was with the handicapped youth in Oct. 1970. Each year since the club has continued to entertain the children and won a state award for the project last year.

The club members decorated the room and set up several little houses containing all kinds of treats. To begin the party, each child chooses his own mask, then they are required to knock on the door and say, "Trick or treat". Some who never talk will say the words.

Club members who hosted the party were Caroil Johnson, Betty Darnell, Faye Moxley and Joan Freezor.

After being entertained by Ovaline Davis, one of the children's mother dressed as a ghost, they were served pumpkin cupcakes and lemonade. Also helping with the party was Mrs. Freezor's son Matthews.

Sixteen children attended the Severely Handicapped School in Bertrand. There are two teachers, Victor Rogers, who is in charge of the primary age children, and Reubie Huckstep, who works with the older ones, and two teacher's aides, Joyce McClendon and Virginia Greenwood.

Funds slated for 4 state region

KANSAS CITY - Close to $1 million has been allocated for continued operation of employment and training programs for low-income, elderly persons in the four-state Mid-America region, a Department of Labor spokesman said today.

Neal B. Hadsell, head of the regional Manpower Administration office in Kansas City, said $573,554 has been earmarked for programs in Missouri, $116,171 in Kansas, $155,551 in Nebraska and $145,314 in Iowa.

The funds -- part of a $19.9 million nationwide allocation of Comprehensive Employment and Training Act Title III monies -- will go to five program contractors.

The five are Green Thumb, Inc., the National Council on the Aging, National Council of Senior Citizens, National Retired Teachers Association-American Association of Retired Persons and the Forest Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Each of the contractors provides a variety of work in the public sector -- mostly in beautification and restoration, although work in libraries, schools, hospitals and other municipal and county agencies will also be available.

The Inflation Fighter

Do-it-yourself auto repair

If your car is in good shape it will get much better fuel economy. This means regular tune-ups, changing oil and oil filter, keeping the spark plugs clean as well as similar "carekeeping" measures — mainly minor things, but devastating if left unattended. It's false economy to let them go as long as the car is still running.

Many car owners have learned to get around garage costs by taking care of minor maintenance themselves. This includes people with no mechanical ability.

Many local colleges and high schools have inexpensive auto maintenance courses for the public.

Hate to iron?

If you hate to iron, congratulations. The ongoing energy crisis gives you a perfect excuse to give it up as a bad habit. A hand iron takes as much energy as 10 100-watt light bulbs, which means you have to turn off a lot of lights to make up for ironing a single shirt.

A commercial laundry isn't the answer, because the energy will still be used and it won't help your inflation budget a bit.

But seriously consider the merits of "no iron" items. Properly treated, they can reduce ironing to almost a miniscule amount. Use the right setting on your washer and dryer and remove clothes promptly so wrinkles don't set.

If you must iron, do it logically — low temperature items first, and all of it at once, not a bit each day. Turn your iron off before you're completely finished — so you don't waste that stored energy.

Minimizing food costs

Food prices won't go down just because we don't like them. So concentrate instead on checking labels to get the most value for your money.

Unit pricing can be a big help: In addition to the cost of the item, supermarket shelf labels should tell you the price per ounce, pound or quart.

Then look at the item's label. Some manufacturers list the percentage of principal ingredients in the product. So if there's more sugar than wheat in the cereal you're buying, you will know it.

To defrost or not to defrost

If you're thinking of buying a large freezer to help out with the food budget, consider the pros and cons of the frost-free model before you do. Admittedly more convenient, this model uses about 50 per cent more power than the type you have to defrost yourself.

If you choose the latter model, remember to defrost it before the ice gets too thick — 1/4 inch. Ice lessens the cooling power of the coils. Defrosting more frequently will also lessen the chance of spoiled food from long defrosting periods.

Budget steak treats

How can you stretch your meat budget and still have tasty, tender steaks? The answer can be found in a single, simple word: marinate.

Instead of buying the most expensive cuts of meat — the ones marbled with fat that doesn't help your waistline anyhow — buy less expensive, leaner cuts such as flank and round steak. Marinate these for 24 to 48 hours in a vinegar-and-oil mixture.

You can use less marinade, and get an overall better effect, by adding just enough of the mixture to cover the meat in a small plastic bag. Seal the bag and keep it in the refrigerator. Remember to turn it a few times.

When you're ready to eat, drain the steak and broil as usual.

Rockefeller contributions termed startling

HILLSBORO – "It is startling to learn that vice presidential nominee Nelson Rockefeller has made substantial financial contributions to numerous national leaders serving under President Ford, as well as many serving in the Congress," 10th District Rep. Bill D. Burlison said today in remarks at Jefferson College.

Burlison recalled that, upon President Ford's announcement that he would nominate Rockefeller, he publicly expressed serious reservations about the selection because of conflicts of interest issues revolving around the enormous wealth of the Rockefeller family.

Burlison said the presence of these two issues, plus the revelation that the Rockefellers financed a "dirty trick" biography on Arthur Goldeberg at the time he was running against Rockefeller for governor of New York, makes it absolutely essential that the House Judiciary Committee continue a very broad and in depth investigation of Rockefeller's qualifications.

The Cape Girardeau Democrat said he would reserve final judgment as to his vote on confirmation until the House Judiciary Committee has completed its exhaustive hearings.

Food stamp probe marks beginning

JEFFERSON CITY — The current investigation of the St. Louis food stamp program represents the beginning of a comprehensive two-year overhaul of Missouri's welfare system, according to state Department of SocialServices officials.

Lawrence Graham, director of the department, announced that his office and others at the state level were beginning an investigation of the St. Louis food stamp program amidst considerable hoopla on Oct. 23.

That investigation, expected to last three months, will involve caseworkers from the social services department and investigators from the state auditor's office in the painstaking task of re-certifying all non-public assistance food stamp recipients in St. Louis, an estimated 6,000 to 7,000 persons. During recertification, recipients will be run through a photo identification process designed to prevent any possible misuse of the stamps.

Department officials say the scope of the investigation will not be extended beyond St. Louis proper until the work there is completed. But it eventually will happen, and Graham has promised that every welfare case in the state will be re-investigated by July, 1976.

"Misuse of state funds is excusable, whether it be through honest mistakes or fraudulent intent," Graham said when he announced the investigation. "All we're trying to do is make our department accountable, and clear up our records so everyone can have a fresh start."

Ewing Gourley, director of the Division of Family Services, said the investigation of the food stamp program was being conducted to insure that "eligible people receive exact benefits."

Gourley noted that because food stamps are a form of currency they could be sold by the person entitled to use them to ineligible persons. To that end, he said, he is supporting better bookeeping and records system which will keep the main office in Jefferson City better informed.

Gourle said the pilot project will play a part in finding any bogs in the new management structure his office wants to impose in St. Louis.

Any cases found during the investigation which have an extraordinarily high error will be turned over to investigators for further study. These errors will be identified in the same manner as the Internal Revenue Service identifies unusual tax returns. A normal case will be set and, when any individual case exceeds it, the individual case will be targeted for further investigation.

Missouri's food stamp program became uniform state wide only in the latter part of June of this year when the last counties still using the surplus agricultural commodities were switched to food stamps.

Some commodities still are issued in Missouri, but they are earmarked for special programs such as children's nutrition programs, or for certain state institutions.

Paul Spicer, head of the state's food stamp program, said his latest figures show 286,939 Missourians in 100,352 households are receiving food stamps.

Federal guidelines issued every six months determine how much a family must pay in actual dollars to receive food stamps with a greater dollar value.

As an example, Spicer, said a family of four with a net income of $500 a month or less is eligible for $150 worth of food stamps per month.

Breast cancer poses threat to men as well as women

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — About 32,750 women will die from breast cancer in 1974 but few people know the disease will also kill about 250 men, a Philadelphia physician says.

And because breast cancer is so rare in men, they may not recognize it or become concerned when they notice lumps on their chest, says Dr. Paul A. DeMare, associate professor of radiation therapy at Philadelphoia's Thomas Jefferson University Hospital.

DeMare estimates there are about 700 new cases of male breast cancer every year in the United States.

"It never crosses the mind of a man who finds a lump in his chest," he told the American Society of Therapeutic Radiologists' convention Sunday. "In fact, he may not even know there is such a thing."

DeMare said doctors often overlook the possibility of male breast cancer though tumors are the main cause of lumps in the male breast.

Diagnosis is often delayed for months or even years and may be one reason men have only a 50-50 chance of living five years after breast cancer surgery, he said.

DeMare said that two-thirds of the men treated for breast cancer are more than 65 years old.

DeMare said the surgery is the about the same in both sexes — removal of the breast tissue, underlying muscle and nearby lymph nodes.

The symptoms are a lump or open sore near the nipple, a retracted or inverted nipple, and in some cases a discharge, he said.

Stringbean slayers sentenced to prison

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)— One year ago Saturday night, lanky David Akeman, better known to country music fans as "Stringbean," shuffled onto the Grand Ole Opry stage in his trademark costume, an over-long shirt stiched to shortened trousers at his knees, a straw hat and a banjo.

He bobbed his Adam's apple and drawled his opening line: "How sweet it is."

Stringbean, 57, a star of the television series "Hee Haw" and an Opry regular, sang two of his favorite songs that night, "Y'all Come" and "I'm Going to the Grand Ole Opry and Make myself a Name." The audience, as usual, called him back for an encore.

Three hours later, Stringbean and his wife were dead, murdered at their farm near Nashville.

Two weeks later, on Nov. 28, news of another double murder rocked the country music world.

James Widener, 55, a rhythm guitarist in Hank Snow's Rainbow Ranch Boys Band, was found shot to death in a North Nashville alley. Sprawled across his legs was the body of a female companion, Mrs. Mildred Hazelwood, Laguna, Calif.

Last week, two men were convicted of the Akeman murders and sentenced to 99-year terms in the Tennessee State Prison. A third man was convicted in the Widener case.

On Sunday morning, Nov. 11, 1973, L.M. "Grandpa" Jones, another "Hee Haw" and Opry regular and Stringbean's long-time friend, drove to the Akeman farm to meet Stringbean for a hunting trip. He found the frost-covered body of Estelle Akeman, 59, lying in the grass 30 yards from the house.

Stringbean's banjo was propped in the doorway of the three-room farmhouse. His body lay sprawled face-down in the entrance.

A year later, a criminal court jury found John A. Brown Jr., 24, and his cousin, Marvin Douglas Brown, 23, guilty of the Akeman murders.

After deliberating 2½ hours, the jury recommended 99-year concurrent prison terms. Criminal Court Judge Allen Cornelius ordered that they run consecutively. Each man will be eligible for parole in 30 years.

In the Widener case, Maurice McKinney Taylor, 30, St. Louis., Mo., was convicted by a criminal court jury. He was tried the same week as the Browns in a courtroom across the hall. He too was sentenced to 99-years in the state prison.

Police said the Akemans were murdered as they surprised burglars ransacking the house when the couple returned from the Opry. Testimony in the week-long murder trial confirmed that robbery was the motive.

Stringbean had been shot once in the chest, and his wife gunned down as she tried to flee.

On Jan. 16, after two weeks of speculation and rumors about impending arrests, police arrested Marvin and John Brown.

When the bodies of Widener and Mrs. Hazelwood were discovered, she had no jewelry and his wallet and car were missing.

The search for Widener's belongings led to Memphis, where motel and airline employes had reported men trying to use Widener's credit cards.

Byrnes Store, the last building to identify the now vanished town of Birds Point, is being torn down by owner Clint Hutcheson. The store was built in 1970 by Jefferson David Byrne and closed during the summer of 1973.

Old store reminds of by-gone days

By JOAN FEEZOR

BIRDS POINT — Byrnes Store, the last store building where the town of Birds Point once stood, is being demolished by owner Clint Hutcheson.

The store building was built in 1907 by Jefferson David Byrne, according to Robert Byrne, his son.

The elder Byrne originally had a store about half a mile closer to the river but, because of the river's actions, he moved the store building, split it in half, and made two separate buildings out of it. He then erected the store building presently being demolished.

The store, which closed in the summer of 1973, was a general mercantile store in the earlier days that stocked everything from barrels of flour to horse collars and farm equipment. A large warehouse in front of the store was used for storage of the farm equipment.

During his reminiscing Byrne's son stated, "At one time my Father's store employed four full-time clerks and one delivery boy who did nothing but deliver groceries.

"The river was so high one year that the flood water was almost up to the front porch roof," he recalled "and the boats would pull right up to the roof and the customers would get right out."

Birds Point, the first settlement in Mississippi County, was founded in 1805 by Abraham Bird, who also founded Cairo, Ill.

At one time Birds Point was a center of activity. All freight to Charleston came by way of the community. The Iron Mountain Railroad had a depot here, and the Cottonbelt Railroad built a large train turntable. Barges carried the trains across the Mississippi River.

"I would say that there were between 1,500 and 2,000 inhabitants," Byrne estimated.

"There were two hotels in town — the Kendrick and Beckwith. I'll never forget them," he added.

The town of Birds Point ceased to exist after having been washed away around 1908 by floodwaters from the river on whose banks it was situated.

With the tearing down of the old Byrnes Store, all that remains of the town of Birds Point is a name, some history and lots of memories.

350 Jaycees attend mock legislative session

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP)—The Missouri Jaycees wound up their annual mock legislative session here Sunday by approving a bill raising the state's usury rate from eight per cent to 10 per cent.

Proposals to either raise or limit the interest rate on loans will be considered in a special legislative session. The governor says he will call the session for Nov. 18 or 19.

About 350 Jaycees attended the weekend convention.

A right to work resolution, opposing the closed union shop, was passed by the mock House but was not acted upon by the Senate.

The jaycees approved other mock measures allowing counties to sell general obligation bonds for industrial development, setting up a licensing board for the practice of acupuncture, establishing standards for treatment of animals in kennels and pet shops, and restoration of full citizenship to a state corrections inmate when he is paroled.

Robert Wilkins of Clinton was named the outstanding senator and the outstanding Jaycee legislator. Steve Amick of Jefferson City was named the outstanding House participant.

Given trophies for debate were Chuck LaJuenesse of Farmington and Clay Hunter of Sikeston in the Senate and leroy Taylor of the state penitentiary, in the House.

Diehlstadt man gets suspended jail sentence

Charles Albert Milam of Diehlstadt received a 90-day suspended jail sentence and was placed on one-year probation during Magistrate Court proceedings Tuesday in the city courtroom for Oct. 6 knife assault on Leo McCormick.

The assault occurred at the Wagon Wheel tavern, 849 W. Malone Ave., during an argument between the two men. McCormick was hospitalilzed with knife wounds in the abdomen following the assault. One condition of Milam's probation requires him to pay McCormick's hospital bill totaling $335.

James Benjamin Hall of Cape Girardeau was bound over to appear in Circuit Court Nov. 14 for possession of hashish.

Laura Reynolds of Piedmont Star Route was given a 30-day suspended sentence and placed on two-year probation for cashing a bogus check.

An attorney was appointed to defend Jerry Lee Summers, 230 Felker St., against a charge of cashing a bogus check.

A charge of selling alcoholic beverages after closing hours against Geneva Applewhite was continued to Nov. 12.

HOUSEBOAT LIVING NOT ROMANTIC

AMSTERDAM (AP) — Life aboard a houseboat may seem romantic, but acute housing shortage rather than romance is the main reason thousands here have taken to the water.

Amsterdam boat dwellers in the past were retired sailors. Now, families and young people figure prominently in the city's floating population which has risen sharply since World War II.

The capital has approximately 2,500 houseboats moored along the river Amstel and on about 100 canals. An estimated 1,100 of these have not been registered with the city authorities and therefore exist illegally. However, because of the housing scarcity, there is rarely any move against the occupiers.

Ashcroft has no plans

ST. LOUIS (A[illegible] Traditional Republican [illegible]wer in St. Louis County ero[illegible]d somewhat during Tuesday's general election as George Lehr rode Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton's coattails to victory in the race for Missouri state auditor.

"I appreciate the help of Eagleton, but I'm glad I didn't call on any other state or federal official to go on tv for me," said Lehr, 37-year-old executive of Jackson County.

With 96 per cent of the state's precincts reporting, Lehr had 598,907, or 53 per cent of the vote, to 524,056, or 47 per cent, for his Rrepublican opponent, incumbent John Ashcroft, 32.

In St. Louis County, where Ashcroft had hoped for 65 per cent of the vote, Republicans apparently split their tickets, electing Republican Gene McNary as county supervisor, and Eagleton. In the crossover, Lehr received 47 per cent, or 126,492 votes.

As expected, the Democrat was impressive in Kansas City and St. Louis. He polled 68 per cent of the ballots cast here and 63 per cent and 65 per cent respectively in Kansas City's Clay and Jackson counties.

He said he had no future plans, other than serving out the remaining two months of his term. "I didn't plan to lose," he explained.

California, N.Y. oust Republicans

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats ousted Republicans from the governorships of New York and California but apparently lost Ohio in a squeaky-close race.

Democrats also won a half-dozen other governorships and were left in solid command of the nation's statehouses, giving them strong influence over the machinery for choosing the president in 1976.

California elected Democrat Edmund G. Brown Jr. after eight years of the conservative administration of Gov. Ronald Reagan. Brown, 36, will be the state's youngest governor in 119 years. He beat Houston Flournoy, the state controller and a former college professor.

In New York, Nelson Rockefeller's hand-picked successor Malcolm Wilson was beaten convincingly by the Democrat, Rep. Hugh L. Carey. Carey's victory ends 16 years of Republican control of the governorship under Rockefeller and Wilson.

In the only major Democratic loss of a governorship, Ohio Gov. John J. Gilligan today trailed former Gov. James A. Rhodes, the Republican, by a scant 13,406 votes out of more than 3 million cast, with unofficial returns virtually complete.

Rhodes had conceded the race to Gilligan on the basis of earlier returns. A recount is considered certain and could take weeks.

The lead in Kansas teetered between Democrat Vern Miller, the state attorney general, and Republican State Senate president Robert F Bennett.

Democrats went into the election with a 32 to 18 hold on the governorships and were emerging with their domination approaching 36 of the 50 states.

Democrats took over GOP-held statehouses in Colorado, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Oregon, Tennessee and Wyoming as well as in the two biggest states.

In the 10 states with half the nation's population and half the electoral votes for president, Democrats sealed their seats in eight and conceded Michigan to the GOP.

But the Republican candidate took the South Carolina statehouse for the first time in a century.

The governorship of Alaska, now held by a Democrat, was in limbo with leads swinging back and forth as the tabulation wound to an end.

The Arizona statehouse turned Democratic for the first time in eight years. Raul Castro, 58, a former envoy to Bolivia, won in his second bid for the office.

There was no doubt that GOP losses born of low scandal and high inflation washed through state capitals as well as the nation's capital.

The statehouse gains gave Democrats control over thousands of state patronage jobs and the machinery to raise money and votes for the party's 1976 presidential nominee.

By force of numbers, Democratic governors also gained influence in choosing the presidential candidate.

George C. Wallace overwhelmed his Republican challenger in Alabama with an 85 per cent victory margin for an unprecedented third term. "I do have plans" for 1976, he told an interviewer.

Florida Gov. Reubin Askew won re-election and a boost for his national aspirations with a solid margin over Republican Jerry Thomas, who was president of the state senate as a Democrat but switched parties two years ao.

The Democratic sweep led Ella T. Grasso into the Connecticut statehouse, the first woman ever to be elected a governor without following her husband into the office.

New York and California dominated the gubernatorial picture because of their size and influence and because in both cases, longtime Republican control came to an end.

A congressman from Brooklyn for 14 years, Carey, 55, upset the party organization candidate in the primary election. But he took no radical stands on the issues. He is Irish Catholic and a widower with 12 children.

Jerry Brown, son of former California Gov. Edmund G. (Pat) Brown, was born to politics, launched his own career by identifying himself with liberal causes, then solidified his party strength during three years as secretary of state.

Maine went its own way and rebuffed both major party candidates, electing political newcomer James B. Longley who ran as an independent and promised to cut the cost of government.

Longley, a 50-year-old insurance executive, described his victory as "a message that will be heard around the country."

Of the 35 gubernatorial contests, Republicans clinched only three early victories but clung to hopes of three more as tabulation continued in tight races in Kansas, Ohio and Alaska.

Departing from the 100-year Democratic tradition, South Carolinians sent Republican James B. Edwards, 47, to the statehouse.

The loser was Jennings Bryan Dorn.

Democrats make clean sweep in Stoddard

BLOOMFIELD - Democratic candidates in Stoddard County made a clean sweep in Tuesday's general election when all state and county candidates won by sizable margains.

Democratic incumbent Thomas Eagleton won over Republican Tom Curtis by a vote of 3,360 to 1,682 in the race for U.S. Senator. Clifford E. Talmage tallied 20 votes.

Democrat George W. Lehr beat out incumbent state auditor John Ashcroft by 3,164 to 1,770.

Democrat Bill D. Burlison won over Truman Farrow for the representative from the 10th Congressional District by a vote 3,843 to 1,128.

Democratic incumbent Jerry Howard of Dexter, representative from the 157th district, won over Republican candidate Verlan Beacham of Bernie by a vote of 1,714 to 1,038.

In the only two country races, Democrat Jimmy Trammell of Dexter defeated incumbent Probate Judge Koss W. Blomeyer of Bloomfield by a vote of 3,238 to 1,620.

Incumbent County Clerk John Marvin Capps of Dexter easily defeated his republican opponent, Bob Beal of Essex by a vote of 3,679 to 1,192.

Democratic candidats elected with no opposition were Flake McHaney, circuit judge of the 35th Judicial District; C. F. Cline for Rep. of the 159th District; Ermer Garner, presiding judge of the County Court; Jack Ward, county judge from the First District ; Harold E. (Pete) Snider, County Judge, Second District; Charles Corbin, circuit clerk; Fredia Lee, recorder of deeds; Phillip Ayers, prosecuting attorney; and Gary Dowdy, surveyor.

Coal officials struggle to avert nation-wide strike

WASHINGTON (AP) — With a coal strike a virtual certainty, industry and union negotiators are pressing for an early settlement that would shorten the length of the predicted walkout.

Both sides scheduled another bargaining session for today after a Tuesday night counterproposal from the United Mine Workers.

UMW President Arnold Miller said the union proposed a "comprehensive contract package" which, if given quick approval, "will prevent a prolonged shutdown of the nation's mines."

Guy Farmer, chief negotiator for the Bituminous Coal Operators Association, said serious differences between the union package and what the industry offered Monday need to be resolved.

The on-again, off-again negotiations were recessed Tuesday night to give the coal operators a chance to study the 150-page union proposal. The session ended amiably in contrast to Monday night's meeting, which broke up when Miller walked out without notifying the operators. He said they had made a strike unavoidable.

Both sides concede that a strike is inevitable and the question now is how long it will last.

"I want to make an agreement," Farmer said. "I assume they do, too."

The steel, railroad, automobile, chemical and electric power industries, all heavily dependent on coal, would be the first to feel the effects of a walkout.

The government estimates that a month-long strike would throw anywhere from 200,000 to 400,000 workers out of jobs.

Layoff notices went up Tuesday at the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Co. and the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway Co. in expectation of a mine strike. A spokesman said he did not know how many of the 38,000 employed by the two railroads would be affected. Ten per cent of the revenues of the nation's railroads come from hauling coal.

The UMW contract with companies that produce two-thirds of the nation's coal expires at midnight Monday, but a strike is expected to begin unofficially Saturday with the end of this week's final production shift.

The union says it will take about 10 days to ratify a tentative contract settlement and has ruled out extending the old contract.

Farm price of beans drop; consumers don't get decline

WASHINGTON (AP) — The farm price of dry beans, traditionally a high-protein food source for poor people, has tumbled sharply, but middlemen are not passing much of the decline along to consumers, the Agriculture Department says.

The farm price of beans in Michigan, for example, dropped 30 cents per pound, from a peak of 51.5 cents last March to 21.5 cents in September. But the retail price declined only 12.3 cents per pound from its high of 81.5 cents last spring to 69.2 in September.

Production of dry beans is estimated by USDA at a record harvest of 22 million hundredweight this year, up 31 per cent from the short crop in 1973 which led to the price boost.

The analysis of middleman spreads for beans was included in a vegetable situation report by the department Tuesday. It said "there is clearly a long distance to go before retailers return to more familiar shelf price in relation to commodity cost."

In February 1973, before the bean crunch developed, a one-pound bag of beans nationally sold in retail stores for 25.7 cents, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics. At that time, farmers got 11.1 cents per pound.

Michigan and California are the leading dry bean producers, but the crop is important in a dozen other states.

"A price consideration that most manufacturing users must be alert to is that low prices paid to growers this season could prompt a shift away from beans to corn and soybeans in the spring of 1975," the report said.

Republican hopes turned back

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Republican hopes to increase their minority in the state Senate were being turned back by Democrats Tuesday night as early returns began to come in slowly.

Returns for the 99 contested House races remained sketchy late in the night.

Democrats, who currently hold a 21-13 margin in the upper chamber, were out front in district's they now control and two challengers were running ahead of Rqepublican incumbents.

Former Missouri Public Service Commission attorney Harry Wiggins held a 1,300-vote lead over two-term incumbent Republican Lem T. Jones in Kansas City's normally Republican 10th District with 24 per cent of the vote counted.

In northwest Missouri, five-term Democratic state Rep. Hardin Cox of Rock Port held a 3,500-vote margin over freshman GOP Sen. William Esely of Bethay with 79 per cent of the precincts reporting.

A close race was developing for the seat of retiring Republican Sen. Don Owens of Gerald, as Democrat Marvin Dinger of Ironton held a slim 400 vote margin over Republican Ralph Smith of Union with 45 per cent of the vote in.

In a hotly contested race to succeed long-time Senate Democrat Earl Blackwell of Hillsboro, Democratic Rep. Clifford Gannon of DeSoto held an 1,100-vote lead over Festus attorney William Weier with 44 per cent of the precincts reporting.

DEFAMATION CHARGES have been filed by a niece of the late Pope Pius XII, Countess Elena Rossignani, against the makers of a controversial movie, "Massacre in Rome", which alleges the Pope failed to prevent the massacre of 335 Italians during the Nazi occupation. The author, Robert Katz of Brooklyn, and director George Cosmatos, are being tried in a Rome court which may suppress the movie if it decides in the Countess's favor.

Democratic candidates carry Mississippi County

CHARLESTON - Democratic candidates on the state and district level, the only ones challenged in Tuesday's general election, carried Mississippi County by a wide margin, according to an unofficial count of the ballots Tuesday night.

Voter turnout was low, apparently prompted by the lack of competition for county offices. Approximately 6,800 persons are registered in the county, and about 2,500 ballots were cast.

Democratic Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton received 1,809 votes to Republican Tom Curtis's 640 votes in the senate race. C. E. "Cliff" Talmadge, running on the nonpartisian ticket, picked up eight votes in the county.

George Lehr, Democratic candidate for state auditor, received 1,788 votes and his Republican opponent John Ashcroft, the incumbent, polled 558 votes in the county.

Rep. Bill D. Burlison received 2,022 votes in his bid for re-election to the 10th District congressional seat. Hisopponent, Thurman Farrow, collected only 370 votes from Mississippi Countians.

A total of 2,025 votes were cast for Fred DeField of Charleston, unopposed in bid for re-election as state representative from the 160th District.

Republican Francis Hulshof of Portageville got eight votes and incumbent Democratic State Rep. Fred E. Gene Copeland of New Madrid received 63 votes in the Mississippi county portion of the 161st District.

Constitutional amendment No. 1, which provides that persons over 18 registered within the time prescribed by law are entitled to vote in all elections, carried in Mississippi County by a vote of 1,613 to 454. Amendment No. 2 which authorizes indebtedness by municipalities and counties for industrial development upon two-thirds majority vote and the issuance of revenue bonds by cities with majority approval, also was favored in the county by a margin of 1,087 to 585.

Mississippi Countians also approved the initiative ballot, which provides for a new campaign financing and election law, by a 1,238-801 margin. The judicial ballot, which would return Judge William H. Billings to the Missouri Court of Appeals in the Springfield District, was approved by a wide margin of 1,478 to 423.

Travis "Corky" Shelby Jr. of East Prairie was elected with 2,062 votes to a four-year term as a member of the board of trustees of the Mississippi County Health Department.

Two persons were to be elected and Shelby was the only candidate to file. An unofficial count of write-in votes for the position indicates that Mrs. Linda Stockton of Charleston will fill the other vacancy.

Votes cast for county offices included:

Ralph Adkisson, presiding judge of the County Court, 1,965; Lindsay Hurley, associate judge of the first district, 1,136; Teddy Bennett, associate judge of the second district, 914; T J. Brown Jr., probate and magistrate judge, 2,048; Loretta Smith, circuit clerk, 2,029; Arthur Lee Goodin, county clerk, 2,064; Eddie Graham, prosecuting attorney, 2,050; Mary Jean Simmons, collector, 2,063; and Faye Elliott, treasurer, 2,051.

PUBLIC NOTICES

INVITATION FOR BIDS

The City of Charleston, Missouri, will receive bids for the construction of water system improvements, including water lines, water treatment plant modifications, and appurtenances, in Charleston, Missouri, until 5 p.m. (Prevailing Central Time) on the 19th day of November, 1974, at the City Hall, at which time and place all bids will be publicly opened and read aloud.

There will be a Pre-Bid Conference held at 10:00 a.m. (Prevailing Central Time) on the 12th day of November, 1974, at the City Hall, Charleston, Mo.

Bids are invited upon the several items and quantities of work as shown in the Tabulation of Bid Quantities, all items must include unit prices for all items and quantities of work.

The contract will be administered by the City of Charleston, Missouri, or its duly authorized representatives.

Montly partial payments, in cash, will be made to the Contractor for the total value of work completed to date and materials properly stored on the site less: 1) 10 per cent of the total amount, to be retained upon final payment; and 2) the amount of all previous payments.

Contract documents, including drawings and technical specifications are on file at the office of the City Clerk, City of Charleston, Missouri, and at the office of R. W. Booker & Associates, Inc., (Engineer) at 1139 Olive Street, St. Louis, Missouri 63101. Copies of the contract documents may be obtained by depositing $35.00 with R. W. Booker & Associates, Inc., for each set of documents so obtained. Each such deposit will be refunded if the drawings annd contract documents are returned in good condition within 15 days after bid opening.

A certified check or bank draft, payable to the order of the City of Charleston, Missouri, negotiable U. S. Government Bonds (at par value), or a satisfactory bid bond executed by the bidder, and an acceptable surety, in an amount equal to 5 per cent of the total of bid shall be submitted with each bid.

Attention is called to th the fact that not less than the minimum salaries and wages as set forth in the contract documents must be paid on this project, and that the Contractor must insure that employees and applications for employment are not discriminated against because of their race, creed, color, sex, or national origin.

The City of Charleston, Missouri, reserves the right to reject any or all bids or to waive any formalities in the bidding.

Bids may be held by the City of Charleston, Missouri, for a period not to exceed 30 days from the date of opening of bids for the purpose of reviewing the bids and investigating the qualifications of bidders, prior to awarding of the contract.

Safeway Brand Bakery Products Are OPEN-DATED for Freshness!

Safeway Brand Foods Carry Easy-to-Read Dates that Help Insure Their Freshness!

On and off the shelves in a matter of hours. That's how fast our perishable foods (such as meats, eggs, coffee, bakery and dairy foods) sell at Safeway. Even so, the perishable foods that Safeway manufacturers or processes carry open dates which can be checked by our employees (and customers) to make extra sure no package is overlooked.

Shown at the right, for example, is the date on a package of Safeway coffee. When the numbers "1-15" appeared, our employees knew the package was not to be sold after January 15. Being positive no package remains on our shelves after the printed date insures that all Safeway coffee you buy will remain fresh and good for many more days after you take it home.

Group to dig at refuge

PUXICO — The archaeological club of Southeast Missouri State University will be at Mingo National Wildlife Refuge Sunday, weather permitting. The archaeology group, under the supervision of Professor Scott Grantha, has been investigating the Bluff Road Indian Mound in recent years and has provided tours of the site during the fall tour season.

The auto tour has been a popular attraction again this year, according to refuge manager Jerry Clawson. Most people visited the refuge during the latter part of October, Clawson noted, sometimes creating crowded and dusty conditions. November is a better time to see wildlife. Waterfowl populations are building and, with less traffic, opportunities for observing deer and turkey are also improved.

The tour begins at refuge headquarters, one and one-half miles north of Puxicco, and is open on Sunday afternoons during November. The tour will be routed down the Bluff Road and end at Highway 51 near the ol schoolhouse this month, the opposite direction from the October route.

Mingo National Wildlife Refuge is administered by the Fish and Wild-life Service of the U.S. Department of the Interior.

KIRKPATRICK TO SEEK RE-ELECTION

Secretary of State James C. Kirkpatrick became the first Missouri candidate to file for re-election in 1976.

Mrs. Eula Huss, chief clerk in the Secretary of State's office, appeared pleased as Secretary Kirkpatrick signed the filing form.

"We are following our pattern of previous years in announcing our candidacy," Kirkpatrick commented. "Having done that, we intend to devote all our efforts to doing a good job as Secretary of State. We won't begin our actual campaigning until well into 1976.

"We would like to continue making improvements in the office to provide the best service possible. This would include recodifying Missouri election laws, computerizing the corporations division, providing increased protection for Missouri investors and implementing changes in all divisions.

"We came into office with many ideas for modernizing it. Improvements have been achieved in election administration. We are offering prompt and courteous service to the business community. Four million tax dollars have been saved by efficient records management. With each change, we have identified other areas which need improvement.

Four Freedoms

The "Four Freedoms" expressed by President Franklin D. Roosevelt in his State of the Union message to Congress on Jan. 6, 1941 were: the freedom of speech and expression; the freedom to worship God in his own way; the freedom from want and the freedom from fear.

Bangladesh famine termed nightmare

Associated Press Writer

DACCA, Bangladesh (AP) — Death, disease and starvation in Bangladesh have created a 20th century nightmare that shows no signs of going away.

"It's here. It's happening, just as Malthus predicted 150 years ago," said a foreign economist.

He was speaking of Thomas Robert Malthus, the 19th century British economist who theorized that population would increase up to the limits of subsistence — and would then be kept in check by famine, pestilence and general human misery.

That, according to a consensus among diplomats, international relief workers and even some Bangladesh officials is exactly what is happening in this Florida-size country of 77 million that was the province of East Pakistan until the 1971 India-Pakistan War.

It is the world's eighth most populous country and, except for some small islands, the most densely populated. The population is growing, after subtracting deaths—which normally total 1.3 million a year, by 2.2 million people a year, a staggering 3 per cent annual increase. The current annual population growth in the United States, is less than 1 per cent.

Bangladesh has an average of 1,400 persons crowded into each of its 55,126 square miles, nearly double the density of Japan. The United States has only 58 people for each square mile.

There is a severe famine throughout the country. The most conservative diplomatic estimates say 750,000 persons will likely die of starvation or diseases related to malnutrition from August through November this year. Some foreign economists anticipate a famine-related death toll of one million.

The period ranges from early August when floods destroyed about 300,000 tons of the summer crop, to early December when the winter crop will be harvested.

For all practical purposes, Bangladesh has run out of food. There are no more reserves to give the population a minimum subsistence diet. The government also is short of money to import food.

Diplomatic sources say that Bangladesh had arranged last summer to import about 400,000 tons of food. But it could take delivery at the time of only 50,000 tons because it had insufficient funds to honor letters of credit for the rest.

The result is death for many and misery and physical and mental retardation for those who survive, especially babies whose brains have been permanently damaged by severe malnutrition.

Bangladesh requires 12.5 million tons of food grains this year. The government estimates a crop no larger than 10 million tons.

To help fill the gap, the government has arranged for imports of 600,000 tons for the last quarter of 1974 — either through foreign gifts or commercial purchases. But the bulk of the food is not expected to arrive until after Nov. 15, too late to save hundreds of thousands.

Starting Nov. 1 the more than five million persons who rely on government ration shops will receive only five pounds of food grains a week per adult, or 11.4 ounces a day. Previously the ration was six pounds per week.

"And we can't reduce the food grain rations any more, unless you have some substitute or additional foods such as meat," said A. M. Khan, the Bangladesh food secretary.

For large sections of the population the only substantial food comes from the government-supplied food grains. These people have no money to buy meat or fish or even rice that might be available on the open market,

Rice now costs the equivalent of $1 for a kilogram, or 2.2 pounds, four times the price six months ago. In a country where the average per capita annual income is only $67, the current price of rice is what many Bangladeshis earn in a week. The per capita annual income in the United States is about $4,400.

What alarms many foreign observers is that this year's famine does not appear to be a temporary natural calamity that will disappear if there is a good food crop next year.

"We have what seems to be a permanent problem in Bangladesh, and that is what gives the Malthusian theory relevance here," said another foreign economist. "The problem is intertwined with high prices, low purchasing power and population growth. And then everything is aggravated further by smuggling."

Authoritative sources say that the widespread smuggling of food grains into neighboring India in the past year has cost Bangladesh at least one million tons of rice — more than enough to prevent mass starvation in the next six weeks.

According to the Bangladesh government's own estimates it also has lost at least 400,000 bales of jute — out of a total production of six million bales this year — across the border.

Both Indian and Bangladesh officials say it is impossible to closely patrol the 1,350-mile border but when Bangladesh was East Pakistan, the border was sealed and there was no known smuggling of any sizable proportions.

The loss of jute means the loss of millions of dollars of desperately needed foreign exchange. Jute last year earned the country $330 million of its total exports of $397 million. This year jute is expected to account for $440 million of export earnings that the government hopes will reach $500 million.

But Bangladesh requires $1.5 billion to pay its import bill. That leaves a gap of $1 billion that Dacca hopes the international community will fill through foreign aid.

Since Bangladesh became independent 34 months ago, it has received $2 billion in international assistance, including $500 million from the United States, either through grants or long-term loans.

What has especially disappointed — and angered — international representatives has been the officially acknowledged corruption that has permeated Bangladesh along with black marketeering of scarce commodites and hoarding of food grains.

The prime minister, Sheik Mujibur Rahman, continually acknowledges these evils by declaring his intention to crack down on corrupt officials. But there is no sign that the sheik's pronouncements have had any effect. Bangladesh has fisheries, natural gas, forest and what one official says is the agricultural potential to grow 50 million tons of food grains a year."

Bangladesh also may have deposits of offshore oil. It has given oil exploration rights to several foreign companies in recent months.

Daily Standard
Sikeston, Missouri 63801

Dear Charlie:

On behalf of the Sikeston Jaycee Little League Football Program, I would like to thank you and the Daily Standard for furnishing team rosters for the spectators at no cost to the League. One of the primary reasons that this program has been successful is that interested businesses and individuals have given so freely of their time and money.

We would also like to publicly thank the three other sponsors for their participation: Bank of Sikeston, Daily Standard, and National Lock. I am sure that the boys that participated in the League appreciate the opportunity to play organized football, and that their parents realize that without all of the sponsors, that this League would not have been possible.

Sincerely,
Steve Sikes

What's the law?

The case of the fairy tale

By: JACK STRAUSS,LL.B.

When youthful Bobby was sentenced to the pokey, he found prison life an unbearable sexitence. Almost every inmate in the lock-up began making eyes at him. What's more, they weren't interested in just holding hands with him either. In fact, they repeatedly beat him when he doggedly rejected their advances.

The result? Fearful Bobby, with the aid of other sympathetic prisoners, escaped from the prison. His freedom, however, was short lived. He quickly fell into the hands of the police. And worse, he was charged with the additional crime of jail breaking.

"I had no choice," insisted Bobby in court. "The inmates at that prison were after like I was Raquel Welch. I just couldn't take the abuse and beatings any more."

"That's no excuse for breaking jail," responded the prosecuting attorney. "If it were, there's be a rash of escapes justified by tales of fairies."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you excuse Bobby's jail-break of his fairy tale?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that while there have been other cases holding to the contrary, the time has come for the state to take reasonable precautions to protect inmates who are victims of rampant sexual assaults that been prevalent in prisons.

When a man breaks jail, however, and he claims that he did so because of constant sexual attacks, it's no defense unless he can prove it. In this case, concluded the judge, Bobby's sympathetic inmates were believable witnesses in his behalf.

Mary Tyler Moore tries hand at directing

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "It's not one of our great shows. But the comforting thing is that even our worst shows are better than most of the other series that are on television."

Mary Tyler Moore was letting it all hang out. The show she referred to was "A Boy's Best Friend," and it marked her debut as a director. She was frank (modest?) about its quality, but she left no doubt about her pride in the series itself, "The Mary Tyler Moore Show."

The CBS Saturday night romp remains a television phenomenon. Not only does the show itself maintain a consistently high quality of comedy, but her MTM Enterprises has also spawned winners in "The Bob Newhart Show," "Rhoda" and "Friends and Lovers."

Since she and her husband, Grant Tinker, head the enterprises, there is no need to ask how she got the job as director. But why?

"Last season we had a couple of directors on the show that were—well, less than exciting," she said in her trailer-dressing room at CBS Studio Center after a strenous dance lesson.

"I thought about how hard all of us in the cast had to work in directing ourselves, without hurting the directors' feelings.

"Then a few weeks ago I was in Grant's office and we were talking with Arthur Price (MTM executive) about a show that was coming up. 'You know,' I said, 'I think I'd like to direct.'

"They spun around and said, 'Good for you!' 'Terrific!' And so I was committed."

The production staff had to plan carefully for Mary's directorial debut, fashioning a script in which her acting duties were minimal.

The story concerns Ted Baxter, the pouter-pigeon TV announcer, and his discovery of his mother's plan to be married.

"Ted completely falls apart," the star-director related, "He is a hypochondriac anyway, and now all of his oedipal instincts well up and make him a complete wreck.

"Then he gets a call from his mother—we never see her in the show—saying that she isn't going to get married after all; she's just going to live with the man. That destroys Ted altogether."

The show is resolved when Ted has a man-to-man talk with his mother's suitor, who turns out to be a mild little 80-year-old who is only seeking her happiness.

The segment will appear Nov. 23.

Mary admitted that she had some trepidation about directing because "I'm not a leader; I'm a joiner, a listener, a reactor."

Taking charge of a set was "alien to my nature, and I kept asking myself, 'Am I up to it?'

"Finally I just did what I do in acting. I knew what was expected of me and what I expected of the other actors.

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB

DIGESTION DESTROYS IT

Oral lecithin won't help

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — Is it true that lecithin taken by mouth is of no value to the body? Also, is it difficult for the body to make use of the protein that's taken in tablet or powder form? Must vitamins be taken with food if they are to be used by the body?

Dear Reader— The numerous questions about lecithin no doubt mean that it has again been well publicized in popular health magazines. Many of these publications do not have any qualified medical authorities on their editorial board, unlike scientific journals used by the medical profession.

Your question puts the finger on the real problem about lecithin. Some scientists think that phospholipids, of which lecithin is one, in the bloodstream help to maintain the solubility of blood fats. This may be helpful in preventing atherosclerosis. However, the important phospholipids in the bloodstream are manufactured by our own body. That is the only way they can get there. Taking lecithin or foods containing lecithin by mouth does not accomplish the same effect. The digestive juices, pancreatic juice and bile salts split and tear down fats and alter the food we eat. Lecithin is broken down before it is absorbed through the digestive wall into the blood.

Many good research studies done in test tubes, or similar experimental situations have nothing to do with lecithin taken by mouth. Many popular reports of such research fail to distinguish between what happens in the test tube as opposed to what happens to swallowed lecithin. Such reports in health publications for the general public lead to great confusion and misunderstanding.

The body does need a small amount of polyunsaturated fat which helps the liver in its function of producing the phospholipids. You can get the small amount that's needed through proper diet without resorting to lecithin tablets, which does not prevent atherosclerosis.

The best example I know of the action of the digestive juices on things we swallow is to point out that insulin, which is a natural hormone, is of no value if swallowed. The digestive juices destroy insulin, so it has to be injected by needle, as diabetics know.

The body needs only enough protein to replace lost body cells or to grow new ones — the latter is particularly important during the growth stage. Additional protein is converted to carbohydrates and used for energy or stored as fat.

If you ate a well-balanced diet, you shouldn't need additional vitamins. Unfortunately, many people do not eat a well-balanced diet, and for them a simple all purpose vitamin capsule each day isn't a bad idea.

This is not an endorsement for the large doses of vitamins that some people take. It is necessary to have some fat in the digestive tract to absorb fat soluble vitamins, but it's almost impossible to avoid it. Food moves slowly through the intestine, and there is plenty of fat in a normal diet. Hence, there is usually enough fat in the intestine for vitamin absorption any time during the waking hours.

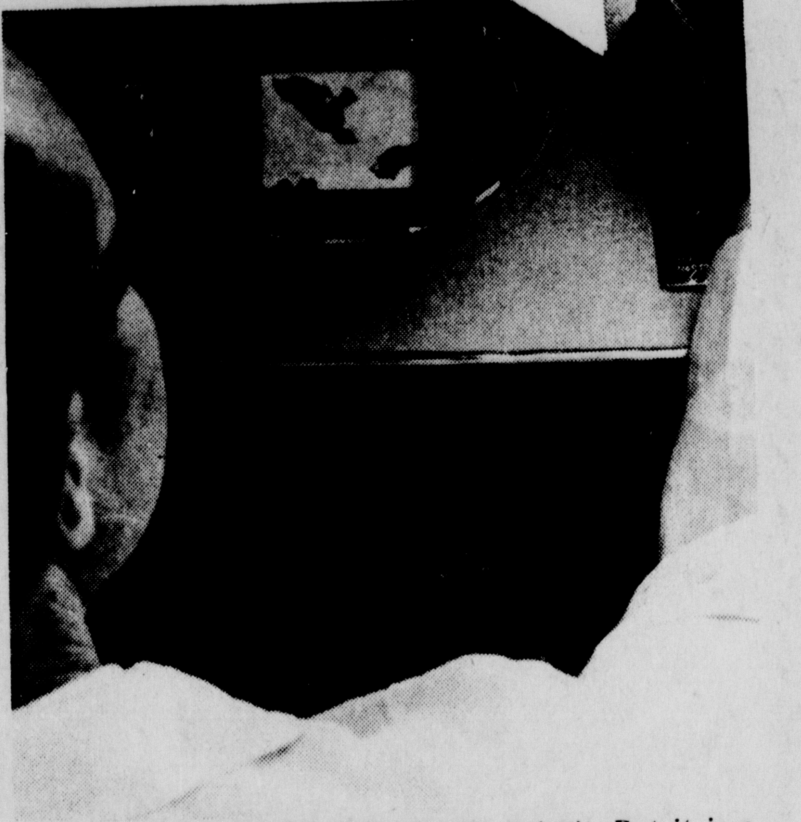

CHART TO BURIED TREASURE it isn't. But it is a "map" of the inside of a piece of glass, magnified 10,000 times by an electron microscope operated by Dr. Fred M. Ernsberger, senior scientist at the Harmarville, Pa., glass research center of PPG Industries.

BY SHIRLEY PRITCHETT

EAST PRAIRIE -- Tired of fixing the same hum drum meals each evening? Most of us reach that point at one time or the other but hesitate to try something new for fear that our meat and potato lovers will turn up their noses.

Try a change of pace once in awhile though and introduce your family to dishes with foreign flavor, and use your imagination to turn the dinner hour into a festive occasion.

A red checkered tablecloth, centered with a candle in a wine bottle, will set the mood for an Italian dinner, for example. While spaghetti is almost as American as apple pie, try this recipe for Italian meat sauce as a variation from the one you have been using. Pour over hot, cooked spaghetti and serve with a crisp salad and crusty bread.

ITALIAN MEAT SAUCE

1 pound ground beef
one medium onion, chopped
two cloves of garlic, minced
1 (28 oz.) can tomatoes, cut up
1 (16 oz.) can tomato paste
¼ cup snipped parsley
one tbsp. brown sugar
1½ tsp. dried oregano leaves, crushed
one tsp. salt
¼ tsp. dried thyme leaves, crushed
1 bay leaf

Combine beef, onion and garlic in dutch oven and cook till meat is browned and onion is tender. Drain off excess fat, then add cut up tomatoes, tomato paste and other dry ingredients.

Simmer uncovered about three hours, or until thick stirring occasionally. Remove bay leaf and serve.

If the old standby, meat loaf, isn't eaten at one meal try this:

SHORT CUT PIZZA

1 pkg. cheese pizza mix (for one pizza)
½ tsp. dried oregano leaves, crushed
¼ tsp. garlic powder
two cups crumbled left over meat loaf
1 (3 oz.) can sliced mushrooms, drained
1 (4-oz.) package (one cup) shredded pizza cheese

After preparing the pizza dough, roll it out to fit a 12-inch pizza pan and place in greased pan; crimping edges.

Blend oregano and garlic powder and pizza sauce (from mix); spread over dough, then cover with crumbled meat loaf and mushrooms, followed by the pizza cheese.

Sprinkle the grated cheese (from mix) over the top and bake in a 425 degree oven about 20 minutes or until crust is done.

TOMATO-SAUCED POLENTA

½ lb. ground beef
2 tbps. chopped onion
½ clove garlic, crushed
1 (16-oz.) can tomatoes, cut up
1 (8-oz.) can tomato sauce
1 (3-oz.) can sliced mushrooms, undrained
2 tbps. dried oregano leaves, crushed
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ tsp. dried thyme leaves, crushed
1 small bay leaf and polenta

In large sauce pan, cook ground beef with onion and garlic till brown; drain off fat and add one third cup water and remaining ingredients except polenta.

Bring to a boil, reduce heat and simmer uncovered for 1¼ hours or till thick, stirring occasionally. Remove bayleaf.

Serve over squares of polenta and pass parmesan cheese, if desired.

POLENTA: Place two and one-half cups water in saucepan and bring to a boil. Combine one and one-half cups yellow cornmeal, one and one-half cups cold water and one and one-half teaspoons salt.

Stir into boiling water and cook till thick. Cover and cook over low heat about 45 minutes, stirring occasionally. Spread in 8x8x2-inch baking dish. Cool thoroughly,then cut into six pieces.

Brown the pieces in butter till golden brown, about five or six minutes on each side.

KONIGSBERGER KLOPS

1 (2-oz.) can anchovy fillets
5 slices dry bread
1 cup milk
1½ cups chopped onion
2 tbps butter or margarine
2 beaten eggs
1½ tsps salt
¼ tsp pepper
1 lb. ground beef
½ lb. ground veal
½ lb. ground pork
¾ cup sauterne
¾ cup water
1 bay leaf
4 whole cloves
4 peppercorns

2 tbps all-purpose flour
¼ cup cold water
1 lemon, very thinly sliced
1 tbps capers
1 tsp salt
Hot cooked noodles and snipped parsley.

To desalt anchovies, soak in cold water to cover about 20 minutes; drain well. Soak bread in milk. Cook onion in butter till tender but not brown. Combine eggs, anchovies, bread mixture, onion, salt and pepper. Add meats; mix well. Form into large meatballs (klops).

In very large skillet, combine wine, water, bay leaf, cloves and peppercorns. Add meatballs. Cover; simmer 25 to 30 minutes.

Remove meatballs and strain liquid. Return liquid to skillet and blend flour and one-fourth cup cold water till smooth. Stir into hot liquid; cook and stir till mixture thickens and bubbles. Add lemon slices, capers and salt. Cook about two minutes longer.

Arrange meatballs on platter of noodles and pour sauce over all. Garnish with parsley.

KIMA

(Pakistani recipe)

1 lb. ground beef
1 cup choppedf onion
1 clove garlic, minced
2 tomatoes, peeled and cubed
2 raw potatoes, peeled and cubed
1 (10-oz.) pkg. frozen peas, broken apart
2 tsps curry powder
1½ tsp salt
dash pepper
flaked coconut

Hot cooked rice

Combine meat, onion and garlic in skillet and cook till beef in browned. Pour off fat and stir in remaining ingredients except coconut and rice.

Simmer covered for about 25 minutes or till vegetables are tender. Sprinkle with coconut and serve with the hot rice.

MOLDED GUACAMOLE

(an avocado dip from Mexico translated into a ring mold and perfect for a buffet supper)

1 (3-oz.) pkg. lemon-flavored gelatin
1½ cups boiling water
1½ cups mashed avocado
½ cup sour cream
½ cup salad dressing
1 tbps chopped onion
dash of tabasco sauce
½ tsp salt
lettuce

Dissolve gelatin in boiling water; cook. Combine remaining ingredients and mix until well blended. Stir in gelatin; pour into one-quart mold and chill until firm.

Unmold; surround with lettuce and garnish with sweet cherry peppers, if desired.

Coffee Corner

by Cherie

I've been watching the democrats and the republicans mess things up for a long time now and I've come to the conclusion that what we need in this country is another party made up entirely of women. Now, I'm not pushing for woman's lib or any of that nonsense, and I don't think all men are male chaunovists, (maybe just a few) or anything like that either; but I do think the men have been at the helm of our country for an awfully long time and now that they've shipwrecked her I think it might be best if they turned her over to the ladies and let them get her back off the rocks and patched up and floating again.

For instance, I think Henry K. must be a wonderful fellow. I mean all those stories and finally capturing a woman seven inches taller than he, goes to show he's bound to have something going for him — but, I think that could be the problem — he's not negotiation our foreign affairs with a broad — but, abroad and that could just be where some of the problems lies. Seems to me instead of promising all those foreign powers something else if they would just settle down and be good and not start any more skirmishes, seems to me it would just be simpler to say "One more bang out of you buster and we're cutting out all the goodies we've been sending you for years immediately, and where's that gonna leave you!"

Or, I can understand one slip by a sweet young thing and I don't mind helping her out, but, you can't tell me that the second time around she tripped again, and I think the ladies that know all about such nonsense would say, "Sorry sister, but once is enough, now you get busy working and supporting these babes yourself and you'll be so tired when you come home in the evening you won't have the time or energy for any more of that slipping around!!"

And, I believe having had to live on pretty close weekly budgets themselves the girls might be able to cut the politicians expense accounts way, way down and convience them quickly that any hanky panky like cavorting in the "Ole Mille Stream" would be considered personal expenditures for after all, just how personal can one get?

Course, I believe we women would quickly realize that only those paying a portion of the taxes should be allowed to vote, any idiot knows I will spend your money freely, but have you ever seen me part with my own until I've debated the issue good and proper?

Plus, I am amazged at the amount of government employees we employ — most gals only have help once a week and I bet somebody could cut that list of numbers down to half in a month and probably get more done as they wouldn't be falling all over each other getting in the way!

And, government programs like (this is the truth) checking out the accidents caused by kids riding tricycles — if they're all that bad just take the wheels off the market — viola!

Then, we get to taxes and there I get livid — my advice to the world there, or I should say to middle class America who seems to be the only poor son of a guns who pay them — is arise and refuse to pay till everybody pays the same amount on the dollar — I mean lets face it fellows, there just aren't that many jail cells to put us in; and then who is going to pay for the foreign powers, the welfare, the padded expense accounts, the unnecessary help, the idiotic programs designed to hire more unnecessary help — might be interesting — hmmmm? Come on fellas, give us a chance, it's a cinch we couldn't do any worse!!!

By the way, has anyone thought that marking charge accounts illegal might bring a screeching halt to all this inflation bit in a hurry — and that might prove interesting too — ????

PLANTATION PARTY TREAT

Makes 6 servings

½ pt. whipping cream
¼ cup confectioners sugar
2 tablespoons rum
One 9-oz. pkg. frozen cinnamon swirl French toast
3 bananas

Pour whipping cream into chilled bowl; beat until soft peaks form. Gradually add sugar and rum; beat until stiff.

Prepare French toast in toaster or oven according to package directions. Peel bananas and cut in half crosswise. Cut each half in half lengthwise.

To serve, top each toast slice with 2 pieces of banana and a dollop of whipped cream. Garnish each with a maraschino cherry.

Sorority chapter shares tasting tea favorites

Xi Zeta Alpha Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi sorority is sponsoring its annual "Holiday Tasting Tea" from 3 to 5 p.m. Sunday in the Security Federal Savings and Loan Association community room.

The public is invited to come and taste dishes prepared by the members. A small fee will be charged, and recipes of the dishes will be available for a fee.

The chapter sponsors and supports many projects throughout the year.

Beta Sigma Phi is an international organization for women offering opportunities for friendship and development of cultural appreciation and community service. The Greek letters stand for life, learning and friendship.

Founded in Abilene, Kan., with seven members in 1931 the organization now has 250,000 members.

Recipes popular at last year's tasting tea included:

BACON TOASTIES

1 loaf fresh bread (trim off crusts)
1 can cream of chicken soup
1 to 1½ lbs. bacon (thin sliced)

Put one tablespoon of soup on slice of bread. Cut bread diagonally and roll up. Wrap ½ slice thin bacon around bread and insert toothpick to hold it together. Bake on cookie sheet at 350 degrees until bacon is crisp.

Serve hot.

WILD RICE

½ lb. link sausage, chopped into small bits
1 cup chopped onion
½ cup chopped green pepper
½ cup chopped celery
1 cup uncooked wild rice (wash well)
1 small jar chopped pimento
1 can cream of chicken soup
1 can cream of mushroom soup
1 (12-oz.) can of button mushrooms, plus liquid. (if four 3-oz. cans are used, use less liquid.)
1 cup grated sharp cheddar cheese

Fry small sausage bits until brown and pour off grease

Saute onion, green pepper and celery.

Mix all ingredients together and place in casserole dish. Add one-half cup grated sharp cheddar cheese and mix with rest.

Sprinkle another one-half cup grated cheese on top. Cover and bake at 300 degrees for one hour.

SPICY CRANBERRY PUNCH

Two-thirds cup sugar
1 six-inch stick of cinnamon, broken
2 tsp. whole cloves
2 tsp. whole allspice
¼ tsp. salt
1 qt. cranberry cocktail juice
1 (No. 2 size) can pineapple juice
Ginger ale, or one lemon-lime soda for cold punch or one-quart tea for hot punch.

Combine sugar, spices, salt and juices. Simmer 10 minutes, then strain.

For cold punch, chill and add ginger ale just before serving.

DATE-NUT PINWHEELS

½ cup shortening
1 cup brown sugar
1 egg
1¾ cups sifted flour
½ tsp. soda
½ tsp. cream of tartar
½ tsp. salt
1 tbsp. cream
½ tsp. vanilla

Mix shortening, brown sugar and egg. Sift together flour, soda, cream of tartar and salt; and stir in cream and vanilla.

Divide dough in two parts. Roll each piece into 1½x7 inch rectangles. Spread with date-nut mixture (recipe follows).

DATE-NUT MIXTURE

one-third cup sugar
½ cup water

Place ingredients in pan and cook until slightly thickened. Cool and add one-half cup chopped nuts.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor,
SIKESTON STANDARD:

We are proud of Sikeston and are happy with its progress -- BUT, the present City Administration ignores the more established areas and flatly refused to give them even elementary maintenance despite oft-repeated pleas.

Yet the Administration has no qualms about asking these residents to increase their tax burden continuously.

For example, after even medium-sized rain, water stands on South Kingshighway -- only because the City flatly refuses to merely unstop the conduits going under Murray Lane, into the new Shopping Center and the City Cemetery.

This requires no great engineering feat; just dig out the accumulated mud from these pipes and clean the ditch, both of which were designed to do the job, but cannot under present circumstances. Now they dam the water (which is why we South Sikestonians damn the uncaring City Administration.)

As long as neglect and flagrant disregard for the fights and needs of established, long-suffering citizens are so blatantly ignored, does it seem reasonable to expect them to continually escalate the subsidation of these entrenched local bureaucrats that will not spend pennies for jobs they are supposed to do.

We in this part of town have to drive to other sections to even see a Sikeston maintenance truck -- which we do, just to be surethey still have those our taxes are supposed to be paying for.

Lawrence J. McClain

Dear Ron:

In regard to your Sports Corner article of October 29, 1974, I for one certainly agree that the City of Sikeston needs a full-time recreational director. When I served as a city councilman, I felt the need was there at that time as well as today.

As an example, Poplar Bluff has one of the finest recreational programs in the state involving not only boys but girls as well.

I could continue further, but just wanted you to know that I support your views on this matter which is very important to our fine city.

Very truly yours,
Lee C. Shell

Dear Mr. Blanton:

We would appreciate, very much if you will publisn the enclosed news release.

I would appreciate it if you could furnish me a copy fo the printed article, for the Area Executive Director.

Thank you

American Cancer Society News Release
Southeast Missouri Area Office
225 Sheridan
Cape Girardeau, Mo.

A grant from the American Cancer Society will help support a new telephone system to answer public questions about cancer. Opeated by the University of Missouri Medical School, the system will provide twelve recorded messages giving answers to commonly asked questions about cancer. The program is an expansion of the original "dial access" system set up for the Medical School with funds from the Missouri Regional Medical Program. The program director is Donald A. B. Lindberg, M. D., professor of Pathology and Director of the Information Science Group of the University of Missouri Medical School at Columbia. Persons living anywhere in Southeast Missouri may dial 1-800 392-0546 (a toll free number) and ask for a specific message by number. The messages and message numbers are listed below:

| MESSAGE | MESSAGE NO. |
|---|---|
| Cancer Warning Signals | 616 |
| What is Lung Cancer? | 646 |
| Cancer of the Breast: How to Detect It | 729 |
| Patient and Community Service Program | 050 |
| Cancer of the Colon and Rectum | 627 |
| Cancer of the Skin | 625 |
| Cancer of the Larynx | 059 |
| Cancer of the Mouth | 635 |
| Cancer of the Stomach | 283 |
| Cigarettes and Cancer | 209 |
| The PAP Test Saves Lives | 614 |

This new service means that answers to questions about cancer will be just a telephone call away from people in every part of Southease Mo.

"Headstart Needs a New Grantee"

I am a Headstart parent and I am so disgusted with the present administratioin of the Delta Area Headstart Program that I have both written and called the Dept. of HEW in Washington D. C. In my opinion the Grantee, the Delta Area Economic Opportunity Corp and the Headstart Director, Mr. C. B. Huber are violating Headstart Policy in order to control the money and jobs in this Federal Program. The Headstart Program was written up in such a manner as to keep local politicians from gaining full control of the program, but continuous violations of Policy eventually will give them the control they need and want. There would be no need to violate any one of the policies unless this was the ultimate goal, complete control of over a Million Dollars.

Every taxpayer in the bootheel should object to the manner in which DAEOC is violating Headstart Policies. Taxpayers pay the bills for this organization to operate and as a taxpayer that very strongly objects to the manner in which they administrate the Headstrat, I have personally talked to some officials in the Washington D. C. Office The Headstart Area Policy Council voted to seek a new Grantee, and have very good reasons for having done so. The firing of the Social Service Director, Mr. John Porter after the Headstart Board voted twice to keep him and the last time even voted to get a new Grantee. Mr. Porter was fired without even the benefit of a list of charges or a chance to answer those charges. Were they afraid to give him a hearing, afraid of the truth coming out? In this country I thought a man was innocent until proven guilty. This is just a way to gain control. The Grantee knew they could never have complete control unless they got rid of Porter, he has been with Headstart for 8 years and knows the program inside and out.

The Regional Office in Kansas City is knowledgable of these policy violatioins and yet have not made any move to see that the parents in this program are getting the benefit of their services. Mr. Huber is being paid to the tune of $15,000 a year to violate the policies in a Federal Program and I wonder what sort of salaries the people in the Kansas City Office are getting? This has got to be some kind of joke, and I think the laugh is on the taxpayers. If the parents do not get a new Grantee, the Headstart Program should be closed down in this area because it will not be worth the Federal Paper it takes towrite it upon.

We do not need a program in this area that is run by a few backroom businessmen, hiring and firing people in a very non-professional manner. I think my tax money could be much better spent than this, and hope the letters and phone calls that have gone in to Washington will bring a new Grantee to the Headstart Program in the Bootheel. Clean it up or close it down. The DAEOC Program should be closed down and Headstart given a New Grantee. DAEOC lost their funds one time and Headstart was operated by another organization very well. This would be the best answer to the whole problem.

Mr. Tony Pippen, Editor
Daily Sikeston Standard

Sikeston, Mo. 63801

Dear Sir:

I would like to call your attention to a recent press release from this agency to the Daily Sikeston Standard which named the Heritage House as the recipient of a grant of $37,128 to partially fund the Sikeston Nutrition Program.

In regard to this announcement, I would like to explain that the Federal grant mentioned will only partially fund the Senior Citizen lunch program and will provide absolutely no funds for the other important activities of the Heritage House.

The past support of many Sikeston citizens has created one of the best Senior Citizen projects in Missouri. The continued success of the Heritage House is dependent on local support from the Unitted Fund and other sources. I want to stress the fact that Federal money will only partially fund the Nutrition Program and that local contributions are vitral to the continuance of the Heritage House.

Yours very truly
Vearl Caid,
Director

Today in U. S. History

By The Associated Press

Today is Wednesday, November 6, the 310th day of 1974. There are 55 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1860, Abraham Lincoln was elected the 16th President of the United States.

On this date —

In 1792, George Washington was re-elected President.

In 1913, the British arrested Indian nationalist Mahatma Gandhi.

In 1917, New York state adopted suffrage for women.

In 1926, Benito Mussolini prohibited all opposition parties in Italy.

In 1942, a tidal wave killed 10,000 persons in India.

Ten years ago: Chinese Communist Premier Chou En-Lai surprised the world by turning up for a Bolshevik anniversary celebration in Moscow.

Five years ago: Thousands of striking workers clashed with police in Milan, Italy's largest industrial city.

One year ago: President Nixon's personal secretary, Rose Mary Woods, was summoned to testify in court about missing White House tapes.

Today's birthday: Novelist James Jones is 53 years old.

Thought for today: My reading of history convinces me that most bad government results from too much government — Thomas Jefferson.

Eagleton, Lehr and Burlison win decisively

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Missourians gave a ringing endorsement to Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton Tuesday and the senator's 243,000-victory margin seemed to have a coattail effect that nudged Republican John Ashcroft out of the state auditor's office in favor of Democrat George Lehr.

Lehr won by 73,000 with 98 per cent of the vote counted.

The Republicans had a battle but held on to the 7th District seat in southwest Missouri as Republican incumbent Gene Taylor of Sarcoxie beat Richard L. Franks, 31, former Greene County magistrate.

The Republicans lost three state senators, giving the Democrats a 24-10 margin for the upcoming legislative session, if Democrat Bob Bauer maintained his 403-vote lead over Republican Joseph Frappier in St. Louis County.

The nine Democratic incumbents in the U.S. House easily won re-election, and Missourians gave overwhelming endorsement to a campaign-financing measure requiring candidates to make public each contribution of $25 or more if they spend $500 or more on an election. The law takes effect Jan. 1.

Also approved by wide majorities were two constitutional amendments. One would make the state constitution comply with federal law on the 18-year-old vote and 30-day residency requirement for voting.

The other would allow counties, plus cities of 400,000 or more persons, to issue general obligation bonds for industrial development, upon a two-thirds voter approval. Smaller cities now have the authority. The second part of the amendment allows any incorporated city to issue revenue bonds upon a simple majority vote — rather than four-sevenths — to finance airports, municipally owned utilities or industrial plants.

The campaign-financing law passed, 700,680 to 202,925, with 93 per cent of the vote counted.

The 18-year-old vote measure passed 717,922 to 206,511 and the bond measure was approved 544,165 to 292,791 with 94 per cent of the vote in.

In the state senate races, Democrat Marvin Dinger of Ironton defeated Republican Ralph Smith of Union to grab the seat left vacated by Republican Don Owens' retirement. In Kansas City, Democrat Harry Wiggins ousted Republican Lem T. Jones, and Democrat Hardin Cox of Rock Port dumped Republican Sen. William Esely of Bethany.

Eagleton, who appealed for a big victory to "send President Ford a message" that people don't like the administration's economic policies, beat Republican Thomas Curtis, a former 18-year congressman, cut into two areas where Curtis was expected to win.

In St. Louis County, Eagleton won by 42,000 votes. In Greene County, Eagleton outpolled Curtis by 4,000.

With 98 per cent of the vote in, Eagleton totaled 706,955 votes to 463,290 for Curtis. Independent Cliff Talmage of Ballwin received 12,342 votes in the U.S. Senate race.

Lehr acknowledged that Eagleton's large margin helped him. He took St. Louis City 83,083 to 39,383, and took Jackson County, 80,675 to 42,606. In Greene County, Ashcroft won 27,950 to 14,812 with six precincts unreported.

In St. Louis County, Ashcroft hoped for 60 per cent of the vote but got 53 per cent, 142,132 to Lehr's 126,492.

With 98 per cent of the total state vote tallied, Lehr showed 612,450 to Ashcroft's 539,630.

Taylor, who won handily in 1972, got a scare from Franks, who won in Greene County, 24,626 to 18,382 with 91 of 101 precincts reporting. Taylor won in 16 other counties of the district and Franks narrowly took Webster County.

With 98 per cent of the total vote counted, Taylor showed 74,954 to Franks' 66,316.

In the 1st Congressional District, of St. Louis, Democrat William Clay was returned for his fourth term, turning back Republican Arthur O.Martin, a real estate broker.

Clay polled 61,067 to Martin's 28,530.

In the 2nd District of St. Louis County and City, James Symington was elected to his fourth term over Republican Howard C. Ohlendorf.

Symington totaled 85,982 to Ohlendorf's 55,147.

Rep. Leonor Sullivan won her 12th term, receiving 94,045 to 31,250 for Republican Jo Ann P. Raisch, wife of State Rep. William Raisch of Affton, who was re-elected, and 1,816 for Independent Marie S. Nowak.

Rep. Bill Burlison of Cape Girardeau easily beat Republican Truman Farrow of Jackson, 72-522 to 26,954 with 96 per cent of the vote in, to his fourth two-year term in the 10th District of southeast Missouri.

"I hope that my second term in the Senate will fulfill their (the voters) expectations," Eagleton said in a victory statement. "The loud message of this election nationwide was the beleaguered nature of our economy. We now have the responsibility of beginning to work on solutions to our economic ills—cutting the budget, reducing interest rates and enacting meaningful tax reform."

Ark-Mo receives 12 bids

BLYTHEVILLE Ark.-- Arkansas- Missouri Power Co. has received 12 bids from parties interested in purchasing its subsidiary, Associated Natural Gas.

Ark- Mo was ordered to sell the gas company by the Securities and Exchange Commission following the purchase of Ark- Mo in 1971 by Middle- South Utilities.

Bids submitted by the Monday deadline were from Arkansas- Louisiana Gas Co. of Shreveport, La.; Tennessee Natural Gas Lines, Inc. of Nashville, Tenn; Osage Natural Gas Co. of Salem, Ill.; Iowa Southern Utilities Co., of Centerville, Iowa; Keokuk Gas Service Co of Keokuk, Iowa; Financial Planning Associates of Danbury, Conn., and from the Commission for Municipal Pooling Services, a consortium composed of the cities of Sikeston Chaffee, Oran, Benton, Miner, Morehouse, Bertrand, Charleston, East Prairie, Matthews, New Madrid, Howardsville, Marston, Kennett, Clarkton, Holcomb, Gideon, and Malden.

In addition, individual bids were submitted by Sikeston, Kennett, Campbell, Chaffee and Malden for the purchase of facilities in the communities.

Ark- Mo President Frank G. Smith, said it will take a considerable amount of time for the firm to study and evaluate the bids. No announcements on the sale will be made until after all bids are studied, he said.

Man dies of injuries from crash

A Millersville man died early Tuesday of injuries suffered in a two-car accident on Monday, and four persons received minor injuries in two traffic accidents Tuesday and early today, the highway patrol announced today.

The death of Jerry J. Wright, 45, at 9 a.m. Tuesday in Southeast Missouri Hospital at Cape Girardeau raised this year's death toll on Southeast Missouri roads to 94, compared to 124 for the same period in 1973.

The accident in which Wright was fatally injured occurred at 9:10 p.m. Monday .2 mile north of Millersville on Route E in Cape Girardeau County. Three other persons were seriously injured and a fourth received minor injuries in the accident.

The accident occurred when a southbound car driven by Dennis M. Kraft, 16, of Jackson rounded a curve at a high rate of speed on the wrong side of the road and collided, head on with a northbound pickup truck driven by Kenneth C. Wright, 46, of Millersville.Wright's body was taken to McCombs Funeral Home in Jackson.

Two Bernie residents received minor injuries in a two-car accident at 2:35 a.m. today on Interstate 55 one and a half miles south of Howardville.

The accident occurred when a northbound tractor-trailer truck driven by Edd Arnold, 60, of Clinton, Miss., came up behind and struck the back of a northbound pickup driven by Abram Huffman, 22, of Bernie.

Huffman and a passenger, Betty Huffman, 39, of Bernie, were injured and taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston.

Two Qulin residents received minor injuries in a two-car accident at 6:40 p.m. Tuesday on Route N three miles west of Qulin.

The accident occurred when an eastbound car driven by Jesse Dale Mims, 49, of Qulin rounded a curve across the center line and struck a westbound car driven by Vicky Lynn Yeley, 18, of Qulin.

Miss Yeley and a passenger, Loris Yeley, 41, of Qulin, were injured but were not hospitalized.

Sikeston voters approve bond issue

Sikeston voters gave overwhelming approval Tuesday to a $600,000 bond issue that will finance a water treatment plant capable of doubling the city's water supply.

Democrats running for state and federal office carried seven of the city's nine precincts. The exceptions were in Big Prairie Precinct Four, where State Auditor John Ashcroft edged Democratic challenger George Lehr, 39-36, and Allen Precinct, where Republican Tomas Curtis outpolled Democratic incumbent Sen. Thomas Eagleton, 251-207.

The water treatment plant was approved 1,807-524. City officials say construction is expected to begin as soon as the bonds can be sold.

The plant, tentatively scheduled to begin operation in late 1975 or early 1976, will be located near the city steam plant on Compress Road.

Miner votes to remain village

Miner voters rejected by a 92-28 margin a proposal to change Miner from a village to a fourth class city.

The proposition had been placed on the ballot after the town board received a petition calling for the election signed by 250 people.

Mayor L. F. Wheeler said he was not surprised by the outcome, but said he thought the voting would be a little closer.

One of the reasons for changing to a fourth class city, Wheeler said, was to increase Miner's bonding power to finance a sewer system.

For Miner to get a sewer system with the bonding power of a village "would be a miracle," Wheeler said.

Matthews approves 2 bonds

MATTHEWS - City voters in a special election Tuesday gave overwhelming support to two bond issue proposals totaling $250,000 for funds to construct a city sewage system. The election was scheduled to coincide with the general elections.

The first proposal called for the issuance of $100,000 in general obligation bonds which would be repaid by taxes levied against real estate and personal property. The vote in precinct 1 was 50 yes, 8 no. In precinct 2 the vote was 97 yes, 9 no, winning approval by a total of 147 to 17.

Proposition two, which called for the issuance of $150,000 in revenue bonds and to be repaid with revenue from operation of the sewage system, was passed by a total vote of 145 to 10. Break down by precinct was: precinct 1 -- 48 yes, 4 no; and precinct 2 -- 93 yes and 6 no.

Construction is expected to begin sometime next year, and will include 24,000 feet of eight-inch clay pipe, 300 service lines, three lift stations, and a four-celled lagoon.

There will be a fixed charge of $3.75 per month for the service, but, Mayor A. W. Wagley said there will be no tax increase and the lines will be hooked directly to the house.

Zoning issue passes in Scott County

BENTON - Voting in Scott County Tuesday was heavier than anticipated by county election officials, as county voters elected an unopposed slate of Democratic county officers, heavily supported district and statewide Democratic candidates and expressed their approval of a county planning and zoning program, two constitutional amendments and a campaign financing proposition.

Incumbent U.S. Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton received 4,035 votes to easily outdistance Republican opponent Tom Curtis, who polled 1,958 votes in the county. Nonpartisan candidate C. E. "Cliff" Talmage received only 22 votes for the Senate seat.

Incumbent State Auditor John Ashcroft, who was defeated by Democrat George W. Lehr in the statewide race, also lost in Scott County. Lehr received 4,114 votes and Ashcroft polled 2,263.

Tenth District Congressman Bill D. Burlison, who defeated his Republican opponent, Republican Truman Farrow, collected 4,720 votes to 1,264 for Farrow in Scott County;

Marvin Proffer of Jackson, who was re-elected state representative for the 155th District, which covers the northern portion of Scott County and parts of Cape Girardeau and Bollinger counties, led his Republican challenger Vernon Devault by a 632-97 margin in the Scott County portion of the district.

The proposed planning and zoning program passed by an 825-vote margin, with 2,966 votes cast in favor of the issue to 2,142 against.

The purpose of the planning and zoning proposal is to develop a comprehensive plan to conserve and protect property and building values, to secure the most economical use of the land and to facilitate adequate provisions for public improvements of unincorporated portions of the county.

Fern Arnold of Scott City received 3,034 votes and Charles L. Blanton III of Sikeston collected 3,508, as unopposed candidates for the Scott County Health Center board of trustees.

Constitutional Amendment No. 1 was favored by 4,108 and opposed by 1,068 county voters to permit 18-year-old registered voters to vote in all elections.

Amendment No. 2, to authorize indebtedness by municipalities and counties for industrial development, received 3,114 votes in favor

See No. 1 page 12

Madrid okays zoning program

NEW MADRID - New Madrid County voters Tuesday favored a proposition to establish a county zoning program and joined statewide voters in giving large majorities to Democratic candidatses and approval of other statewide issues.

Approximately 43 per cent of the county's 9,790 registered voters, or five per cent above the national average, went to the polls.

Voters cast 1,718 votes for the county zoning proposition to 1,342 against for a 376-vote majority. The issue was favored in 21 precincts, rejected in 11 and tied in one.

Proposition one for a new campaign financing and election law was approved in the county by a 997-vote majroity, with 2,071 votes cast in favor of the issue and 1,074 against.

In the race for U.S. Senator, Democratic incumbent Thomas F. Eagleton tallied 3,256 votes, Republican Tom Curtis received 989 votes and non-partisan candidate C. E. "Cliff" Talmage trailed with 7 votes in county balloting.

Democratic candidate George W. Lehr received 3,037 votes in New Madrid County to outdistance Republican State Auditor John Ashcroft, who polled 1,030 votes.

In the race for U.S. Senator, Democratic incumbent Thomas F. Eagleton tallied 3,256 votes, Republican Tom Curtis received 989 votes and nonpartisan candidate C. E. "Cliff" Talmage trailed with 7 votes in county balloting.

Democratic candidate George W. Lehr received 3,037 votes in New Madrid County to outdistance Republican State Auditor John Ashcroft, who polled 1,030 votes.

Democratic 10th District Rep. Bill D. Burlison was the top vote-getter in the county. He tallied 3,617 votes to over-whelmingly outpoll his opponent, Republican Truman Farrow, who received 550 votes.

Fred E. "Gene" Copeland of New Madrid, state representative of the 161st District was re-elected by 3,080 votes over Republican Francis Hulshof of Portageville who tallied 625 votes.

Vic Downing of Brag City, incumbent state representative of the 162nd District, which includes only Anderson Township in New Madrid County, was unopposed and polled 347 votes.

County voters also favored both constitutional amendments. Amendment No. 1, tallied 2,773 favorable votes to 441 against. Amendment no. 2 was favored by 2,144 voters to 540 against.

On the judicial ballot, 2,678 county voters were in favor of retaining Judge William H. Billings on the Springfield District Court of Appeals and 394 cast negative votes.

James H. Cravens, Doyle Hicks and Annie Lee Sells were elected to the New Madrid County Health Center board of trustees for four-year terms.

Unopposed Democraticv county officials elected include:

Raymond L. Ashley, presiding judge of the County Court; John H. Calvin, first district associate judge of the County Court; J. H. Workman Jr., second district associate judge; John R. Bailey, probate judge and ex-officio judge of the Magistrate Court; Van H. Sharp Jr., circuit clerk; Jimmy Wayne Farrenburg, county clerk; Robert B. Hedgepeth, recorder of deeds; Hal E. Hunter Jr., prosecuting attorney; W. A. "Dub" Scobey, collector of revenue; and O. D. "Ode" Henning, treasurer.

Burglars take $307 worth of merchandise

Thieves took $307 worth of personal property from an apartment occupied by Gussie Brown, 1509 W. North St., according to police.

The burglary occurred between 8 o'clock and 11:50 Tuesday night.

Taken were a stereo component system valued at $100, 10 dinner rings valued at $75, an empty coin bank worth $7.50 and 75 to 100 record albums worth $125.

Police said the burglars apparently forced open the lock on the front door.

GEORGE MEANY ON DETENTE

(Part I)

The Soviet Union has been called the "workers' paradise" by those who don't know any better. But George Meany, president of the AFL-CIO, knows better.

The man who represents more workers than any other American testified recently on the possibility of the U.S. doing more business with the Soviet Union. "The labor movement has thought about it," said Meany, "and we don't want any part of it. We're not interested in seeing cheap goods made by Soviet slave labor pour into this country. We're not interested in seeing American workers displaced by slave labor."

Meany's testimony came before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in a discussion of detente. He had sharp words for American businessmen and others whose sense of humanity has been blurred by a quest for profit or the political mirage of detente.

"To American big business, it (detente) means beautiful visions of new profits and expanded markets — the old quest for the Almighty Dollar now transplanted to the land of the commissars," says Meany. "Now, I have nothing against a man making an honest buck. But what's happening here is that some American businessmen are developing a vested interest in downplaying the repressive and inhuman character of the Soviet regime — or in selling the idea that this has nothing to do with us."

Pressure is mounting to grant the USSR "most favored nation" trading status, thus allowing them to purchase particular U.S. goods as easily and cheaply as any other nation can purchase them. Meany maintains, however, that "there are no economic benefits for the United States in this deal. All the economic benefits flow to the Soviet Union. The most we can hope for are political benefits — but these are very, very doubtful."

"What I see," adds Meany, "is a one-way street in which the Soviet Union maintains all of its basic political objectives which are fundamentally antagonistic to the West, while it acquires from the West the technology it needs to help overcome the disastrous economic consequences of totalitarian planning."

Meany notes that, through the Export-Import Bank, U.S. taxpayers have loaned the USSR nearly $469 million in the past year and one-half — most of it at 6 per cent interest. "What American worker can get a loan at 6 or 7 percent? You can't get a mortgage for under 10 unless you're lucky. This isn't trade. This is an economic aid program! It's a welfare program!"

Meany emphasizes that a genuine detente, built on mutual concessions and cooperation for peace, would be welcomed by American labor and Americans as a whole.

"But that is not what we have today," he concludes. "We are not building lasting structure of peace. We are building castles of sand on the watery foundations of petty greed, wishful thinking, irresponsibility, self-indulgence, and plain old ignorance."

We do not always agree with Mr. Meany. But on the subject of detente, we believe he is absolutely right.

LIFESAVING NUISANCE

Those child-proof caps on medicine bottles and other dangerous products found around the house are a pain in the neck, frequently resisting the best efforts of adults to open them, too.

But they're doing the job they were designed to do: Saving young lives.

In the first full year that the tops were used on aspirin bottles, child poisonings from aspirin alone dropped nearly 20 per cent reports George Maisel, director of the Poison Prevention Packaging Division of the Consumer Product Safety Commission in Washington, D.C.

Since then, nine other household products have come under the Poison Prevention Act — things like furniture polish, oven cleaners and lighter fluid — bringing the total to about 65 per cent of all the products involved in child poisonings. Maisel expects the number of poisonings to drop even more when those such as pesticides and paint solvents are included under the act.

NO PATRIOTS AS IN 1776

As of last week 48 cities, including small towns in Missouri, have been accepted for Bi-Centennial Celebration. Shelbina is not one of them. Maybe we don't have any civic organizations which want to sponsor, develop and put on what possibly will be the biggest affair ever held in Shelbina. Two hundred years ago right now, the patriots of our country were getting near to the day when the Declaration of Independence would be signed, and when George Washington would lead those heroes of the Revolution to victory. Do we have any people today who love their country like those 18th century Americans did?

REMEMBERING WORLD WAR I

We are glad to learn the Shelbina Bank will observe Veterans' Day by closing on November 11, instead of the Congressional holiday date of October 28. The president of the Shelbina Bank, a veteran of World War I when the armistice was signed at the 11th hour of the 11th day of the 11th month, in 1918. Julius Buckman was in a German hospital where he was recovering from the amputation of a leg because of wounds suffered on the battlefield. He has strong memories of that historical date, just as do all veterans of the first World War. We were having our advanced flying at Post Field, Fort Sill, Okla. Although we could send messages by wireless from a plane, there was no regular broadcasts, so the newspapers got their news by wire. We lived with our wife off the post in Lawton, and when the newspaper came out with the news fighting had ceased, we hurried out to the field with the word. Our fellow fliers were engaged in a poker game when we reached them, and there was no excitement, the most common expressing being, "Oh Hell." We wouldn't reach combat and had been taught we were so good it would be a cinch to meet any of the German elite.

Rational Transportation System

How long, we wonder, are people of Michigan going to permit the vested interests to dictate their own narrow vision of what would be best for this state in its transportation policy?

The answer is plainly not forever. The evidence is piling up that freeways alone cannot meet the transportation needs of cities, that mass transit is a necessary supplement to, not a threat to, the private automobile, and that our spending on transportation has been terribly out of balance. As these factors become more apparent, the citizens are likely to demand a more rational transportation system.

The freeways simply cannot provide the rush hour capacity, they necessitate too many parking places at the end of the commuting line and they provide a threat to clean air, safety and to the neighborhoods through which they must be routed.

Moreover, the idea that the gas tax is today the sole source of highway funding is a myth. Local governments are big spenders for road construction and maintenance, and a significant percentage of their spending for streets comes out of their own general funds. And that doesn't take funds for freeway and parking lot space.

It is simply not true that the cities are lurking around, trying to divert funds that ought to go to highways. They simply ask a small share of the proposed increas increase in the gasoline tax to meet the transportation needs of their citizens. Since more than half of the gas tax revenues in the nation are generated in urban areas, they are notraiding something that belongs to someone else.

Gov. Milliken's transportation program is not a radical departure. It would increase the gas tax by two cents a gallon, and most of that increase would go for road building. Only a half-cent of the money-and that subject to heavy qualifications-would go for public transit.

BETTER THAN FIRST THANKSGIVING

Since the church is cooperating in the natural gas shortage by cutting back its temperature, those attending the Community Thanksgiving service at the First Baptist Church in Paris Wednesday evening of last week found the room cooler than usual, with women keeping on their cloaks.

It was more comfortable at that than it was for the Pilgrims long ago on that first Thanksgiving, where the only heat came from an open fireplace, and lighting was by the dim flare of candles and torches, and few of them at that. Paris people at least had a full blaze of electric lights, and a temperature that was even throughout the meeting room-not burning on one side and freezing on the other.

Looking back those 35 years Paris people were thankful that they are living in the present instead of the early days of this nation

Naming Names

In many news situations more will be printed than may have been customary in the recent past because the public is requiring greater incisiveness in what it reads and hears.

The self-cleaning efforts within the democratic system of freedon demand an informed public that is insisting on being better informed. Burdened with a multiplicity of laws beyond the capacity of police to enforce, the public is calling upon governmental agencies to make known the violators of regulations, orders, administrative rulings, on the theory that certain results can be achieved through the use of publicity.

New York City has begun to announce the names of restaurants and markets which violate the health codes. The New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets is naming those who fail to meet the state requirements as to marketing and meat inspection, milk sanitation and also is listing the establishments from which bad meat and foods have been seized.

Sanitation requirements are drafted on behalf of consumers and the whole society. Many consumers and much of society determine their purchasing habits after learning who breaks the standards.

In periods of mistrust the truth has a way of getting out. This becomes the best guidance that citizens can possess, and they are increasingly insistent upon getting the names and places. The public is not powerless when it learns the truth. The same public today is relying upon their brand of power in asking that facts be printed so they can form their own opinions as to what is right and wrong and make their own decision accordingly.

It so happens that in June 1944 we got terrible telegran and in the following September, Dr. Caldwell staggered into our office holding out a similar message. Such a coincidence that both of us lost a son. Our other son brought us pride with his service in the Navy. We are not sure flags should floy on Pearl Harbor Day, for Franklin D. There aren't rules for success that work unless you do.

In the good old days before the Supreme Court ruled there must be "one man and one vote," Shelby County had one representative. Although our population has gone down to where we are now one of Missouri's smallest counties, we have three representatives in the legislature. And how many of you know any of of them personally? In the good old days, you knew your representative, and he wanted you vote badly enought to come and see you every two years. Il know who all three are, much less know them personally. They are Ozzie Osbourn of Monroe City, Harold L. Volkmer of Hannibal and none of them live in Shelby County. And what chance would we have for support if some special Shelby County mattercame up in the Counties? Interestingly, we note that our three representatives come from counties which start with the same letter. Shelbina Democrat

DANGEROUS IGNORANCE

A survey of the editors of 21 major magazines with a combined circulation of over 50 million reveals an amazing lack of understanding of the U.S. timber industry, timber management and the forest resources of the nation. By the same token, the public is even more confused on these important matters.

Many think the U.S. is exhausting its forests. The fact is that 75 percent of the continent's orgininal forest land is still growing trees. A good share of editors and the public believe that trees can be "saved" in perpetuity by simply tightening controls over harvesting. A great many people apparently feel that we could do without wood entirely. Clearly, there is a great dearth of information on facts concerning the forest products industry. Trees are this country's largest renewable natural resource. For many years-- thanks to the advancing science of forestry practiced by timber companies--timber growth, harvesting and utilization has steadily improved.

Trees, like other crops, grow to maturity and die. In the course of their growth, they contribute in manifold ways to the preservation of wildlife and to the health and recreational needs of man. That is why timber companies have evolved a multiple-use conservation philosophy in the management of forest lands. This philosophy is consistent with the necessity of harvesting as well as utilizing America's trees. The greatest threat to the perpetuation of forests is sheer public ignorance as reflected in the recent poll.

A FIRST STEP TOWARD AMNESTY?

Reaction to President Ford's announced intention to devise some kind of conditional amnesty for Vietnam war resisters and deserters promises that no matter what he does, he will displease a large part of the public.

Even if a compromise is arrived at somewhere between those who, at the one extreme, are against any amnesty at all and those who, at the other extreme, argue that amnesty should be total and unconditional, the exiles themselves have made clear that they will reject anything short of the latter.

There may, however, be one step the President could take that would give something to everyone.

Many of the exiles have not only made new lives for themselves but have become citizens of other countries, chiefly Canada, and have stated that they have no desire to return to the United States permanently. But one reason they want amnesty is so that they may at least freely visit relatives and friends here.

Would it not be possible to grant amnesty to those exiles who have become foreign citizens, as well as those willing to certify their intention of becoming foreign citizens, to the extend that they may qualify for visitors' permits?

Conditions on this right of visitation could include such prohibitions as not engaging in politics or making public statements denouncing the Vietnam war or engaging in other kinds of activities denied foreign nationals. Otherwise, these amnestied exiles would be accorded the same rights and privileges- and no more- as any other foreign, temporary residents.

Admittedly, this limited form of amnesty might apply to only a small fraction of the expatriates. But it is something that could be done now, and could be made acceptable to the majority of Americans.

LOOKING AT THE ECONOMY

Sen. Mike Mansfield, the majority leader in the Senate, said in an interview that he believes the nation must get back to wage and price controls to check the inflation spiral and avoid a severe recession. He should look back to recent history to find that controls do not work. They have been put into effect during previous administrations and the nation experienced no termination of its economic woes. The marketplace is still the place to check inflation and that means we have to produce more and regulate less.

The economic picture is not pretty, but CBS News did find some bright spots and they did not involve government controls. CBS asked several economists if any light was shining through the current gloom; some said it was. Among those listed were a slight drop in prime interest rates and an increase in the amount of building materials available. This points to transfusion for a sick housing industry. It is a refreshing thought.

This nation developed to greatness through good work and high production and without government controls. Sen Mansfield's advocacy of wage price regulations is at variance with this national experience, but there is certain merit in one of his statements during the recent interview. He favors the end of foreign aid. That would represent a tremendous stride in reducing the federal budget. Let us get on with cutting our national spending and produce more of that building material. The marketplace will accomplish the rest. HLH

JACK ANDERSON SAYS: People Still Have Faith

WASHINGTON — As the nation's attention turns from Watergate to the economy, the headlines have become blacker with grim news.

Prohibitive oil prices have thrown the economy out of whack. Outgoing energy czar John Sawhill warns that the United States has no clear policy to deal with the crisis. There are forecasts of a worldwide depression. Columnist Joseph Alsop questions whether the West can survive.

Yet we have mailbags bulging with evidence that the American people have faith in their country and confidence in the future.

All we did was invite our readers to express their feelings about America in a slogan, which could be used as the official slogan for our bicentennial celebration. We offered no prizes. We simply asked for "the right words to reaffirm our faith in America."

We have been inundated with stirring slogans, which have poured into our office by the tens of thoussnds. Our mail has become so swamped that we have arranged with the Bicentennial Administration to use their postal box. So send your future slogans, please, to Slogans -- USA, Post Office Box 1976, Washington, D. C.

The Jaycees and American Legion, meanwhile, are helping us sort out all the slogans. The Copernicus Society has also joined us in sponsoring the slogan search. As an extra incentive, the society is putting up $10,000 in prize money -- $5,000 for the best slogan and $1,000 apiece for the next five.

The response to our appeal, both the slogans themselves and the accompanying lettters, have been heartwarming. Despite all the shabby performances and prominent failures of leading politicians, most American remain upbeat about the basic worth and prospects of this country.

The prevailing attitude is summed up in a slogan from the late Ernest Siipola (cq), who died of a heart attack before he could mail it to us. He was popular in his Fortuna, Calif., hometown, according to the tributes from his friends, as a forester who loved the outdoors and had a natural ease with his neighbors.

"In going through his pockets," his widow wrote to us, "I found his handwritten theme for the Bicentennial." Ernie Siipola's slogan for America was: "Golden Past to a Golden Future."

STRANGE SAGA: From secret grand jury transcripts, we have been writing the strange saga of Dr. Timothy Leary, the former saint of the psychedelic set. Today's chapter deals with his mysterious mistress.

Back in the 1960s, Leary was a Harvard psychology professor who found happiness in hallucinants and became the high priest of the drug cult. He was jailed on a marijuana rap, broke out of prison and fled to Algeria.

He drifted to Switzerland where he met a 28-year-old jetsetter named Joanna Harcourt-Smith. They flew off together on a romantic odyssey and wound up in Afghanistan in the custody of U.S. authorities.

The peripatetic professor was brought back under guard to California, where the faithful Joanna has been visiting him in various prisons. She wanted to marry him, but prison rules prevented it. So she took on his name anyway.

"I changed my name in the Superior Court of California to Leary," she told the grand jury, "so Leary is my legal name."

As we reported in an earlier column, Leary has made a dramatic break with his past and has turned against the drug cult. It is uncertain from the grand jury transcripts whether he enlisted her or she persuaded him to cooperate with federal narcotics agents. But she helped agents get evidence against Leary's former lawyer, George Chula, who has pleaded innocent to a drug indictment.

"Is Mr. Leary aware of what you were doing at the time you were doing it?" Los Angeles District Attorney Art Koelle asked Joanna.

"Yes, sir," she replied. She had worked with the agents, she said, "in the hopes" it would help Leary. But she added fiercely that she didn't like the people in the drug culture.

" I found 99.9 per cent of them to be dishonest, lying people," she said, "not telling the truth and not knowing where they were coming and where they were going."

She told about sniffing cocaine with Chula through rolled-up $100 bills. "And then he gets up," she testified, "and he says, 'Let's do this in style,' and he pulls out a hundred-dollar bill from his pocket and then he starts rolling the hundred bill. Then he says, 'You put it in your nose and take it.'"

The ritual, complete with the $100 bill, was repeated on other occasions, she swore. Shortly before his arrest she lectured him on the evils of cocaine.

"I took this opportunity to tell him," she testified, "that it was very bad to take that much cocaine or any cocaine, because it just makes you see life in a crazy way and you are seeing crazy things."

Democrats roll up significant gains

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Democrats rolled up significant gains in both houses of the Missouri General Assembly Tuesday.

Unofficial returns showed two Senate Republicans unseated along with at least seven members of the House. The Democrats also picked up several House seats in which incumbent Republicans decided against re-election.

"This was a Democratic year," said state Democratic Party Chairman James Spain, who predicted that dissatisfied voter reaction to Republicans over Watergate and the economy would filter down to the legislative races and give his party an increased majority.

The Democrats, who held a 97-66 majority in the House and a 21-13 margin in the Senate after the 1972 balloting, went into Tuesday's general election with a healthy advantage even before the polls opened. They had 48 unopposed House candidates to the Republicans' 16 and a 5-1 advantage in unopposed Senate contenders.

Two districts in northwest Missouri saw Republican incumbents fail in their bids for re-election to the Senate. Former Missouri Public Service Commission counsel Harry Wiggins soundly defeated two-term Sen. Lem T. Jones in a predominately GOP Kansas City district and Democratic State Rep. Hardin Cox of Rock Port bested freshman Sen. William Esely of Bethany.

Marvin Dinger, a Democratic attorney from Ironton, picked up a third previously Eepublican Senate seat as he outlasted Ralph Smith of Union in a race to succeed retiring GOP incumbent Don Owens of Gerald.

Those three victories were key ones in the Democratic push toward what appeared to be a 24-10 margin in the upper chamber, only one seat shy of the majority they held before the balloting two years ago.

Democrat Clifford Gannon of Desoto, a freshman state representative, fought off a stiff GOP challenge to retain control for his party of the seat of retiring Earl Blackwell of Hillsboro. In what was a close race, St. Charles County Assessor Robert Bauer held a slim 403-vote lead over GOP State Rep. Joe Frappier with 85 per cent of the vote counted. That seat was vacated by Democrat John Joynt of Florissant, who is retiring.

In the House, where Democrats boosted their majority to at least 106 members with several races still undecided, Republicans in the metropolitan areas took the brunt of the Democratic assault.

Former patient disturbed

Dear Ann Landers: In 1964 I went to a psychiatrist. After two visits I decided I didn't need any more therapy. My conscience had been bothering me because of something I had done. Two talking sessions gave me the relief and peace of mind I needed. I really spilled my guts, and this is what I am worried about.

Both sessions were taped. The psychiatrist said he likes to refer to "earlier sessions" if necessary. This means a secretary had to transcribe those tapes and they are probably on file in his office.

How can I protect myself against possible blackmail by an unscrupulous person who might get his or her hand on them? I am deeply concerned and need your advice. -- Vulnerable

Dear V.: If you saw the psychiatrist only twice, in 1964, the records were probably tossed out long ago. However, since this is preying on your mind, call the doctor and ask for his assurance that your records have been disposed of. Or get his word that he will destroy them at once.

Dear Ann Landers: What do you think of giving birthday parties for one-year-olds? I've been to a few lately, and there have been as many as 25 guests present.

The babies have no idea what is going on. The mothers open the gifts and "Oo-oo" and "Ah!" The babies would rather play with the ribbons and wrappings.

I feel these parties are for the parents and are a sheer waste of time and money for everyone else. What do you say?--Turned Off

Dear Turned: Of course the parties are for the parents. Who else? The child realizes people are around, but he doesn't know why and couldn't care less.

If parents want to celebrate the baby's birthday, I see nothing wrong with it. Someone usually has a camera. The pictures are nice to have later -- so "Baby" can see what he looked like, smearing the frosting all over Aunt Ethel's navy blue dress.

Dear Ann Landers: I disagree with your reply to "Sloppy in Omaha." As a professional home economist, I have these comments:

A kitchen is a workshop. In the best designed workshops, tools are kept where they are most accessible, not out of sight. The pots and pans most frequently used should be hanging from a rack in the open. They can be very attractive and it's an added incentive to keep them bright and shiny.

Now about thte "dishrags," as you call them. (I was taught to say "dishcloth" and I teach my students the same. Rags are usually used on floors, but please, not on dishes.) I see nothing wrong with keeping a dishcloth draped over the faucet. It will be sweeter-smelling than if it is stuck in a closed cabinet. And, of course, since it will be "on display," it must be kept clean.

A kitchen with totally "cleared decks" has as much personality as a living room that looks like a furniture-store window. -- Efficient In Texas

Dear Tex: You may be right about calling them dishcloths instead of dishrags but as for the "cleared deck," I disagree. To me, the hallmark of a good housekeeper is one whose kitchen has nothing in sight except the appliances and cannisters that are being used -- and with the dishcloth out of sight.

Discover how to be date bait without falling hook, line and sinker. Ann Landers's booklet, "Dating Do's and Don'ts," will help you be more poised and sure of yourself on dates. Send 35 cents in coin along with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope and your request to Ann Landers, P. O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Energy, survival are subjects of new book

PORTAGEVILLE— A new book at the New Madrid County Library in Portageville is "Energy for Survival", by Wilson Clark.

We have all been forcibly reminded of how intimately our lives and our civilization are entwined with the production and use of energy. It is obvious that a new way of thinking is needed and clearly it is not forthcoming from traditional pundits or conventional institutions.

Several years ago, Wilson Clark, then in his early 20s, arrived in Washington and began to write about energy and society. At the time, hardly anyone saw any connection between the two. Energy was simply the monthly utility bill.

However, Clark clearly perceived the limits of the globe's finite fossil fuels and saw that many environmental and social ills were directly connected to the misuse of energy. He looked for new ideas, sought out inventors of fresh technologies and tried to see things whole.

This book--- forceful, detailed, lucid, definitive-- is the result: a profound, authoritative examination of energy policy and potential by an astute observer with nothing to sell but good sense. It analyzes the ramifications of our oil addiction and lays bare the tarnished promise of nuclear power. It exposes the political and economic non-sequiturs that stand between the present crisis and the successful harnessing of the sun, the wind and the earth's heat.

"Energy for Survival" is strong medicine for a society in need of a cure.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

My finteen-year-old son said to me the other day, "Mom, I think I'm in trouble. Mitzi is referring my case to Mr. Weems."

"Who is Mitzi?"

"She's the girl at the record club who has been writing me letters saying I can't get out of the club because I still have to buy two more selections."

"Then who is Mr. Weems?"

"He's Mitzi's boss."

"Let me see the letter," I said.

Mitzi was a sweetheart. I could tell by the way she used phrases like, "You are forcing me to do something I really don't want to do, Mr. Bombeck, but you have left me no choice then to speak to Mr. Weems."

I had visions of Mitzi stamping out her cigarettes in her cottage cheese and letting her coffee get cold as she anguished over my son's case. I called her the next morning at the record club office.

"Hello, Mitzi Green please."

"Who?"

"Mitzi Green. She's the girl who has been corresponding with my son about his account."

"Oh, Mitzi isn't a person. She's a computer."

"So, put her on."

"You don't understand. Mitzi can't talk."

"Nonsense, she has just written us that she will be talking soon with Mr. Weems about the possibility of bringing legal action against my son."

"But Mr. Weems is a computer too."

"Can he listen?"

"Yes, but you have to understand computers. You can speak to them, but they will not answer you back. You can feed information into them, but it doesn't necessarily mean it will come out 100 per cent perfect. They're an important part of the family here at Freako Records, but they are without emotion and without income."

"You have described my son perfectly," I said. "He's an X-70 model we purchesed 15 years ago. Unknown to us, he punched out a membership in your club. According to his print-out, he has already fulfilled his obligation. However, if these two machines want to battle it out, it's all right with me."

"You mean our computer has been corresponding with another computer?" asked the girl on the phone.

It was just a gut feeling, but I had the distinct sensation they were going to kick a few buttons in the Freako Record Company.

State resources disappear

JEFFERSON CITY - Missour is a state rich in natural resources -- land, water, forests, wildlife and minerals - to say nothing of scenery and open space.

But these resources are being eroded rapidly. In 10 years, for example, more than 1.5 million acres of Missouri's forest resources were lost. Subdivisions, highways and "urban sprawl" were among the culprits.

The situation has not yet reached a crisis stage, as it has in some states, and perhaps that is one reason the Legislature has been reluctant to tackle the problem.

"Government by crisis" is a familiar phenomenon to anyone who has ever watched a state legislature in action.

.So far in Missouri, only piecemeal efforts have been made. Wildlife resources have been well protected and have even grown under the careful management policies of the State Conservation Commission.

The Forestry Division of the Commission has done the best it could with the money available to protect forest resources. By a long process of education, it has cut down sharply on the old wasteful practices of spring burning but it has not been able to do much about landowners who strip the woodlands with chemical killers like the defoliant aerial sprays used in Vietnam.

Similarly, an effort has been made to control the spoilage of land by strip mining. The Legislature created the Land Reclamation Commission in an effort to control the ravages of strip mining but it is not certain whether its powers will be strong enough to resist the economic pressures generated by the increasing demands for coal.

Years ago an attempt was made to control water resources by the establishment of the State Water Resources Board with a directive to establish a long range plan for management and control of state water resources. The goal was never achieved and the agency was abolished under the new Reorganization Act.

Despite reorganization, water resources planning is still fragmented and largely futile.

So it goes, on down the line.

Some preliminary studies of land use planning needs have been made in certain critical areas, but there is no statewide land and resource management plan or agency.

The problem may explode like a bombshell in the Legislature some day when the federal government passes a bill requiring state action.

Such a bill, giving states financial incentives to develop land management and control systems, was passed by the Senate last year but was abandoned in the House of Representatives.

The subject is certain to come up again, however, and a few of the coastal states already have limited land use control laws in effect.

One of the basic problems seems to be that most people continue to think of land as a commodity to be bought and sold and not as a dwindling state or national resource. Nationally, open space is being swallowed up by urbanization at a rate of more than 1,000 square miles a year but the impact of that has not yet hit home to most citizens.

No one has come up with any complete solution. It's just one of those gnawing problems eating away at the Legislature like termites gnawing at the supporting beams of a house.

Marching Cubs get top rating

BELL CITY — The Bell City Marching Cubs received a No. 1 rating at the marching band contest in Poplar Bluff, the first time the band had ever received the top rating in marching competition. It came in the street parade division.

Other bands receiving No. 1 ratings in class A were Scott County Central, Gideon and the trophy winner, Bloomfield. Other participants in this class were Puxico, Ellsinore, Matthews, Richland and Chaffee.

The next appearance of the Bell City band will be in the Christmas parade Dec. 7 in Jackson. The band's Christmas concert will be presented Dec. 17 at 7:30 p.m. in the high school gymn.

Beginning band to perform

BELL CITY — The Bell City beginning band, under the direction of Joe Pappas, will perform at the annual open house on Nov. 21 at 7 p.m.

The band will play various numbers and will feature individual students.

Campaign financing law to go into effect after January 1

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A campaign-financing law hailed as a method to plug some big loopholes in the state's current law will go into effect Jan. 1 after receiving overwhelming voter acceptance Tuesday.

The measure, which will require candidates to keep records of all contributions and publicly disclose contributions of more than $25, received 700,680 "yes" votes and 202,925 "no" votes, with 93 per cent of the total vote tabulated. It was approved in all counties, including a 10,349-3,751 majority in Cape Girardeau County; 15,777-3,451 in Clay County; 11,100-3,773 in Cole; 65,190-19,514 in Greene; 15,735-4,027 in Jasper; 19,559-4,762 in Jefferson; 8,013-2,241 in Pettis; 17,175-3,692 in St. Charles; 185,403-32,622 in St. Louis County and 59,077-28,407 in St. Louis City.

The measure forbids anonymous contributions of more than $5 each or $500 for one candidate during an election campaign.

It also restricts contributions from persons or groups to not more than $50,000 to all candidates in one year, and a person or group could not give more than $10,000 per election—the primary and general count as separate elections—to any one caneidate.

The measure requires reports of contributions to be filed 40 days before an election, seven days before and within 30 days after an election. At present the reporting requirement is within 30 days after the election and the reports only cover the 90 days leading up to the election. The measure sets up a six-member elections commission with the governor to choose from 18 persons nominated by the state supreme court.

Violation of the law would bring a fine of $5,000 or one year in jail.

Democrats cash in

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats cashed in on voter discontent with Republican scandals and the nations's deepening economic ills and headed for a two-thirds bulge in the House, an expanded margin in the Senate and a near-record total of governorships.

They gained at least four seats in the Senate, at least 38 in the House and elected more governors than either party has held since the Democratic landslide in the elections of 1958.

Their precise margins, however, depended on a half-dozen extremely tight races, including a tangled Ohio governor's contest in which Republican James Rhodes conceded defeat to Democratic Gov. John J. Gilligan, then shot into the lead.

The victors included some new national Democratic stars, potential candidates for national office: Govs.-elect Hugh L. Carey of New York and Edmund G. Brown Jr. of California, and Sens.-elect John H. Glenn Jr. of Ohio and Dale Bumpers of Arkansas.

And the losers included a half-dozen Republicans who had been among the loudest and longest defenders of former President Richard M. Nixon: four members of the House Judiciary Committee who stood by Nixon during last summer's hearings and Reps. Dan H. Kuykendall of Tennessee and Earl F. Landgrebe of Indiana.

Though the Democratic gains Tuesday were a bit below some pre-election forecasts and in line with the normal off-year pattern of opposition party success, Democratic spokesmen hailed their victory as a signal to supplant Ford's economic policies with measures of their own.

"This is not just a victory, this is a mandate," declared Speaker Carl B. Albert of Oklahoma, scheduled to preside over the first House in a decade with a two-thirds Democratic margin, theoretically the "veto-proof" body Ford warned might block his programs.

Other Democrats cocked their eyes towards 1976 and the presidential contest they hope will restore them to White House control.

If Ford doesn't change his economic programs "we will win the White House in 1976," declared Sen. Lloyd M. Bentsen of Texas, a likely Democratic presidential contender. And Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington said he might unveil his White House bid before year's end.

"We're seeing the rebuilding of the old Democratic coalition which served the Democratic party and the nation so well for so many years," declared Democratic Chairman Robert S. Strauss.

At the White House, President Ford watched the returns on television and conceded his party had lost.

'I have accepted the verdict," he said. "Those who lose often come back to win another day."

With final returns still being tabulated in a number of states, this was the picture:

Senate — Democrats picked up five seats but were trailing in one they now hold, giving them a likely margin of 62 to 38 in the new Senate compared to their 58 to 42 lead in the current one.

House — Democrats had picked up at least 43 seats from Republicans while losing five to GOP candidates. They had elected 281 House members and led in 12 other races, for a possible total of 293, 45 more than the current House in which they hold a 248 to 187 majority. The margin is the biggest since the 295-140 majority after the Lyndon B. Johnson landslide of 1964.

Governors — Democrats had captured another from the Republicans, lost one to the GOP and lost another to an independent candidate in Maine. They led for another GOP spot, while Republicans led in three current Democratic states, for an indicated breakdown of 36 Democrats, 13 Republicans and one independent, surpassing the 35 to 14 margin after 1958 but short of the record 39 governors elected in 1936.

As expected, the Democrats captured Senate seats in Florida, Kentucky, Colorado and North Dakota.

In Florida, former Secretary of State Richard Stone, a moderate Democrat, defeated conservative GOP businessman Jack Eckerd for the seat of Republican Sen. Edward J. Gurney, under federal indictment for bribery, conspiracy and perjury.

In Kentucky, Democratic Gov. Wendell Ford scored heavily in rural areas and held his own in Louisville to unseat freshman GOP Sen. Marlow W. Cook.

In Colorado, Gary Hart, the 36-year-old 1972 campaign manager for Democratic presidential nominee George S. McGovern, swamped two-term Republican Sen. Peter H. Dominick.

In Vermont, a 34-year-old Democrat, Latrick Leahy, surprised Republican Rep. Richard Mallary in the race to succeed retiring Sen George D. Aiken. He became the first Democrat ever elected to the Senate from that once rock-ribbed Republican state.

And in North Dakota, former Gov. William L. Guy narrowly defeated veteran GOP Sen. Milton Young.

In Oklahoma, former Rep. Ed Edmondson was closing in on front-running Republican Sen. Henry Bellmon.

In Nevada, former Republican Gov. Paul A. Laxalt edged ahead of Democratic Lt. Gov. Harry Reid for the seat of retiring Democrat Alan Bible.

Elsewhere, the incumbents generally won. The two biggest names among the Democratic senators, George McGovern of South Dakota and Birch Bayh of Indiana, captured third terms.

And Bumpers and Glenn won easily the Arkansas and Ohio Senate seats now held by Democrats J. W. Fulbright and Howard Metzenbaum, their victims in bitter primary battles last May.

In Kansas, scene of one of the nation's most bitter Senate races, former Republican National Chairman Robert Dole battled back to edge Democratic Rep. William Roy.

And in Utah, Republican Mayor Jake Garn of Salt Lake City defeated Democratic Rep. Wayne Owens, a member of the House Judiciary Committee, for the seat of retiring Republican Wallace Bennett.

Other new Senators included Rep. John C. Culver in Iowa and former Atty. Gen. Robert Morgan of North Caroline, both Democrats.

In the House, the biggest name casualties were on the House Judiciary Committee — four Republicans who had defended Nixon, Reps. Charles W. Sandman Jr. and Joseph J. Maraziti of New Jersey; David W. Dennis of Indiana; Wiley Mayne of Iowa, and a fifth who voted against the former President, freshman Harold V. Froehlich of Wisconsin.

Of the five Democrats who unseated Republicans in special elections last spring, all won again except Rep. Tom Luken of Ohio, edged in his rematch with Republican Willis Gradison in the Cincinnati district.

In Ford's home district in Grand Rapids, Mich., which he represented for a quarter century before Nixon picked him for the vice presidency, Democratic Rep. Richard VanderVeen won again despite Ford's visit last week.

Republican losses tended to come in clusters — five in Indiana, four in New Jersey, four in New York, two in Wisconsin and two in Virginia, including suburban Washington Rep. Joel Broyhill, a 22-year-veteran.

In California, the GOP was losing in four races.

On the Democratic side, there were single losses in Florida, Louisiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania and South Dakota.

But in Arkansas, Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., the embattled chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, was easily re-elected over Republican Judy Petty, despite the adverse publicity of last month's incident in which police stopped his speeding car, found the congressman intoxicated and a former stripper jumped out and into Washington's Tidal Basin.

In the governor's races, Democrats scored expected victories over Republicans in a number of states, including New York, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Colorado, Oregon, Tennessee and Wyoming.

And in California, Brown, the 36-year-old son of the state's last Democratic governor, became the youngest governor in over a century by defeating Republican Houston Flournoy.

But Democrat Sander Levin's second bid to unseat Republican Gov. William G. Milliken again fell short in Michigan, and Republican James Edwards was elected the first GOP governor im a century in South Carolina as the result of controversy surrounding the disqualification of the Democratic primary winner.

In Maine, meanwhile, independent James B. Longley surprised Democrat George Mitchell and Republican James Erwin.

In New York, Carey ran up an 800,000-vote margin over Republican Gov. Malcolm Wilson, who became governor when Nelson A. Rockefeller resigned last December, to recapture the state for his party for the first time in 16 years.

In Connecticut, Rep. Ella T. Grasso became the first woman to win a governorship without suceeding her husband.

Incumbents re-elected included Democrats George C. Wallace in Alabama, Reubin Askew in Florida, Milton Shapp in Pennsylvania, Wendell Anderson in Minnesota, Marvin Mandel in Maryland, Patrick J. Lucey in Wisconsin, Philip W. Noel in Rhode Island and Republicans Robert Ray of Iowa and Meldrim Thomson of New Hampshire.

Burglars hit Monsanto office

BLOOMFIELD-- Monsanto Chemical Co., located near Hunterville, was burglarized sometime Tuesday night, according to the Stoddard County Sheriff's Department.

Taken in the burglary were a calculator, typewriter and portable television. Entry was gained by breaking a glass in the door.

Lobbyists is AP film topic

The controversial subject of lobbyists and lobbying activities is examined in a new color-and-sound AP Special Report filmstrip to be distributed to area schools shortly by this newspaper.

Lobbyists, whose job it is to monitor and influence legislation for special interest groups, have often been referred to as "the fourth branch of government."

Do lobbyists wield undue influence on the nation's legislative process? Or are they the servants of the public, fulfilling a constitutional role in petitioning Congress?

These and many other questions are examined in detail in "Lobbying: The Fourth Branch of Government."

Among those interviewed for the program are Congrtessmen, other people in government who deal with lobbyists, and the lobbyists themselves, including representatives of big business, the unions and "peoples" lobbies such as Common Cause.

A key discussion in this Special Report revolves around the laws regulating lobby activities.

Plant contributes $16,145

CAPE GIRARDEAU - The 1975 Cape Girardeau United Way and Jackson Community Chest drives received a total of $16,145.44 from Charmin Paper Products Co. and its employes at the Cape Girardeau plant.

The amount pledged this year topped last year's record-setting gift by $1,002.54. The total contribution is split between Cape Girardeau and Jackson in proportion to the number of employes residing in each community and the relative fund goals of each campaign.

Of the total amount, $5,613.05 will be distributed to the Jackson fund and $10,432.39 will go to the Cape Girardeau fund.

Network correspondent slated for Charleston group banquet

Mal Goode

CHARLESTON— Mal Goode, special correspondent for international affairs with American Broadcasting Company, will be the featured speaker at the Charleston National Association for the Advancement of Colored People freedom fund banquet scheduled Nov. 16 at 7:30 p.m. in the Lincoln Community Center on Elm Street.

Goode, considered by many to be the dean of black professional broadcast journalism, began his career in broadcasting with station KQV in Pittsburgh, and later joined station WHOD as a news reporter. He was named news director of the station in 1952.

From 1956 to 1962, Goode continued to work for the Pittsburgh Courier while also broadcasting for WMCK, WEDO and television station WTAE- TV.

In 1962, he was hired by ABC News in New York, thus becoming the first black to hold membership in the National Association of Radio and Television News Directors and the Association of Radio and TV News Analysts. In 1972, he served as president of the United Nations Correspondents Association with a membership drawn from around the world.

Goode, a well- known public speaker, has appeared before audiences in more than 300 cities since 1962 in discussions of civil rights or the United Nations. He holds an honorary doctor of humanities degree from Shaw University at Raleigh, N.C., and was recently presented the Mary McLeed Bethune medallion by Bethune- Cookman College in Daytona Beach, Fla.

Woodrow J. "Pedro" Simmons will be the toastmaster for the banquet.

Bell offers new line of decorator phones

A new line of 10 decorator telephones is now available to Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. customers.

The new phones, called Design Line, range in styles from an old-fashioned type with a hanging receiver to a contemporary model that features a phone concealed in a wooden chest. There are 67 possible color and style variations in the lineup, including one red, white and blue combination.

Purchasers of the sets will own the housing, or shell, outright. The telephone company will own and maintain all the working parts -- dial, cord and electrical componentss.

According to Don Smith, Southwestern Bell vice president and general manager, this is the first time in its history that the telephone company has sold telephone shells to its customers.

"Under this arrangement, we'll be able to maintain the quality of service by making sure the inner parts work correctly with the telephone network," Smith said. "At the same time, we'll be offering customers a greater selectin of telephones to suit their living style."

Smith said the shell of each Design Line phone is under warranty for six months after initial purchase, then the customer becomes responsible for repairs. Any necessary repairs of the working parts will be performed, without charge, by the telephone company throughout the life of the instrument.

Cost of the 10 phones ranges from $50 for the Exeter, a contemporary phone with several appliques available, to $135 for the Stowaway, a phone concealed in a wooden chest. The Candlestick, a reproduction of an old-fashioned phone with a hanging receiver, sells for $60.

Customers have the option of being billed for the full purchase price of a Design Line phone or spreading payments over two, three, four or five months without interest or carrying charges.

In addition to the initial purchase price and installation charges, Smith said Design Line customers will be billed the monthly extension rate if the set is used as an extension, or the basic monthly service charge if the set is installed as a main telephone.

"We want to be in a position of providing the type of telephone our customers want," Smith said. "Combined with our standard models, Design Line lets us offer a tremendous variety -- now we can provide something for just about everyone."

Telephones inspected

Design Line phones are previewed by two Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. employes, Pat Jordan, left, of Kansas City and Juanita Heseltine of Springfield.

Office nears completion

The new Sikeston office of First Federal Savings and Loan is nearing completion by Ryan Construction Co. of Sikeston. Chuck Grant, vice president of the financial institution, said he expects the new office to be open by Nov. 15. The new facility will be located at 303 S. Kingshighway. The office is now temporarily located at 208 S. Kingshighway. Grant, noting that First Federal is the largest financial institution in Southeast Missouri, said the new facility will have two drive-in windows for the convenience of customers.

Former resident elected to post

Lawrence R. Kem of Greenwich, Connecticut, formerly of Sikeston, has been elected president and chief executive officer of American Appraisal Associates, Inc., a Milwaukee-based service holding company effective Dec. 1.

Kem was also elected to the board of directors effective immediately. He is married to the former Miss Barbara Hope, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver A. Hope, 1445 Rose.

Kem is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Kem of Sikeston. He attended Morley school and Southeast Missouri State University where he received his degree in accounting. Following graduation, Kem served two active years in the Naval Reserves and then began his business career with Procter and Gamble in St. Louis. He has also worked for McKinsey and Company in Cleveland, Ohio.

Kem is now group vice president of General Cable Corporation in Greenwich.

The second nicest thing about masonry is that it costs less.

The nicest, of course, is beauty. The result of skilled masons creating walls with craftmanship, texture and durability that can't be imitated by machines.

You might think it would cost more than its metal, glass or precast concrete competitors. But in most cases, it costs less — initially and over the life of the building. And finance charges and real estate taxes are less.

If that isn't enough, masonry walls are far less expensive to maintain — because masonry doesn't warp, dent, buckle or rot. And it never needs painting. Also, walls of masonry reduce heating and cooling expenses.

P'ville telethon

PORTAGEVILLE — A male teacher modeling panty-hose? A police chief standing on his head? Another teacher pushing a doctor's wife down the street in a wheelbarrow? It all happened here recently as part of the Portageville Lions Club-sponsored telethon for crippled children.

"I'm really proud of the town," Mrs. Jerry Mayo, the overall coordinator, said. She was quick, however, to give credit to the youth of Portageville, without whom "the telethon would not be the success it was."

"Some people may feel teenagers are bad," Mrs. Mayo said, "but give them a job to do and they'll do it. They canvassed door-to-door, set up roadblocks, challenged each other to see who could raise the most money and sold chains in school-- each link costing a nickel."

Mrs. Mayo said the whole community was involved, including the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Cub Scouts, student council, varsity club and virtually every other youth group.

Their efforts seemed to pay off. The people of Portageville succeeded in raising $4,175, compared to $3,109 during the 1973 campaign. This is as much money as some of the bigger towns have raised, and as much as all of New Madrid County raised last year, Mrs. Mayo said.

The telethon started at 10 a.m. Saturday morning and continued until 2 p.m. Sunday over the Delta Video cable television system. Entertainment included several musical groups from the area, high school bands and choruses, church-sponsored groups and cheerleaders and majorettes.

The Portageville telethon was part of the larger telethon coming out of Paducah, Ky., this weekend to raise money for the Easter Seal Society.

The Kentucky telethon will be televised over WPSD television station Channel 6, and will feature such stars as Bill Hays, Susan Seaforth, Johnnie Whittaker and Tanya Tucker.

It will start at 10 p.m. Saturday and run through 1 p.m. Sunday, with one of the stars acting as master of ceremonies at all times.

The 1973 program raised $308,351.25 for the benefit of crippled children, with Southeast Missouri's Crippled Children Program receiving $25,564.85 as its share of the funds.

Mrs. Mayo said that even though the money raised through the Portageville telethon will go into the Paducah telethon funds, Portageville will get back every cent it raised.

"Any advance pledges comes back to Missouri," she said, "that's why we hold our telethon a week early."

None of the performers on the Paducah telethon will be paid for their time, but a percentage of the gross proceeds is paid to the Actors Guild.

Services provided by the Crippled Children Program include equipment loans, prosthetic aids, transportation, homecraft programs, speech and hearing services, physical therapy, occupational counseling, summer camp and information services.

Mrs. Mayo said pledges are still being accepted and may be made through the New Madrid Health Center, phone number 748-5541.

Big Red leader

In a gesture typical of the St. Louis Cardinals this year, Big Red quarterback Jim Hart points to the defensive unit in explaining the club's turnaround from 4-9-1 the last three years to 7-1 after eight games in 1974.

"I look at the defense and I think the way they've improved has been the difference," Hart says. "The offense has always been able to score points, but now the defense is stopping the opponent more often than not and we're getting better field position. We used to get the ball at the 15 or 20, now we're getting it more ane at the 40 or 50, and that makes a lot of difference."

Since he came to the Big Red as a free agent in 1966, Hart's career and the success of his team have had more downs than ups. So many more downs as a matter of fact, that, according to Hart, the law of averages had to catch up with the Cardinals some time.

"It was only a matter of time before it started to happen," Hart explains. "Things had been going too poorly for so long, that something had to happen sooner or later."

Through the first six years of his career, the 6-1, 215-pound, product of Southern Illinois spent his time either sitting on the bench or playing, but looking over his shoulder if he made any mistakes.

But following the 1972 season, the Big Red named Don Coryell as their head coach. Coryell -- whose San Diego State teams were always near the top of NCAA offensive statistics while winning 104 of 125 games with two ties -- took a look at the Cardinals' films and decided then who would be his quarterback.

"There was no question about it," Coryell says. "We could see easily by the films when we came here that he had the best arm and now he's proven to have all the other assets that a great quarterback has to have.

"We're so pleased with Jimmy and the way he's come into his own," the second-year Big Red coach continues. "He just doesn't throw interceptions. Two of the three that he has thrown were balls that bounced off other people. They were not his fault in any way."

But there's more to it, the coach says, than Hart's ability to throw the ball: "He's been a very good leader out there, very calm, very cool, and he doesn't seem to get rattled at all."

Any credit for an improved mental attitude goes to the coach, thought, in Hart's estimation.

"There's a much more relaxed atmosphere on the club since Coryell came," Hart says, "and in this relaxed atmosphere, we're able to play a looser game. He placed a great deal of responsibility on the players and we have responded Technically, there's a great deal of difference between Coryell and the other coaches I played for in that he's a very offensive - offensive-minded coach," Hart continues. "The rest of my years, the head coaches were concerned mainly with defense, but now we have a head coach who's mainly concerned with offense. His offense is very imaginative, innovative and really exciting."

The average fan may not be able to tell if Coryell's offense is innovative or not, but he certainly won't quarrel with the idea that it is exciting.

Monday night FB

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — Their seven-game winning streak stopped by the Dallas Cowboys, the St. Louis Football Cardinals hope to bounce back against an equally formidable foe -- the Minnesota Vikings -- in a Monday night game, the Big Red's first since 1972. Kickoff in Busch Memorial Stadium will be at 8:05 p.m. (CST).

The Vikings will take a 6-2 record and a two-game lead in the NFC's Central Division into this weekend's games. The Cardinals, with their 7-1 mark, have a two-game lead in the NFC East over the Washington Redskins (5-3), and a three-game edge over Philadelphia and Dallas (4-4).

In Sunday games involving NFC East opponents, the Redskins meet the Eagles in Philadelphia, Dallas entertains San Franciscco and the New York Giants (2-6 host the New York Jets at New Haven, Conn.

Against the Cowboys, the Cardinals were forced to play for nearly three quarters without running back Terry Metcalf, who injured a knee, and Ernie McMillan, who suffered a concussion, and for most of the second half without starting guard Bob Yound, who also injured a knee. Their status for the Vikings game will be known later in the week.

Nevertheless, the Big Red managed a 7-7 halftime deadlock with the Cowboys and took the opening kickoff of the second half and drove to a second touchdown -- recorded on a ten-yard pass from Jim Hart to wide receiver Mel Gray. The Cardinals' first TD was a 19-yard pass play from Hart to tight end Jackie Smith.

However, later in the period, the Cowboys forced the Big Red to punt from their end zone and took over on the Cardinal 38-yard-line. Five plays later, Calvin Hill ran in from two yards out and the score was tied 14-14 early in the fourth quarter.

The teams exchanged punts, and then the BigRed punted again to the Cowboys on the Dallas 29 with 4:52 left. The Cowboys, aided by three penalties on the Cardinals, moved to the Big Red two-yard-line, and then place-kicker Efren Herrera booted a game-winning 20-yard field goal with four seconds left.

Against the Vikings, the Big Red lead in the series, three games to one, with the one defeat coming in St. Louis by a 27-10 score in 1969. All three of the Cardinal victories were recorded in Minnesota.

The game will mark the Cardinals' fifth Monday night outing since the current league format began in 1970. The Big Red have split the first four Monday games -- defeating Dallas (38-0) in 1970 and the New York Jets (17-10) in 1971 and losing to San Diego (20-17) in 1971 and Miami (31-10) in 1972.

The Big Red's difficult schedule continues next Sunday when the Cardinals move to Philadelphia for a rematch with the Eagles. St. Louis then will visit the New York Giants on November 24 before returning to St. Louis on December 1 to entertain the Kansas City Chiefs.

Tickets for the Kansas City game and the final home game -- December 15 against the Giants -- are on sale at the Cardinal Ticket Office, 200 Stadium Plaza, St. Louis, Missouri 63120.

SPORTS

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The American Basketball Association's Spirits of St. Louis have announced the signing of guard Mike Barr to fill out the their 11-man roster.

A spokesman said the 6-foot-3 Barr is expected to add defense and speed to the Spirits' roster. Barr spent the past two seasons with the ABA Virginia Squires, averaging 7.4 points a game.

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — The Portland Storm is offering ticket refunds for the team's World Football League game against Florida, but Storm officials say there haven't been too many takers.

Cubs, Hornets among finalists

BELL CITY — The Bell City Cubs and the Advance Hornets advanced to the semi-finals of the annual BCCHS B team tournament as first round action was ccompleted here Tuesday night.

Bell City had a rather easy time disposing of Scott Central 56-50 but Advance had to sweat out a 52-44 win over over Oran.

In the first game of the night the Advance Hornets jumped to a 14-10 first perio lead but their only veteran player Steve Vavak ran into foul trouble in the first half and had to be rested with three fouls. Oran was able to cut the lead a little as the Eagles outscored the Hornets 14-13 in the second period.

With Vavak on the bench the Hornets had to rely on their defense to get the job done against the Eagles as their zone kept Oran outside most of the game.

Vavak, showing his experience from his freshman year on the team, scored 27 points on the night as the big center, forward, guard drove past his defenders to the hoop.

Lynn Burlison and Roger Moret divided the high scoring for Oran with 10 apiece.

The Bell City Cubs behind the leadership of head coach Ronnie Stone, propelled themselves into the semi-finals behind the shooting and rebounding of big Sol Byrd.

Scott Central stayed in the game through the first quater as Bell City led 16-15 but the Cubs used their man to man press to make numerous steal in the second period and began to pull away from the little Braves and led 33-26 at the half and were never headed.

Scott Central tried to stay close but too many mistakes kept the Cubs in front.

Tournament action resumes Thursday night with the semi-finals as fourth seeded Advance squares off against the tallest team in the tournament, Kelly, at 6:30. Little Puxico plays the bigger Bell City Cubs at 8 p.m. Finals will be Saturday night.

Grand National pays $79,500

DENVER, Colo. — The Grand National rodeo at the Cow Palace in San Francisco, Calif., closed out the 1974 professional rodeo season Sunday with a total payoff of better than $79,500, the Rodeo Cowboys Association said.

The largest single winner of the rodeo was Charlie Battles of Delaware, Okla., who gathered $3,372 from steer wrestling. He moved into 12th position in the national standings, and assured himself a trip to Oklahoma City, Okla., for for the National Finals Rodeo, Dec. 7-15.

Tommy Puryear of Norman, Okla., who has been charging up through the standings in steer wrestling during the latter part of the season, grabbed $1,500 in his event at the Cow Palace and went into the lead, passing Tom Ferguson of Miami, Okla. Puryear's season total is $24,210.

Other event winners at the rodeo included Steve Hiatt of Milburn, Neb., $3,042 in bull riding; Royce Smith, Challis, Ida., $2,176 in bareback riding; J. C. Bonine, Hysham, Mont., $2,029 in saddle bronc riding; and Gary Ledford, Comanche, Okla., $2,019 in calf roping . The team roping had the Camarillo cousins, R'eg of Mea, Ariz., and . Leo of Oakdale, Calif., winning $1,180 each.

The top 15 cowboys in each event will head the Finals now, which is offering the largest purse ever. Total prize money for cowboys and the top 15 women in barrel racing is approximately $150,000.

Many contestants are also headed this week for the Sioux Falls, S. Dak., rodeo, and the "second-half" payoff of the $120,000 Winston Rodeo Awards. Bonus checks totalling $40,000 will be handed out to nearly 60 cowboys this Saturday at the rodeo.

Money won at Sioux Falls will count toward 1975 championships.

Unofficial bowl pairings

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

Secrets are flying faster than rumors as the nation's college football bowls rush to line up post-season opponents.

Notre Dame reportedly will meet Alabama in the Orange Bowl in a rematch of last year's national championship battle. Nebraska and Florida will face each other in a Sugar Bowl clash while Penn State will take on the Southwestern Conference champion in the Cotton Bowl.

Miami of Ohio, which has a bid to the Tangerine Bowl, says its wants to meet Miami of Florida in the Dec. 21 clash.

And Oklahoma State will meet Pittsburgh and Tony Dorsett in the Sun Bowl Dec. 28.

Until this year, the first day a bowl invitation could be extended was the third Saturday in November. But the National Collegiate Athletic Association rescinded its rule when it found it impossible to enforce.

The bowls then agreed among themselves to wait until Nov. 16. But, as usual, early bids have apparently been offered and leaked.

The Orange Bowl collision between Notre Dame and Alabama will match the two teams that fought for the national championship in the Sugar Bowl last New Year's Eve when the Irish edged the Crimson Tide 24-23.

Notre Dame is ranked eighth with a 7-1 record while Alabama, 8-0, is third behind Ohio State and Oklahoma.

A Notre Dame spokesman said "no decision would be made before Nov. 16," although Frank Rentz, president of the Orange Bowl Committee, said official announcement of the Notre Dame-Alabama matchup could come Saturday following the Alabama-Louisiana State game.

Penn State Coach Joe Paterno said his team has voted to go to the Cotton Bowl against the winner of the Southwest Conference — either Texas, Texas A&M or Baylor — but qualified his statement by saying the Nittany Lions would go "if" they are invited.

Cotton Bowl officials in Dallas declined to confirm the reports that Penn State, ranked seventh with a 7-1 record, would be invited. But one official said Penn State "is under very strong consideration."

Unbeaten Oklahoma is banned from postseason play because of recruiting violations.

Sikeston 8th lose final

Coach John Heacox's eighth grade football team ended their season on a losing note at Public School Stadium Tuesday night, bowing to Cape Girardeau 12- 8 and finishing with a 5- 2 season record.

Even with the defeat, the Bulldog eighth grade finished with the best record of any of the Sikeston gridiron teams.

The eighth graders lost their opening game, 30- 20, to Poplar Bluff and then reeled off five straight wins before losing Tuesday evening.

"We made too many mistakes," coach Heacox noted.

Sikeston fumbled three times inside their own 25 yard line and held off the Bengals twice before allowing them to score on a four yarder on a fourth down play in the second period for a 6- 0 lead.

Cape charged back with a 35 yard score in the third when the Bulldog pass defense broke down.

Sikeston's lone score came in the fourth quarter when Dwight Mills passed to Jeff Young for a 28 yard score. Scott Walls ran for a two point conversion and the final points in the 12- 8 loss.

This was the final game of the season for all of the Sikeston gridiron teams, except for the varsity which wraps up its campaign at PSS Friday against Poplar Bluff. A sophomore game postponed Monday because of high water on the Cape field and rescheduled for this coming Monday, was postponed Tuesday.

Spirits return home against Dr. J.

ST. LOUIS-- The Spirits of St. Louis, slowly putting together a backcourt, return home Wednesday for a four-game home stand that they only hope will be as entertaining for them as it will be for their fans.

First, the Spirits get their second regular season look at the incredible Dr. J., Julius Erving, when they take on the defending ABA champion New York Nets at the Arena on Wednesday night in an 8 p.m. start. It was the Nets and The Doctor who attracted the largest basketball crowd to the Arena earlier this season when New York beat the young Spirits.

The Spirits will get another shot at revenge on Friday night when the Denver Nuggets, who defeated St. Louis in Denver last week, and their fast- break attack arrive on a night that will be a special treat for the fans-- Polaroid Night. Every youngster 16 and under will have an opportunity to have his or her picture taken with one of the Spirits between 6:30 and 7:20 p.m. with the picture enclosed in a handsome card containing all the Spirits autographs.

Then on Sunday, George McGinnis, the Superman of basketball, brings the Indiana Pacers to St. Louis for their first visit to the Arena at 7 p.m. That game will be Family Night with the head of the household paying the regular price while every other member of the family pays only $1 regardless of the price of the ticket.

The Spirits close out the stand against Memphis next Tuesday, Nov. 13, in a game that will mark the changeover to a 7:30 p.m. week night starting time for Spirits home games.

The Spirits, 4- 7 after coming away with one victory in three games on the road last week, had a chance to acquaint themselves with their newest member-- Freddie Lewis-- with two days of practice Monday and Tuesday before swinging back into action.

Lewis, a 6- 0 former All Star guard acquired from Memphis for Tom Owens last Tuesday night, had only one chance to work out with the team last Thursday before playing two games. He immediately made his presence felt by scoring 61 points in the two contests and running the offense, but Coach Bob MacKinnon still was thankful for the chance to let Freddie and the team work together in practice for several days.

With guard Bernie Fryer now on injured reserve for at least 15 days with a torn thigh muscle, the Spirits also were looking for more backcourt help with Steve Jones and rookie Jimmy Foster the only other guards, although Fly Williams moved to the backcourt a bit last week from his forward spot.

The Nets, 7- 4, battling Kentucky for first place in the East, present one of the more talented lineups in basketball to complement Erving, who is averaging about 27 points a game as he shoots for his third consecutive ABA scoring title. Larry Kenon, 6- 9, is the other forward the Spirits must stop while husky 6- 10 Billy Paultz is at center and speedster Brian Taylor and rookie Al Skinner are in the backcourt with John Williamson and Mike Gale.

Denver, 7- 1 after last week's play, is the surprise leader in the West as Coach Larry Brown has completely reversed the team from the plodding, power club of a year ago to a run, run, run offense and pressing defense led by All Stars Mack Calvin and Ralph Simpson and rookie Bobby Jones.

McGinnis, perhaps the strongest man in basketball at 6- 8, 235 pounds of muscle, is also one of the greatest players in the game with quickness to match his strength. He also is averaging in the high 20s with about 14 rebounds a game. With him will be Dr. Dunk, Darnell Hillman, and hot- shot rookie Billy Knight.

Next Tuesday Owens will make his first return to St. Louis since the trade with the Sounds. The 6- 10 center has helped Memphis with several high scoring games inside to complement the great outside firepower of Rick Mount, the former Purdue star.

Between the action on the court, the Spirits take time off Thursday for a bit of fun-- the selection of 10 Spirettes, who will represent the Spirits during games and off the court in promotional duties. The girls will be selected by a panel of celebrity judges in downtown St. Louis at 11:30 a.m. with Eighth St. blocked off between Olive and Locust Sts. The public is invited at no charge.

Mizzou's Galbreath honored

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Tony Galbreath has done it again.

For the second straight week, the new running sensation of the Missouri Tigers was named Big Eight Conference offensive football player of the week by a panel of sports writers today. Galbreath's selection was unanimous.

Galbreath did a little of most everything in Missouri's 52-15 victory last Saturday over Kansas State and a lot of rushing. He carried the ball 32 times for a career high of 194 yards.

Galbreath threw two passes from his halfback position for 51 yards, including a 20-yarder to Mark Miller for a touchdown. In addition, he scored on a seven-yar run and caught three passes for 14 yards. His second pass led to a Tiger field goal.

"Tony Galbreath was a second team fullback during the spring," said Missouri Coach Al Onofrio. "He looked okay but he didn't look great. We tried him at tailback this year, and he took to it very well."

Vince Gibson, the Kansas State coach, praised Galbreath.

"That Galbreath is a heckuva player," said Gibson. "What a fine player he is."

Galbreath himself has little to say about his performancces. He likes to let his actions on the field speak for him.

Other nominations on offense were Dave Greenwoo of Iowa State, Laverne Smith of Kansas, Dave Humm of Nebraska, Terry Kunz of Colorado, Stan Ross of Kansas State, Steve Davis of Oklahoma and Gary Clouber of Oklahoma State.

Gary Spani, a freshman linebacker at Kansas State, was selected defensive player of the week by a unanimous vote. He was the first freshman ever named on defense in the Big Eight.

Spani, making his first start of the season, had 21 tackles, including 10 unassisted.

Missouri 27 point underdog!

NEW YORK (AP) — "We're going after the Big Ten championship."

No, the speaker wasn't Ohio State's Woody Hayes or Michigan's Bo Schembechler. That was Michigan State's Denny Stolz sounding a warning to the two Big Ten giants after his Spartans beat Wisconsin last Saturday.

"Don't give me any of that Big Two and Little Eight business," Stolz snapped.

The Spartans are only 3-1-1 in Big Ten play to 5-0-0 for coleaders Ohio State and Michigan, but they're taking dead aim at Ohio State this weekend at East Lansing.

"We're gonna be ready for it," Stolz promised. "We're gonna be there. Then we'll see what our chances are."

For those who think the Spartans have two chances — slim and none — remember that Ohio State's last regular-season loss was to Michigan State ... in 1972 ... at East Lansing.

But, snorts Ohio State's Woody Hayes: "Jinxes don't belong in football. I've broken jinxes wherever I've been." It says here Woody will come home a 31-14 winner Saturday.

Last week's score was 44 right, 19 wrong and two ties for .698. Two of the three Upset Specials came through — Florida over Auburn and Washington over UCLA. The season count is 372-144-14—.721.

Upset Special of the Week ... Georgia 24, FLORIDA ⅛⅞: "We can't be stopped now," says Florida fullback Jimmy DuBose. But Georgia has only been held under 24 points once all season and Florida's coming off that emotional win over Auburn.

Oklahoma 34, Missouri 7: "Missouri is the best football team we've played since Texas," says OU Coach Barry Switzer.

Alabama 28, Louisiana State 14: "I think our team is just beginning to get good," says Bear Bryant, coach of the 8-0 Crimson Tide.

Michigan 27, Illinois 10: Illinois' Bob Blackman is president of the American Football Coaches Association. Oh, well, it's been a bad year for presidents.

Texas A&M 24, Southern Methodist 14: Aggies' offense is banged up but their defense is one of the best around.

Penn State 29, North Carolina State 24: Lions and Wolfpack put on a scoring circus.

Nebraska 28, Iowa State 10: Huskers think they're as good as Oklahoma, which beat Iowa State 28-10.

Auburn 20, Mississippi State 10: Who would you pick when a Tiger meets a Bulldog?

Southern California 28, Stanford 16: This pick comes to you courtesy of UCLA Coach Dick Vermeil. "If I were picking a winner, I would say I think SC will beat them."

Texas 34, Baylor 9: Longhorns must keep winning to stay in the Southwest Conference race. So, for that matter, must Baylor.

Miami, Ohio 24, Kent State 14: Tangerine Bowl, here come the Redskins.

Arizona State 35, Brigham Young 21: Cougars get whacked in the WAC.

Oklahoma State 40, Kansas State 20: Ride 'em, cowboys.

California 21, Washington 20: Cal coming off Southern Cal, Huskies looking ahead to Southern Cal.

Pitt 28, Temple 14: It's a good thing these two teams are as far apart as you can get in Pennsylvania. They don't like each other.

Army 17, Air Force 14: Falcons are flying low this year.

Yale 28, Penn 24: Quakers were too peaceful against Harvard last week.

Vanderbilt 24, Kentucky 21: Commodores in line for a bowl bid ... if they win.

Archery hunters warned

PUXICO— The archery deer season at Mingo National Wildlife Refuge is off to a good start this fall, but the failure of some hunters to sign in and out as required is causing some problems, reports Refuge Manager, Jerry Clawson.

"The main purpose of the sign- in requirement is to give us an estimate of how many hunters use the area," Clawson stated, "but the sign- in sheets also help us to find a hunter in an emergency."

"Twice this fall we have received calls asking for help in locating hunters. In one case the daughter of a hunter was ill, and the father was needed at the hospital; but either he had changed his mind and was hunting elsewhere or had forgotten to register. In any case we spent several hours trying to locate him without success."

When going hunting for the day, it makes good sense to leave word of where you are, with whom you are hunting, and when you expect to return home.

"Also," adds Clawson, "When hunting on the Mingo-Duck Creek Area, please have everyone in the party sign in and out!"

Children choose to paint

Day care center opens

NEW MADRID — The New Madrid A-B-C Playskool, a state licensed day care center at 936 Davis Street was opened Monday by Mrs. Helen Tollison.

Mrs. Tollison has had five years experienced and training in the pre-school education field as head teacher and ccoordinator in the Head Start program. She also has 55 college credit hours towards a degree in early childhood education.

The center is licensed and has facilities for the care of 15 children ranging in ages from two to eight years.

Planned daily educational activities, nutritionally balanced hot lunches and morning and afternoon snacks are provided at the center.

Mrs. Tollison said she aims at teaching the youngsters a sense of order and routine. A daily schedule of activities includes quiet play periods with puzzles, crayons, books, easel painting, cutting with scissors or block building.

Swings, bars, large wheel toys, musical games and exercises are some of the outside recreational activities.

Mrs. Tollison is assisted by Mrs. Donna Gibson of Kewanee in the operation of the center which is opened Monday through Friday from 7 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

Workday begins early for executive housekeeper

By ALICE JACKSON

Executive housekeeper since 1968 at Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston, Sybil Wathen's work day begins early. She sees the night shift employes before they leave at 7 a.m. Supervising a housekeeping staff of 24, she is at the hospital five days a week and is on call at any time.

Going through a work day with Mrs. Wathen involves much walking. She checks areas from x-ray to lobby to pediatrics. She jots down supplies to be ordered and checks equipment for repairs or replacement. Mrs. Wathen pauses to answer a question from a hospital visitor, then checks out a specific complaint from a patient.

Housekeeping works around the schedules of the other departments, and this requires coordinating with department supervisors. She notes what her staff is doing as she moves from floor to floor.

Several technical schools,, colleges and universities now offer training in hospital houskeeping. Mrs. Wathen values this education.

"I learned on the job," she said. "Previously, I had worked as a housewife, records keeper and had done general office work. All these were helpful. But I had never handled people, just books and money.

"Personnel management is important and must be on an individual basis, I've found. I hire all the people on my staff. I explain what is expected in the particular job, go into detail about the health reports that must be kept and emphasize how their work will be evaluated.

"They need to know I care, that I'm here to help with the problems that come up," she remarked.

Other areas of importance that are part of housekeeping are safety, maintainence, economics, environmental control, infection control and interior decoration.

Mrs. Wathen is a member of the National Executive Housekeepers Association. The association requires members to attend institutes to keep up to date in techniques and products.

"These sessions are good, as the leader will be an expert. I learn from other housekeepers as we talk over problems.

"The parts of my work I enjoy most and like least? The first is easy to answer. Working with people. For an employe to improve — to know I helped — this is great! I don't like having to fire anyone. Always unpleasant, too, is finding work undone.

"Exectuvie housekeeping was a man's field until the last 10 years. And the men still make better salaries than women having the same responsibilities."

Mrs. Wather's comments on being a working wife and mother: "My husband Charles and sons Paul, 10, and John, 8, help at home.Charles appreciates the satisfaction working gives me. And he appreciates my paycheck, too! An understanding family makes a good job better."

28 more banks to receive funds

JEFFERSON CITY — State Treasurer James I. Spainhower has announced that the number of banks qualifying for merit funds under provisions of the Missouri model for the investment of inactive state funds has increased by 28 in 1974 over 1973 to 52 banks which will share in the $25 million deposit that will remain in the merit banks for a period of one year.

The banks will pay the state the market rate of interest for the investments. Last year only 24 banks qualified and shared in a $15 million distribution of merit funds.

The 52 banks receiving these deposits were chosen from more than 200 applicants and met the rigid qualifications outlined by the state treasurer's office.

"The merit funds program was set up to encourage banks to make more loans for the betterment of their communities," Spainhower said.

Spainhower said the banks named as merit fund recipients show a particularly strong community involvement, considering the tightness of the current money market. "I believe the increase in qualifying banks indicates that the incentive factor of this program is working as well or better than we expected," he stated.

"The merit funds program is designed to place inactive state funds in any Missouri bank which has demonstrated, through both kind and degree of its loan activity, an above average service to its communnity and the state," Spainhower explained.

"The fact that just over 25 per cent of the banks applying for merit funds qualified indicates the special kind of service these banks are providing their own community and the state," Spainhower added.

Kneezle retires from service

PAINTON - Donald E. Kneezle retired from the Air Force Oct. 1 and is making his home in Painton.

Kneezle started his Air Force career at Lackland Air Force Base at San Antonio, Tex., and held the rank of technical sergeant at the time of his retirement after 20 years of service.

Kneezle and his wife Irene are the parents of four children, Kirk, 16, Janet, 15, Cynthia, 11, and Karen, 8. The children are students in the Bell City schools.

Kneezle is the son of Mrs. Earl Kneezle of Painton and the late Earl Kneezle.

The Kneezles are members of the Advance Assembly of God Church, and both Mr. and Mrs. Kneezle are employed at the Inland Shoe Co. factory in Advance.

During the time Kneezle was in service, he spent two years in Southeast Asia, one year in England and two years in France, where their daughter Cynthia was born. His last station was Homestead Air Force Base in Florida.

Usury laws may be part of legislative session

JEFFERSON CITY - It now appears the state's usury law may be a part of the predicted special legislative session to begin the latter part of November.

Usury laws are simply those which deal with interest rates lending institutions can charge for money. But the definition is about the only thing that is simple.

Missouri first passed an interest rate ceiling in 1891. Its main purpose was to keep those who needed to borrow money from being charged unfair amounts of interest.

Missouri's present usury law was passed by the legislature in 1948. It allows a maximum of eight per cent to be charged on loans, except for loans to corporations and certain other exceptions.

Now lending institutions in Missouri say it costs them more in interest to borrow from the federal government than they can in turn charge their customers to borrow from them. The result is many lending institutions are not making personal loans within the state and are contracting out-of-state where usury laws set a higher limit or none at all.

Missouri's eight per cent rate is among the lowest of Midwestern states. Most states in the area have set the rate at 10 per cent, and in some of these, there are moves to raise it even higher.

A seven-member study commission was appointed by the governor last year to look into the present law. That commission held hearings in Kansas City, St. Louis and Columbia, as well as receiving written reports from throughout the state.

During early March of this year, the committee submitted its report to the governor. However, it was not made public until more than a month later.

The governor claimed the report was incomplete, a charge hotly denied by the commission chairman, Murray Weidenbaum, a consulting economist to the First National Bank of St. Louis and a college professor.

That report recommended that interest rates be increased to 10 per cent. but the legislature was only days away from its close and no action could be taken.

With increasing inflation, money problems have only increased since the first of the year. The governor then asked his director of the Department of Consumer Affairs, Alfred Sikes to study the problem.

Sikes' recently released report included a recommendation to raise interest rates to 10 per cent. But it also included a recommendation to abolish the so-called "points" charged to home buyers. "Points" are figured as one point to one per cent of the loan. In effect, these points have raised interest rates on home loans above the maximum eight per cent.

Many who support an increase in the interest rate were happy to hear about the proposed increase, but disappointed about the recommendation to abolish points.

Several legislative leaders say they simply have not made up their mind about a change in the interest rate. Some feel strongly that a change should be made, and others feel just as strongly that a change is not needed now or that it should be considered in the regular session which begins in January.

If it is considered in a special session, there will be many long nights of hearings and many witnesses will be questioned. Some legislators feel a special session will not give them enough time to fully consider the many ramifications of any change.

But it appears some change will be made at least by next summer.

Ghost entertains

2 bound over on weapons charge

NEW MADRID — Two men charged in separate cases of exhibiting dangerous weapons were bound over to Circuit Court for trial after they waived preliminary hearings in Magistrate Court before Judge William L. Ragland.

Charles Asa of Canalou is charged with exhibiting a .22-caliber pistol on Oct. 19 in a rude, angry and threatening manner on complaint by Walter Ellison. Asa posted $500 bond on the charge.

Willie Lee Hicks of New Madrid is charged with exhibiting a shotgun in a threatening manner on Oct. 28 in the presence of Hazel Collins. Hicks has been released under $500 bond.

Verlin Lee Ford was levied a $125 fine, given a six-month suspended jail sentence and placed on probation for one year for driving while intoxicated.

Lloyd Miles and Mae Lenn were fined $25 each for public intoxication.

Assessed $50 fines each were Verlon Leroy Douglas, public intoxication; Calvin Kent Tillman, no operator license and defective brakes; and Rodger Dale Ervin, expired vehicle license, no operator license and careless and imprudent driving.

William Earl Rickman paid a $40 fine for peace disturbance by fighting and using loud and profane language. Others levied $40 fines were Jackie Marie Patton, no operator's license, and Bobby Joe Quinn, failure to stop for stop sign.

Other cases and fines included: Charles Gregory Runnells, speeding, $28; Virgil Aaron Miller, failure to register on transfer of plates, $25; and David Franklin Smith, improper registration, $20.

Extension members entertain children

The Merry Mixers Extension Club of Wyatt and Charleston hosted a party for the Severely Handicapped on Halloween in the classroom of the Bertrand elementary school.

The club was organized in 1969 and its first assignment was with the handicapped youth in Oct. 1970. Each year since the club has continued to entertain the children and won a state award for the project last year.

The club members decorated the room and set up several little houses containing all kinds of treats. To begin the party, each child chooses his own mask, then they are required to knock on the door and say, "Trick or treat". Some who never talk will say the words.

Club members who hosted the party were Caroil Johnson, Betty Darnell, Faye Moxley and Joan Freezor.

After being entertained by Ovaline Davis, one of the children's mother dressed as a ghost, they were served pumpkin cupcakes and lemonade. Also helping with the party was Mrs. Freezor's son Matthews.

Sixteen children attended the Severely Handicapped School in Bertrand. There are two teachers, Victor Rogers, who is in charge of the primary age children, and Reubie Huckstep, who works with the older ones, and two teacher's aides, Joyce McClendon and Virginia Greenwood.

Funds slated for 4 state region

KANSAS CITY - Close to $1 million has been allocated for continued operation of employment and training programs for low-income, elderly persons in the four-state Mid-America region, a Department of Labor spokesman said today.

Neal B. Hadsell, head of the regional Manpower Administration office in Kansas City, said $573,554 has been earmarked for programs in Missouri, $116,171 in Kansas, $155,551 in Nebraska and $145,314 in Iowa.

The funds -- part of a $19.9 million nationwide allocation of Comprehensive Employment and Training Act Title III monies -- will go to five program contractors.

The five are Green Thumb, Inc., the National Council on the Aging, National Council of Senior Citizens, National Retired Teachers Association-American Association of Retired Persons and the Forest Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Each of the contractors provides a variety of work in the public sector -- mostly in beautification and restoration, although work in libraries, schools, hospitals and other municipal and county agencies will also be available.

The Inflation Fighter

Do-it-yourself auto repair

If your car is in good shape it will get much better fuel economy. This means regular tune-ups, changing oil and oil filter, keeping the spark plugs clean as well as similar "carekeeping" measures — mainly minor things, but devastating if left unattended. It's false economy to let them go as long as the car is still running.

Many car owners have learned to get around garage costs by taking care of minor maintenance themselves. This includes people with no mechanical ability.

Many local colleges and high schools have inexpensive auto maintenance courses for the public.

Hate to iron?

If you hate to iron, congratulations. The ongoing energy crisis gives you a perfect excuse to give it up as a bad habit. A hand iron takes as much energy as 10 100-watt light bulbs, which means you have to turn off a lot of lights to make up for ironing a single shirt.

A commercial laundry isn't the answer, because the energy will still be used and it won't help your inflation budget a bit.

But seriously consider the merits of "no iron" items. Properly treated, they can reduce ironing to almost a miniscule amount. Use the right setting on your washer and dryer and remove clothes promptly so wrinkles don't set.

If you must iron, do it logically — low temperature items first, and all of it at once, not a bit each day. Turn your iron off before you're completely finished — so you don't waste that stored energy.

Minimizing food costs

Food prices won't go down just because we don't like them. So concentrate instead on checking labels to get the most value for your money.

Unit pricing can be a big help: In addition to the cost of the item, supermarket shelf labels should tell you the price per ounce, pound or quart.

Then look at the item's label. Some manufacturers list the percentage of principal ingredients in the product. So if there's more sugar than wheat in the cereal you're buying, you will know it.

To defrost or not to defrost

If you're thinking of buying a large freezer to help out with the food budget, consider the pros and cons of the frost-free model before you do. Admittedly more convenient, this model uses about 50 per cent more power than the type you have to defrost yourself.

If you choose the latter model, remember to defrost it before the ice gets too thick — 1/4 inch. Ice lessens the cooling power of the coils. Defrosting more frequently will also lessen the chance of spoiled food from long defrosting periods.

Budget steak treats

How can you stretch your meat budget and still have tasty, tender steaks? The answer can be found in a single, simple word: marinate.

Instead of buying the most expensive cuts of meat — the ones marbled with fat that doesn't help your waistline anyhow — buy less expensive, leaner cuts such as flank and round steak. Marinate these for 24 to 48 hours in a vinegar-and-oil mixture.

You can use less marinade, and get an overall better effect, by adding just enough of the mixture to cover the meat in a small plastic bag. Seal the bag and keep it in the refrigerator. Remember to turn it a few times.

When you're ready to eat, drain the steak and broil as usual.

Rockefeller contributions termed startling

HILLSBORO – "It is startling to learn that vice presidential nominee Nelson Rockefeller has made substantial financial contributions to numerous national leaders serving under President Ford, as well as many serving in the Congress," 10th District Rep. Bill D. Burlison said today in remarks at Jefferson College.

Burlison recalled that, upon President Ford's announcement that he would nominate Rockefeller, he publicly expressed serious reservations about the selection because of conflicts of interest issues revolving around the enormous wealth of the Rockefeller family.

Burlison said the presence of these two issues, plus the revelation that the Rockefellers financed a "dirty trick" biography on Arthur Goldeberg at the time he was running against Rockefeller for governor of New York, makes it absolutely essential that the House Judiciary Committee continue a very broad and in depth investigation of Rockefeller's qualifications.

The Cape Girardeau Democrat said he would reserve final judgment as to his vote on confirmation until the House Judiciary Committee has completed its exhaustive hearings.

Highlights and sidelights

Food stamp probe marks beginning

JEFFERSON CITY — The current investigation of the St. Louis food stamp program represents the beginning of a comprehensive two-year overhaul of Missouri's welfare system, according to state Department of SocialServices officials.

Lawrence Graham, director of the department, announced that his office and others at the state level were beginning an investigation of the St. Louis food stamp program amidst considerable hoopla on Oct. 23.

That investigation, expected to last three months, will involve caseworkers from the social services department and investigators from the state auditor's office in the painstaking task of re-certifying all non-public assistance food stamp recipients in St. Louis, an estimated 6,000 to 7,000 persons. During recertification, recipients will be run through a photo identification process designed to prevent any possible misuse of the stamps.

Department officials say the scope of the investigation will not be extended beyond St. Louis proper until the work there is completed. But it eventually will happen, and Graham has promised that every welfare case in the state will be re-investigated by July, 1976.

"Misuse of state funds is excusable, whether it be through honest mistakes or fraudulent intent," Graham said when he announced the investigation. "All we're trying to do is make our department accountable, and clear up our records so everyone can have a fresh start."

Ewing Gourley, director of the Division of Family Services, said the investigation of the food stamp program was being conducted to insure that "eligible people receive exact benefits."

Gourley noted that because food stamps are a form of currency they could be sold by the person entitled to use them to ineligible persons. To that end, he said, he is supporting better bookeeping and records system which will keep the main office in Jefferson City better informed.

Gourle said the pilot project will play a part in finding any bogs in the new management structure his office wants to impose in St. Louis.

Any cases found during the investigation which have an extraordinarily high error will be turned over to investigators for further study. These errors will be identified in the same manner as the Internal Revenue Service identifies unusual tax returns. A normal case will be set and, when any individual case exceeds it, the individual case will be targeted for further investigation.

Missouri's food stamp program became uniform state wide only in the latter part of June of this year when the last counties still using the surplus agricultural commodities were switched to food stamps.

Some commodities still are issued in Missouri, but they are earmarked for special programs such as children's nutrition programs, or for certain state institutions.

Paul Spicer, head of the state's food stamp program, said his latest figures show 286,939 Missourians in 100,352 households are receiving food stamps.

Federal guidelines issued every six months determine how much a family must pay in actual dollars to receive food stamps with a greater dollar value.

As an example, Spicer, said a family of four with a net income of $500 a month or less is eligible for $150 worth of food stamps per month.

Breast cancer poses threat to men as well as women

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — About 32,750 women will die from breast cancer in 1974 but few people know the disease will also kill about 250 men, a Philadelphia physician says.

And because breast cancer is so rare in men, they may not recognize it or become concerned when they notice lumps on their chest, says Dr. Paul A. DeMare, associate professor of radiation therapy at Philadelphoia's Thomas Jefferson University Hospital.

DeMare estimates there are about 700 new cases of male breast cancer every year in the United States.

"It never crosses the mind of a man who finds a lump in his chest," he told the American Society of Therapeutic Radiologists' convention Sunday. "In fact, he may not even know there is such a thing."

DeMare said doctors often overlook the possibility of male breast cancer though tumors are the main cause of lumps in the male breast.

Diagnosis is often delayed for months or even years and may be one reason men have only a 50-50 chance of living five years after breast cancer surgery, he said.

DeMare said that two-thirds of the men treated for breast cancer are more than 65 years old.

DeMare said the surgery is the about the same in both sexes — removal of the breast tissue, underlying muscle and nearby lymph nodes.

The symptoms are a lump or open sore near the nipple, a retracted or inverted nipple, and in some cases a discharge, he said.

Stringbean slayers sentenced to prison

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)— One year ago Saturday night, lanky David Akeman, better known to country music fans as "Stringbean," shuffled onto the Grand Ole Opry stage in his trademark costume, an overlong shirt stiched to shortened trousers at his knees, a straw hat and a banjo.

He bobbed his Adam's apple and drawled his opening line: "How sweet it is."

Stringbean, 57, a star of the television series "Hee Haw" and an Opry regular, sang two of his favorite songs that night, "Y'all Come" and "I'm Going to the Grand Ole Opry and Make myself a Name." The audience, as usual, called him back for an encore.

Three hours later, Stringbean and his wife were dead, murdered at their farm near Nashville.

Two weeks later, on Nov. 28, news of another double murder rocked the country music world.

James Widener, 55, a rhythm guitarist in Hank Snow's Rainbow Ranch Boys Band, was found shot to death in a North Nashville alley. Sprawled across his legs was the body of a female companion, Mrs. Mildred Hazelwood, Laguna, Calif.

Last week, two men were convicted of the Akeman murders and sentenced to 99-year terms in the Tennessee State Prison. A third man was convicted in the Widener case.

On Sunday morning, Nov. 11, 1973, L.M. "Grandpa" Jones, another "Hee Haw" and Opry regular and Stringbean's longtime friend, drove to the Akeman farm to meet Stringbean for a hunting trip. He found the frost-covered body of Estelle Akeman, 59, lying in the grass 30 yards from the house.

Stringbean's banjo was propped in the doorway of the three-room farmhouse. His body lay sprawled face-down in the entrance.

A year later, a criminal court jury found John A. Brown Jr., 24, and his cousin, Marvin Douglas Brown, 23, guilty of the Akeman murders.

After deliberating 2½ hours, the jury recommended 99-year concurrent prison terms.Criminal Court Judge Allen Cornelius ordered that they run consecutively. Each man will be eligible for parole in 30 years.

In the Widener case, Maurice McKinney Taylor, 30, St. Louis., Mo., was convicted by a criminal court jury. He was tried the same week as the Browns in a courtroom across the hall. He too was sentenced to 99-years in the state prison.

Police said the Akemans were murdered as they surprised burglars ransacking the house when the couple returned from the Opry. Testimony in the week-long murder trial confirmed that robbery was the motive.

Stringbean had been shot once in the chest, and his wife gunned down as she tried to flee.

On Jan. 16, after two weeks of speculation and rumors about impending arrests, police arrested Marvin and John Brown.

When the bodies of Widener and Mrs. Hazelwood were discovered, she had no jewelry and his wallet and car were missing.

The search for Widener's belongings led to Memphis, where motel and airline employes had reported men trying to use Widener's credit cards.

Last landmark

Byrnes Store, the last building to identify the now vanished town of Birds Point, is being torn down by owner Clint Hutcheson. The store was built in 1970 by Jefferson David Byrne and closed during the summer of 1973.

Old store reminds of by-gone days

By JOAN FEEZOR

BIRDS POINT — Byrnes Store, the last store building where the town of Birds Point once stood, is being demolished by owner Clint Hutcheson.

The store building was built in 1907 by Jefferson David Byrne, according to Robert Byrne, his son.

The elder Byrne originally had a store about half a mile closer to the river but, because of the river's actions, he moved the store building, split it in half, and made two separate buildings out of it. He then erected the store building presently being demolished.

The store, which closed in the summer of 1973, was a general mercantile store in the earlier days that stocked everything from barrels of flour to horse collars and farm equipment. A large warehouse in front of the store was used for storage of the farm equipment.

During his reminiscing Byrne's son stated, "At one time my Father's store employed four full-time clerks and one delivery boy who did nothing but deliver groceries.

"The river was so high one year that the flood water was almost up to the front porch roof," he recalled "and the boats would pull right up to the roof and the customers would get right out."

Birds Point, the first settlement in Mississippi County, was founded in 1805 by Abraham Bird, who also founded Cairo, Ill.

At one time Birds Point was a center of activity. All freight to Charleston came by way of the community. The Iron Mountain Railroad had a depot here, and the Cottonbelt Railroad built a large train turntable. Barges carried the trains across the Mississippi River.

"I would say that there were between 1,500 and 2,000 inhabitants," Byrne estimated.

"There were two hotels in town — the Kendrick and Beckwith. I'll never forget them," he added.

The town of Birds Point ceased to exist after having been washed away around 1908 by floodwaters from the river on whose banks it was situated.

With the tearing down of the old Byrnes Store, all that remains of the town of Birds Point is a name, some history and lots of memories.

HOUSEBOAT LIVING NOT ROMANTIC

AMSTERDAM (AP) — Life aboard a houseboat may seem romantic, but acute housing shortage rather than romance is the main reason thousands here have taken to the water.

Amsterdam boat dwellers in the past were retired sailors. Now, families and young people figure prominently in the city's floating population which has risen sharply since World War II.

The capital has approximately 2,500 houseboats moored along the river Amstel and on about 100 canals. An estimated 1,100 of these have not been registered with the city authorities and therefore exist illegally. However, because of the housing scarcity, there is rarely any move against the occupiers.

Diehlstadt man gets suspended jail sentence

Charles Albert Milam of Diehlstadt received a 90-day suspended jail sentence and was placed on one-year probation during Magistrate Court proceedings Tuesday in the city courtroom for Oct. 6 knife assault on Leo McCormick.

The assault occurred at the Wagon Wheel tavern, 849 W. Malone Ave., during an argument between the two men.McCormick was hospitalilzed with knife wounds in the abdomen following the assault. One condition of Milam's probation requires him to pay McCormick's hospital bill totaling $335.

James Benjamin Hall of Cape Girardeau was bound over to appear in Circuit Court Nov. 14 for possession of hashish.

Laura Reynolds of Piedmont Star Route was given a 30-day suspended sentence and placed on two-year probation for cashing a bogus check.

An attorney was appointed to defend Jerry Lee Summers, 230 Felker St., against a charge of cashing a bogus check.

A charge of selling alcoholic beverages after closing hours against Geneva Applewhite was continued to Nov. 12.

Fast Drainage

Lake Linda, a superglacial natural reservoir of water located 4,000 feet above sea level in the high ground near Juneau, Alaska, suddenly and inexplicably drained itself dry in less than three days during August, 1970. The remaining ice formations created a strange, surrealistic landscape for investigators.

350 Jaycees attend mock legislative session

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP)—The Missouri Jaycees wound up their annual mock legislative session here Sunday by approving a bill raising the state's usury rate from eight per cent to 10 per cent.

Proposals to either raise or limit the interest rate on loans will be considered in a special legislative session. The governor says he will call the session for Nov. 18 or 19.

About 350 Jaycees attended the weekend convention.

A right to work resolution, opposing the closed union shop, was passed by the mock House but was not acted upon by the Senate.

The jaycees approved other mock measures allowing counties to sell general obligation bonds for industrial development, setting up a licensing board for the practice of acupuncture, establishing standards for treatment of animals in kennels and pet shops, and restoration of full citizenship to a state corrections inmate when he is paroled.

Robert Wilkins of Clinton was named the outstanding senator and the outstanding Jaycee legislator. Steve Amick of Jefferson City was named the outstanding House participant.

Given trophies for debate were Chuck LaJuenesse of Farmington and Clay Hunter of Sikeston in the Senate and leroy Taylor of the state penitentiary, in the House.

Ashcroft has no plans

ST. LOUIS (A[illegible] Traditional Republican [illegible]wer in St. Louis County eroded somewhat during Tuesday's general election as George Lehr rode Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton's coattails to victory in the race for Missouri state auditor.

"I appreciate the help of Eagleton, but I'm glad I didn't call on any other state or federal official to go on tv for me," said Lehr, 37-year-old executive of Jackson County.

With 96 per cent of the state's precincts reporting, Lehr had 598,907, or 53 per cent of the vote, to 524,056, or 47 per cent, for his Rrepublican opponent, incumbent John Ashcroft, 32.

In St. Louis County, where Ashcroft had hoped for 65 per cent of the vote, Republicans apparently split their tickets, electing Republican Gene McNary as county supervisor, and Eagleton. In the crossover, Lehr received 47 per cent, or 126,492 votes.

As expected, the Democrat was impressive in Kansas City and St. Louis. He polled 68 per cent of the ballots cast here and 63 per cent and 65 per cent respectively in Kansas City's Clay and Jackson counties.

He said he had no future plans, other than serving out the remaining two months of his term. "I didn't plan to lose," he explained.

California, N.Y. oust Republicans

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats ousted Republicans from the governorships of New York and California but apparently lost Ohio in a squeaky-close race.

Democrats also won a half-dozen other governorships and were left in solid command of the nation's statehouses, giving them strong influence over the machinery for choosing the president in 1976.

California elected Democrat Edmund G. Brown Jr. after eight years of the conservative administration of Gov. Ronald Reagan. Brown, 36, will be the state's youngest governor in 119 years. He beat Houston Flournoy, the state controller and a former college professor.

In New York, Nelson Rockefeller's hand-picked successor Malcolm Wilson was beaten convincingly by the Democrat, Rep. Hugh L. Carey. Carey's victory ends 16 years of Republican control of the governorship under Rockefeller and Wilson.

In the only major Democratic loss of a governorship, Ohio Gov. John J. Gilligan today trailed former Gov. James A. Rhodes, the Republican, by a scant 13,406 votes out of more than 3 million cast, with unofficial returns virtually complete.

Rhodes had conceded the race to Gilligan on the basis of earlier returns. A recount is considered certain and could take weeks.

The lead in Kansas teetered between Democrat Vern Miller, the state attorney general, and Republican State Senate president Robert F Bennett.

Democrats went into the election with a 32 to 18 hold on the governorships and were emerging with their domination approaching 36 of the 50 states.

Democrats took over GOP-held statehouses in Colorado, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Oregon, Tennessee and Wyoming as well as in the two biggest states.

In the 10 states with half the nation's population and half the electoral votes for president, Democrats sealed their seats in eight and conceded Michigan to the GOP.

But the Republican candidate took the South Carolina statehouse for the first time in a century.

The governorship of Alaska, now held by a Democrat, was in limbo with leads swinging back and forth as the tabulation wound to an end.

The Arizona statehouse turned Democratic for the first time in eight years. Raul Castro, 58, a former envoy to Bolivia, won in his second bid for the office.

There was no doubt that GOP losses born of low scandal and high inflation washed through state capitals as well as the nation's capital.

The statehouse gains gave Democrats control over thousands of state patronage jobs and the machinery to raise money and votes for the party's 1976 presidential nominee.

By force of numbers, Democratic governors also gained influence in choosing the presidential candidate.

George C. Wallace overwhelmed his Republican challenger in Alabama with an 85 per cent victory margin for an unprecedented third term. "I do have plans" for 1976, he told an interviewer.

Florida Gov. Reubin Askew won re-election and a boost for his national aspirations with a solid margin over Republican Jerry Thomas, who was president of the state senate as a Democrat but switched parties two years ao.

The Democratic sweep led Ella T. Grasso into the Connecticut statehouse, the first woman ever to be elected a governor without following her husband into the office.

New York and California dominated the gubernatorial picture because of their size and influence and because in both cases, longtime Republican control came to an end.

A congressman from Brooklyn for 14 years, Carey, 55, upset the party organization candidate in the primary election. But he took no radical stands on the issues. He is Irish Catholic and a widower with 12 children.

Jerry Brown, son of former California Gov. Edmund G. (Pat) Brown, was born to politics, launched his own career by identifying himself with liberal causes, then solidified his party strength during three years as secretary of state.

Maine went its own way and rebuffed both major party candidates, electing political newcomer James B. Longley who ran as an independent and promised to cut the cost of government.

Longley, a 50-year-old insurance executive, described his victory as "a message that will be heard around the country."

Of the 35 gubernatorial contests, Republicans clinched only three early victories but clung to hopes of three more as tabulation continued in tight races in Kansas, Ohio and Alaska.

Departing from the 100-year Democratic tradition, South Carolinians sent Republican James B. Edwards, 47, to the statehouse.

The loser was Jennings Bryan Dorn.

Democrats make clean sweep in Stoddard

BLOOMFIELD - Democratic candidates in Stoddard County made a clean sweep in Tuesday's general election when all state and county candidates won by sizable margins.

Democratic incumbent Thomas Eagleton won over Republican Tom Curtis by a vote of 3,360 to 1,682 in the race for U.S. Senator. Clifford E. Talmage tallied 20 votes.

Democrat George W. Lehr beat out incumbent state auditor John Ashcroft by 3,164 to 1,770.

Democrat Bill D. Burlison won over Truman Farrow for the representative from the 10th Congressional District by a vote 3,843 to 1,128.

Democratic incumbent Jerry Howard of Dexter, representative from the 157th district, won over Republican candidate Verlan Beacham of Bernie by a vote of 1,714 to 1,038.

In the only two country races, Democrat Jimmy Trammell of Dexter defeated incumbent Probate Judge Koss W. Blomeyer of Bloomfield by a vote of 3,238 to 1,620.

Incumbent County Clerk John Marvin Capps of Dexter easily defeated his republican opponent, Bob Beal of Essex by a vote of 3,679 to 1,192.

Democratic candidats elected with no opposition were Flake McHaney, circuit judge of the 35th Judicial District; C. F. Cline for Rep. of the 159th District; Ermer Garner, presiding judge of the County Court; Jack Ward, county judge from the First District ; Harold E. (Pete) Snider, County Judge, Second District; Charles Corbin, circuit clerk; Fredia Lee, recorder of deeds; Phillip Ayers, prosecuting attorney; and Gary Dowdy, surveyor.

Coal officials struggle to avert nation-wide strike

WASHINGTON (AP) — With a coal strike a virtual certainty, industry and union negotiators are pressing for an early settlement that would shorten the length of the predicted walkout.

Both sides scheduled another bargaining session for today after a Tuesday night counter-proposal from the United Mine Workers.

UMW President Arnold Miller said the union proposed a "comprehensive contract package" which, if given quick approval, "will prevent a prolonged shutdown of the nation's mines."

Guy Farmer, chief negotiator for the Bituminous Coal Operators Association, said serious differences between the union package and what the industry offered Monday need to be resolved.

The on-again, off-again negotiations were recessed Tuesday night to give the coal operators a chance to study the 150-page union proposal. The session ended amiably in contrast to Monday night's meeting, which broke up when Miller walked out without notifying the operators. He said they had made a strike unavoidable.

Both sides concede that a strike is inevitable and the question now is how long it will last.

"I want to make an agreement," Farmer said. "I assume they do, too."

The steel, railroad, automobile, chemical and electric power industries, all heavily dependent on coal, would be the first to feel the effects of a walkout.

The government estimates that a month-long strike would throw anywhere from 200,000 to 400,000 workers out of jobs.

Layoff notices went up Tuesday at the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Co. and the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway Co. in expectation of a mine strike. A spokesman said he did not know how many of the 38,000 employed by the two railroads would be affected. Ten per cent of the revenues of the nation's railroads come from hauling coal.

The UMW contract with companies that produce two-thirds of the nation's coal expires at midnight Monday, but a strike is expected to begin unofficially Saturday with the end of this week's final production shift.

The union says it will take about 10 days to ratify a tentative contract settlement and has ruled out extending the old contract.

Farm price of beans drop; consumers don't get decline

WASHINGTON (AP) — The farm price of dry beans, traditionally a high-protein food source for poor people, has tumbled sharply, but middlemen are not passing much of the decline along to consumers, the Agriculture Department says.

The farm price of beans in Michigan, for example, dropped 30 cents per pound, from a peak of 51.5 cents last March to 21.5 cents in September. But the retail price declined only 12.3 cents per pound from its high of 81.5 cents last spring to 69.2 in September.

Production of dry beans is estimated by USDA at a record harvest of 22 million hundredweight this year, up 31 per cent from the short crop in 1973 which led to the price boost.

The analysis of middleman spreads for beans was included in a vegetable situation report by the department Tuesday. It said "there is clearly a long distance to go before retailers return to more familiar shelf price in relation to commodity cost."

In February 1973, before the bean crunch developed, a one-pound bag of beans nationally sold in retail stores for 25.7 cents, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics. At that time, farmers got 11.1 cents per pound.

Michigan and California are the leading dry bean producers, but the crop is important in a dozen other states.

"A price consideration that most manufacturing users must be alert to is that low prices paid to growers this season could prompt a shift away from beans to corn and soybeans in the spring of 1975," the report said.

Republican hopes turned back

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Republican hopes to increase their minority in the state Senate were being turned back by Democrats Tuesday night as early returns began to come in slowly.

Returns for the 99 contested House races remained sketchy late in the night.

Democrats, who currently hold a 21-13 margin in the upper chamber, were out front in district's they now control and two challengers were running ahead of Rqepublican incumbents.

Former Missouri Public Service Commission attorney Harry Wiggins held a 1,300-vote lead over two-term incumbent Republican Lem T. Jones in Kansas City's normally Republican 10th District with 24 per cent of the vote counted.

In northwest Missouri, five-term Democratic state Rep. Hardin Cox of Rock Port held a 3,500-vote margin over freshman GOP Sen. William Esely of Bethay with 79 per cent of the precincts reporting.

A close race was developing for the seat of retiring Republican Sen. Don Owens of Gerald, as Democrat Marvin Dinger of Ironton held a slim 400 vote margin over Republican Ralph Smith of Union with 45 per cent of the vote in.

In a hotly contested race to succeed long-time Senate Democrat Earl Blackwell of Hillsboro, Democratic Rep. Clifford Gannon of DeSoto held an 1,100-vote lead over Festus attorney William Weier with 44 per cent of the precincts reporting.

DEFAMATION CHARGES have been filed by a niece of the late Pope Pius XII, Countess Elena Rossignani, against the makers of a controversial movie, "Massacre in Rome", which alleges the Pope failed to prevent the massacre of 335 Italians during the Nazi occupation. The author, Robert Katz of Brooklyn, and director George Cosmatos, are being tried in a Rome court which may suppress the movie if it decides in the Countess's favor.

Democratic candidates carry Mississippi County

CHARLESTON - Democratic candidates on the state and district level, the only ones challenged in Tuesday's general election, carried Mississippi County by a wide margin, according to an unofficial count of the ballots Tuesday night.

Voter turnout was low, apparently prompted by the lack of competition for county offices. Approximately 6,800 persons are registered in the county, and about 2,500 ballots were cast.

Democratic Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton received 1,809 votes to Republican Tom Curtis's 640 votes in the senate race. C. E. "Cliff" Talmadge, running on the nonpartisian ticket, picked up eight votes in the county.

George Lehr, Democratic candidate for state auditor, received 1,788 votes and his Republican opponent John Ashcroft, the incumbent, polled 558 votes in the county.

Rep. Bill D. Burlison received 2,022 votes in his bid for re-election to the 10th District congressional seat. Hisopponent, Thurman Farrow, collected only 370 votes from Mississippi Countians.

A total of 2,025 votes were cast for Fred DeField of Charleston, unopposed in bid for re-election as state representative from the 160th District.

Republican Francis Hulshof of Portageville got eight votes and incumbent Democratic State Rep. Fred E. Gene Copeland of New Madrid received 63 votes in the Mississippi county portion of the 161st District.

Constitutional amendment No. 1, which provides that persons over 18 registered within the time prescribed by law are entitled to vote in all elections, carried in Mississippi County by a vote of 1,613 to 454. Amendment No. 2 which authorizes indebtedness by municipalities and counties for industrial development upon two-thirds majority vote and the issuance of revenue bonds by cities with majority approval, also was favored in the county by a margin of 1,087 to 585.

Mississippi Countians also approved the initiative ballot, which provides for a new campaign financing and election law, by a 1,238-801 margin. The judicial ballot, which would return Judge William H. Billings to the Missouri Court of Appeals in the Springfield District, was approved by a wide margin of 1,478 to 423.

Travis "Corky" Shelby Jr. of East Prairie was elected with 2,062 votes to a four-year term as a member of the board of trustees of the Mississippi County Health Department.

Two persons were to be elected and Shelby was the only candidate to file. An unofficial count of write-in votes for the position indicates that Mrs. Linda Stockton of Charleston will fill the other vacancy.

Votes cast for county offices included:

Ralph Adkisson, presiding judge of the County Court, 1,965; Lindsay Hurley, associate judge of the first district, 1,136; Teddy Bennett, associate judge of the second district, 914; T J. Brown Jr., probate and magistrate judge, 2,048; Loretta Smith, circuit clerk, 2,029; Arthur Lee Goodin, county clerk, 2,064; Eddie Graham, prosecuting attorney, 2,050; Mary Jean Simmons, collector, 2,063; and Faye Elliott, treasurer, 2,051.

Safeway Brand Foods Carry Easy-to-Read Dates that Help Insure Their Freshness!

On and off the shelves in a matter of hours. That's how fast our perishable foods (such as meats, eggs, coffee, bakery and dairy foods) sell at Safeway. Even so, the perishable foods that Safeway manufacturers or processes carry open dates which can be checked by our employees (and customers) to make extra sure no package is overlooked.

Shown at the right, for example, is the date on a package of Safeway coffee. When the numbers "1-15" appeared, our employees knew the package was not to be sold after January 15. Being positive no package remains on our shelves after the printed date insures that all Safeway coffee you buy will remain fresh and good for many more days after you take it home.

Group to dig at refuge

PUXICO — The archaeological club of Southeast Missouri State University will be at Mingo National Wildlife Refuge Sunday, weather permitting. The archaeology group, under the supervision of Professor Scott Grantha, has been investigating the Bluff Road Indian Mound in recent years and has provided tours of the site during the fall tour season.

The auto tour has been a popular attraction again this year, according to refuge manager Jerry Clawson. Most people visited the refuge during the latter part of October, Clawson noted, sometimes creating crowded and dusty conditions. November is a better time to see wildlife. Waterfowl populations are building and, with less traffic, opportunities for observing deer and turkey are also improved.

The tour begins at refuge headquarters, one and one-half miles north of Puxicco, and is open on Sunday afternoons during November. The tour will be routed down the Bluff Road and end at Highway 51 near the ol schoolhouse this month, the opposite direction from the October route.

Mingo National Wildlife Refuge is administered by the Fish and Wild-life Service of the U.S. Department of the Interior.

KIRKPATRICK TO SEEK RE-ELECTION

Secretary of State James C. Kirkpatrick became the first Missouri candidate to file for re-election in 1976.

Mrs. Eula Huss, chief clerk in the Secretary of State's office, appeared pleased as Secretary Kirkpatrick signed the filing form.

"We are following our pattern of previous years in announcing our candidacy," Kirkpatrick commented. "Having done that, we intend to devote all our efforts to doing a good job as Secretary of State. We won't begin our actual campaigning until well into 1976.

"We would like to continue making improvements in the office to provide the best service possible. This would include recodifying Missouri election laws, computerizing the corporations division, providing increased protection for Missouri investors and implementing changes in all divisions.

"We came into office with many ideas for modernizing it. Improvements have been achieved in election administration. We are offering prompt and courteous service to the business community. Four million tax dollars have been saved by efficient records management. With each change, we have identified other areas which need improvement.

Four Freedoms

The "Four Freedoms" expressed by President Franklin D. Roosevelt in his State of the Union message to Congress on Jan. 6, 1941 were: the freedom of speech and expression; the freedom to worship God in his own way; the freedom from want and the freedom from fear.

Bangladesh famine termed nightmare

Associated Press Writer

DACCA, Bangladesh (AP) — Death, disease and starvation in Bangladesh have created a 20th century nightmare that shows no signs of going away.

"It's here. It's happening, just as Malthus predicted 150 years ago," said a foreign economist.

He was speaking of Thomas Robert Malthus, the 19th century British economist who theorized that population would increase up to the limits of subsistence — and would then be kept in check by famine, pestilence and general human misery.

That, according to a consensus among diplomats, international relief workers and even some Bangladesh officials is exactly what is happening in this Florida-size country of 77 million that was the province of East Pakistan until the 1971 India-Pakistan War.

It is the world's eighth most populous country and, except for some small islands, the most densely populated. The population is growing, after subtracting deaths—which normally total 1.3 million a year, by 2.2 million people a year, a staggering 3 per cent annual increase. The current annual population growth in the United States, is less than 1 per cent.

Bangladesh has an average of 1,400 persons crowded into each of its 55,126 square miles, nearly double the density of Japan. The United States has only 58 people for each square mile.

There is a severe famine throughout the country. The most conservative diplomatic estimates say 750,000 persons will likely die of starvation or diseases related to malnutrition from August through November this year. Some foreign economists anticipate a famine-related death toll of one million.

The period ranges from early August when floods destroyed about 300,000 tons of the summer crop, to early December when the winter crop will be harvested.

For all practical purposes, Bangladesh has run out of food. There are no more reserves to give the population a minimum subsistence diet. The government also is short of money to import food.

Diplomatic sources say that Bangladesh had arranged last summer to import about 400,000 tons of food. But it could take delivery at the time of only 50,000 tons because it had insufficient funds to honor letters of credit for the rest.

The result is death for many and misery and physical and mental retardation for those who survive, especially babies whose brains have been permanently damaged by severe malnutrition.

Bangladesh requires 12.5 million tons of food grains this year. The government estimates a crop no larger than 10 million tons.

To help fill the gap, the government has arranged for imports of 600,000 tons for the last quarter of 1974 — either through foreign gifts or commercial purchases. But the bulk of the food is not expected to arrive until after Nov. 15, too late to save hundreds of thousands.

Starting Nov. 1 the more than five million persons who rely on government ration shops will receive only five pounds of food grains a week per adult, or 11.4 ounces a day. Previously the ration was six pounds per week.

"And we can't reduce the food grain rations any more, unless you have some substitute or additional foods such as meat," said A. M. Khan, the Bangladesh food secretary.

For large sections of the population the only substantial food comes from the government-supplied food grains. These people have no money to buy meat or fish or even rice that might be available on the open market,

Rice now costs the equivalent of $1 for a kilogram, or 2.2 pounds, four times the price six months ago. In a country where the average per capita annual income is only $67, the current price of rice is what many Bangladeshis earn in a week. The per capita annual income in the United States is about $4,400.

What alarms many foreign observers is that this year's famine does not appear to be a temporary natural calamity that will disappear if there is a good food crop next year.

"We have what seems to be a permanent problem in Bangladesh, and that is what gives the Malthusian theory relevance here," said another foreign economist. "The problem is intertwined with high prices, low purchasing power and population growth. And then everything is aggravated further by smuggling."

Authoritative sources say that the widespread smuggling of food grains into neighboring India in the past year has cost Bangladesh at least one million tons of rice — more than enough to prevent mass starvation in the next six weeks.

According to the Bangladesh government's own estimates it also has lost at least 400,000 bales of jute — out of a total production of six million bales this year — across the border.

Both Indian and Bangladesh officials say it is impossible to closely patrol the 1,350-mile border but when Bangladesh was East Pakistan, the border was sealed and there was no known smuggling of any sizable proportions.

The loss of jute means the loss of millions of dollars of desperately needed foreign exchange. Jute last year earned the country $330 million of its total exports of $397 million. This year jute is expected to account for $440 million of export earnings that the government hopes will reach $500 million.

But Bangladesh requires $1.5 billion to pay its import bill. That leaves a gap of $1 billion that Dacca hopes the international community will fill through foreign aid.

Since Bangladesh became independent 34 months ago, it has received $2 billion in international assistance, including $500 million from the United States, either through grants or long-term loans.

What has especially disappointed — and angered — international representatives has been the officially acknowledged corruption that has permeated Bangladesh along with black marketeering of scarce commodites and hoarding of food grains.

The prime minister, Sheik Mujibur Rahman, continually acknowledges these evils by declaring his intention to crack down on corrupt officials. But there is no sign that the sheik's pronouncements have had any effect. Bangladesh has fisheries, natural gas, forest and what one official says is the agricultural potential to grow 50 million tons of food grains a year."

Bangladesh also may have deposits of offshore oil. It has given oil exploration rights to several foreign companies in recent months.

Dear Charlie:

On behalf of the Sikeston Jaycee Little League Football Program, I would like to thank you and the Daily Standard for furnishing team rosters for the spectators at no cost to the League. One of the primary reasons that this program has been successful is that interested businesses and individuals have given so freely of their time and money.

We would also like to publicly thank the three other sponsors for their participation: Bank of Sikeston, Daily Standard, and National Lock. I am sure that the boys that participated in the League appreciate the opportunity to play organized football, and that their parents realize that without all of the sponsors, that this League would not have been possible.

Sincerely,
Steve Sikes

The case of the fairy tale

By: JACK STRAUSS,LL.B.

When youthful Bobby was sentenced to the pokey, he found prison life an unbearable sexitence. Almost every inmate in the lock-up began making eyes at him. What's more, they weren't interested in just holding hands with him either. In fact, they repeatedly beat him when he doggedly rejected their advances.

The result? Fearful Bobby, with the aid of other sympathetic prisoners, escaped from the prison. His freedom, however, was short lived. He quickly fell into the hands of the police. And worse, he was charged with the additional crime of jail breaking.

"I had no choice," insisted Bobby in court. "The inmates at that prison were after like I was Raquel Welch. I just couldn't take the abuse and beatings any more."

"That's no excuse for breaking jail," responded the prosecuting attorney. "If it were, there's be a rash of escapes justified by tales of fairies."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you excuse Bobby's jail-break of his fairy tale?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that while there have been other cases holding to the contrary, the time has come for the state to take reasonable precautions to protect inmates who are victims of rampant sexual assaults that been prevalent in prisons.

When a man breaks jail, however, and he claims that he did so because of constant sexual attacks, it's no defense unless he can prove it. In this case, concluded the judge, Bobby's sympathetic inmates were believable witnesses in his behalf.

(Based upon a 1974 Michigan Court of Appeals Decision)

Mary Tyler Moore tries hand at directing

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "It's not one of our great shows. But the comforting thing is that even our worst shows are better than most of the other series that are on television."

Mary Tyler Moore was letting it all hang out. The show she referred to was "A Boy's Best Friend," and it marked her debut as a director. She was frank (modest?) about its quality, but she left no doubt about her pride in the series itself, "The Mary Tyler Moore Show."

The CBS Saturday night romp remains a television phenomenon. Not only does the show itself maintain a consistently high quality of comedy, but her MTM Enterprises has also spawned winners in "The Bob Newhart Show," "Rhoda" and "Friends and Lovers."

Since she and her husband, Grant Tinker, head the enterprises, there is no need to ask how she got the job as director. But why?

"Last season we had a couple of directors on the show that were—well, less than exciting," she said in her trailer-dressing room at CBS Studio Center after a strenous dance lesson.

"I thought about how hard all of us in the cast had to work in directing ourselves, without hurting the directors' feelings.

"Then a few weeks ago I was Grant's office and we were talking with Arthur Price (MTM executive) about a show that was coming up. 'You know,' I said, 'I think I'd like to direct.'

"They spun around and said, 'Good for you!' 'Terrific!' And so I was committed."

The production staff had to plan carefully for Mary's directorial debut, fashioning a script in which her acting duties were minimal.

The story concerns Ted Baxter, the pouter-pigeon TV announcer, and his discovery of his mother's plan to be married.

"Ted completely falls apart," the star-director related, "He is a hypochondriac anyway, and now all of his oedipal instincts well up and make him a complete wreck.

"Then he gets a call from his mother—we never see her in the show—saying that she isn't going to get married after all; she's just going to live with the man. That destroys Ted altogether."

The show is resolved when Ted has a man-to-man talk with his mother's suitor, who turns out to be a mild little 80-year-old who is only seeking her happiness.

The segment will appear Nov. 23.

Mary admitted that she had some trepidation about directing because "I'm not a leader; I'm a joiner, a listener, a reactor."

Taking charge of a set was "alien to my nature, and I kept asking myself, 'Am I up to it?'

"Finally I just did what I do in acting. I knew what was expected of me and what I expected of the other actors.

Oral lecithin won't help

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — Is it true that lecithin taken by mouth is of no value to the body? Also, is it difficult for the body to make use of the protein that's taken in tablet or powder form? Must vitamins be taken with food if they are to be used by the body?

Dear Reader— The numerous questions about lecithin no doubt mean that it has again been well publicized in popular health magazines. Many of these publications do not have any qualified medical authorities on their editorial board, unlike scientific journals used by the medical profession.

Your question puts the finger on the real problem about lecithin. Some scientists think that phospholipids, of which lecithin is one, in the bloodstream help to maintain the solubility of blood fats. This may be helpful in preventing atherosclerosis. However, the important phospholipids in the bloodstream are manufactured by our own body. That is the only way they can get there. Taking lecithin or foods containing lecithin by mouth does not accomplish the same effect. The digestive juices, pancreatic juice and bile salts split and tear down fats and alter the food we eat. Lecithin is broken down before it is absorbed through the digestive wall into the blood.

Many good research studies done in test tubes, or similar experimental situations have nothing to do with lecithin taken by mouth. Many popular reports of such research fail to distinguish between what happens in the test tube as opposed to what happens to swallowed lecithin. Such reports in health publications for the general public lead to great confusion and misunderstanding.

The body does need a small amount of polyunsaturated fat which helps the liver in its function of producing the phospholipids. You can get the small amount that's needed through proper diet without resorting to lecithin tablets, which does not prevent atherosclerosis.

The best example I know of the action of the digestive juices on things we swallow is to point out that insulin, which is a natural hormone, is of no value if swallowed. The digestive juices destroy insulin, so it has to be injected by needle, as diabetics know.

The body needs only enough protein to replace lost body cells or to grow new ones — the latter is particularly important during the growth stage. Additional protein is converted to carbohydrates and used for energy or stored as fat.

If you ate a well-balanced diet, you shouldn't need additional vitamins. Unfortunately, many people do not eat a well-balanced diet, and for them a simple all purpose vitamin capsule each day isn't a bad idea.

This is not an endorsement for the large doses of vitamins that some people take. It is necessary to have some fat in the digestive tract to absorb fat soluble vitamins, but it's almost impossible to avoid it. Food moves slowly through the intestine, and there is plenty of fat in a normal diet. Hence, there is usually enough fat in the intestine for vitamin absorption any time during the waking hours.

COOKING-UP

BY SHIRLEY PRITCHETT

EAST PRAIRIE -- Tired of fixing the same hum drum meals each evening? Most of us reach that point at one time or the other but hesitate to try something new for fear that our meat and potato lovers will turn up their noses.

Try a change of pace once in awhile though and introduce your family to dishes with foreign flavor, and use your imagination to turn the dinner hour into a festive occasion.

A red checkered tablecloth, centered with a candle in a wine bottle, will set the mood for an Italian dinner, for example. While spaghetti is almost as American as apple pie, try this recipe for Italian meat sauce as a variation from the one you have been using. Pour over hot, cooked spaghetti and serve with a crisp salad and crusty bread.

ITALIAN MEAT SAUCE

1 pound ground beef
one medium onion, chopped
two cloves of garlic, minced
1 (28 oz.) can tomatoes, cut up
1 (16 oz.) can tomato paste
¼ cup snipped parsley
one tbsp. brown sugar
1½ tsp. dried oregano leaves, crushed
one tsp. salt
¼ tsp. dried thyme leaves, crushed
1 bay leaf

Combine beef, onion and garlic in dutch oven and cook till meat is browned and onion is tender. Drain off excess fat, then add cut up tomatoes, tomato paste and other dry ingredients.

Simmer uncovered about three hours, or until thick stirring occasionally. Remove bay leaf and serve.

---

If the old standby, meat loaf, isn't eaten at one meal try this:

SHORT CUT PIZZA

1 pkg. cheese pizza mix (for one pizza)
½ tsp. dried oregano leaves, crushed
¼ tsp. garlic powder
two cups crumbled left over meat loaf
1 (3 oz.) can sliced mushrooms, drained
1 (4-oz.) package (one cup) shredded pizza cheese

After preparing the pizza dough, roll it out to fit a 12-inch pizza pan and place in greased pan; crimping edges.

Blend oregano and garlic powder and pizza sauce (from mix); spread over dough, then cover with crumbled meat loaf and mushrooms, followed by the pizza cheese.

Sprinkle the grated cheese (from mix) over the top and bake in a 425 degree oven about 20 minutes or until crust is done.

TOMATO-SAUCED POLENTA

½ lb. ground beef
2 tbps. chopped onion
½ clove garlic, crushed
1 (16-oz.) can tomatoes, cut up
1 (8-oz.) can tomato sauce
1 (3-oz.) can sliced mushrooms, undrained
2 tbps. dried oregano leaves, crushed
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ tsp. dried thyme leaves, crushed
1 small bay leaf and polenta

In large sauce pan, cook ground beef with onion and garlic till brown; drain off fat and add one third cup water and remaining ingredients except polenta.

Bring to a boil, reduce heat and simmer uncovered for 1¼ hours or till thick, stirring occasionally. Remove bayleaf.

Serve over squares of polenta and pass parmesan cheese, if desired.

POLENTA: Place two and one-half cups water in saucepan and bring to a boil. Combine one and one-half cups yellow cornmeal, one and one-half cups cold water and one and one-half teaspoons salt.

Stir into boiling water and cook till thick. Cover and cook over low heat about 45 minutes, stirring occasionally. Spread in 8x8x2-inch baking dish. Cool thoroughly,then cut into six pieces.

Brown the pieces in butter till golden brown, about five or six minutes on each side.

For a German dinner, try Konigsberger Klops, served with sweet-sour red cabbage, rye bread and for dessert, apple strudel.

KONIGSBERGER KLOPS

1 (2-oz.) can anchovy fillets
5 slices dry bread
1 cup milk
1½ cups chopped onion
2 tbps butter or margarine
2 beaten eggs
1½ tsps salt
¼ tsp pepper
1 lb. ground beef
½ lb. ground veal
½ lb. ground pork
¾ cup sauterne
¾ cup water
1 bay leaf
4 whole cloves
4 peppercorns

2 tbps all-purpose flour
¼ cup cold water
1 lemon, very thinly sliced
1 tbps capers
1 tsp salt
Hot cooked noodles and snipped parsley.

To desalt anchovies, soak in cold water to cover about 20 minutes; drain well. Soak bread in milk. Cook onion in butter till tender but not brown. Combine eggs, anchovies, bread mixture, onion, salt and pepper. Add meats; mix well. Form into large meatballs (klops).

In very large skillet, combine wine, water, bay leaf, cloves and peppercorns. Add meatballs. Cover; simmer 25 to 30 minutes.

Remove meatballs and strain liquid. Return liquid to skillet and blend flour and one-fourth cup cold water till smooth. Stir into hot liquid; cook and stir till mixture thickens and bubbles. Add lemon slices, capers and salt. Cook about two minutes longer.

Arrange meatballs on platter of noodles and pour sauce over all. Garnish with parsley.

KIMA
(Pakistani recipe)

1 lb. ground beef
1 cup choppedf onion
1 clove garlic, minced
2 tomatoes, peeled and cubed
2 raw potatoes, peeled and cubed
1 (10-oz.) pkg. frozen peas, broken apart
2 tsps curry powder
1½ tsp salt
dash pepper
flaked coconut

Hot cooked rice

Combine meat, onion and garlic in skillet and cook till beef in browned. Pour off fat and stir in remaining ingredients except coconut and rice.

Simmer covered for about 25 minutes or till vegetables are tender. Sprinkle with coconut and serve with the hot rice.

MOLDED GUACAMOLE
(an avocado dip from Mexico translated into a ring mold and perfect for a buffet supper)

1 (3-oz.) pkg. lemon-flavored gelatin
1½ cups boiling water
1½ cups mashed avocado
½ cup sour cream
½ cup salad dressing
1 tbps chopped onion
dash of tabasco sauce
½ tsp salt
lettuce

Dissolve gelatin in boiling water; cook. Combine remaining ingredients and mix until well blended. Stir in gelatin; pour into one-quart mold and chill until firm.

Unmold; surround with lettuce and garnish with sweet cherry peppers, if desired.

Coffee Corner

by Cherie

I've been watching the democrats and the republicans mess things up for a long time now and I've come to the conclusion that what we need in this country is another party made up entirely of women. Now, I'm not pushing for woman's lib or any of that nonsense, and I don't think all men are male chaunovists, (maybe just a few) or anything like that either; but I do think the men have been at the helm of our country for an awfully long time and now that they've shipwrecked her I think it might be best if they turned her over to the ladies and let them get her back off the rocks and patched up and floating again.

For instance, I think Henry K. must be a wonderful fellow. I mean all those stories and finally capturing a woman seven inches taller than he, goes to show he's bound to have something going for him — but, I think that could be the problem — he's not negotiation our foreign affairs with a broad — but, abroad and that could just be where some of the problems lies. Seems to me instead of promising all those foreign powers something else if they would just settle down and be good and not start any more skirmishes, seems to me it would just be simpler to say "One more bang out of you buster and we're cutting out all the goodies we've been sending you for years immediately, and where's that gonna leave you!"

Or, I can understand one slip by a sweet young thing and I don't mind helping her out, but, you can't tell me that the second time around she tripped again, and I think the ladies that know all about such nonsense would say, "Sorry sister, but once is enough, now you get busy working and supporting these babes yourself and you'll be so tired when you come home in the evening you won't have the time or energy for any more of that slipping around!!"

And, I believe having had to live on pretty close weekly budgets themselves the girls might be able to cut the politicians expense accounts way, way down and convience them quickly that any hanky panky like cavorting in the "Ole Mille Stream" would be considered personal expenditures for after all, just how personal can one get?

Course, I believe we women would quickly realize that only those paying a portion of the taxes should be allowed to vote, any idiot knows I will spend your money freely, but have you ever seen me part with my own until I've debated the issue good and proper?

Plus, I am amazged at the amount of government employees we employ — most gals only have help once a week and I bet somebody could cut that list of numbers down to half in a month and probably get more done as they wouldn't be falling all over each other getting in the way!

And, government programs like (this is the truth) checking out the accidents caused by kids riding tricycles — if they're all that bad just take the wheels off the market — viola!

Then, we get to taxes and there I get livid — my advice to the world there, or I should say to middle class America who seems to be the only poor son of a guns who pay them — is arise and refuse to pay till everybody pays the same amount on the dollar — I mean lets face it fellows, there just aren't that many jail cells to put us in; and then who is going to pay for the foreign powers, the welfare, the padded expense accounts, the unnecessary help, the idiotic programs designed to hire more unnecessary help — might be interesting — hmmmm? Come on fellas, give us a chance, it's a cinch we couldn't do any worse!!!

By the way, has anyone thought that marking charge accounts illegal might bring a screeching halt to all this inflation bit in a hurry — and that might prove interesting too — ????

PLANTATION PARTY TREAT

Makes 6 servings

½ pt. whipping cream
¼ cup confectioners sugar
2 tablespoons rum
One 9-oz. pkg. frozen cinnamon swirl French toast
3 bananas

Pour whipping cream into chilled bowl; beat until soft peaks form. Gradually add sugar and rum; beat until stiff.

Prepare French toast in toaster or oven according to package directions. Peel bananas and cut in half crosswise. Cut each half in half lengthwise.

To serve, top each toast slice with 2 pieces of banana and a dollop of whipped cream. Garnish each with a maraschino cherry.

Sorority chapter shares tasting tea favorites

Xi Zeta Alpha Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi sorority is sponsoring its annual "Holiday Tasting Tea" from 3 to 5 p.m. Sunday in the Security Federal Savings and Loan Association community room.

The public is invited to come and taste dishes prepared by the members. A small fee will be charged, and recipes of the dishes will be available for a fee.

The chapter sponsors and supports many projects throughout the year.

Beta Sigma Phi is an international organization for women offering opportunities for friendship and development of cultural appreciation and community service. The Greek letters stand for life, learning and friendship.

Founded in Abilene, Kan., with seven members in 1931 the organization now has 250,000 members.

Recipes popular at last year's tasting tea included:

BACON TOASTIES

1 loaf fresh bread (trim off crusts)
1 can cream of chicken soup
1 to 1½ lbs. bacon (thin sliced)

Put one tablespoon of soup on slice of bread. Cut bread diagonally and roll up. Wrap ½ slice thin bacon around bread and insert toothpick to hold it together. Bake on cookie sheet at 350 degrees until bacon is crisp.

Serve hot.

WILD RICE

½ lb. link sausage, chopped into small bits
1 cup chopped onion
½ cup chopped green pepper
½ cup chopped celery
1 cup uncooked wild rice (wash well)
1 small jar chopped pimento
1 can cream of chicken soup
1 can cream of mushroom soup
1 (12-oz.) can of button mushrooms, plus liquid. (if four 3-oz. cans are used, use less liquid.)
1 cup grated sharp cheddar cheese

Fry small sausage bits until brown and pour off grease

Saute onion, green pepper and celery.

Mix all ingredients together and place in casserole dish. Add one-half cup grated sharp cheddar cheese and mix with rest.

Sprinkle another one-half cup grated cheese on top. Cover and bake at 300 degrees for one hour.

SPICY CRANBERRY PUNCH

Two-thirds cup sugar
1 six-inch stick of cinnamon, broken
2 tsp. whole cloves
2 tsp. whole allspice
¼ tsp. salt
1 qt. cranberry cocktail juice
1 (No. 2 size) can pineapple juice
Ginger ale, or one lemon-lime soda for cold punch or one-quart tea for hot punch.

Combine sugar, spices, salt and juices. Simmer 10 minutes, then strain.

For cold punch, chill and add ginger ale just before serving.

For hot punch, leave out gingerale and serve hot.

DATE-NUT PINWHEELS

½ cup shortening
1 cup brown sugar
1 egg
1¾ cups sifted flour
½ tsp. soda
½ tsp. cream of tartar
½ tsp. salt
1 tbsp. cream
½ tsp. vanilla

Mix shortening, brown sugar and egg. Sift together flour, soda, cream of tartar and salt; and stir in cream and vanilla.

Divide dough in two parts. Roll each piece into 11x7 inch rectangles. Spread with date-nut mixture (recipe follows).

DATE-NUT MIXTURE

¾ lb. dates
one-third cup sugar
½ cup water

Place ingredients in pan and cook until slightly thickened. Cool and add one-half cup chopped nuts.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor,
SIKESTON STANDARD:

We are proud of Sikeston and are happy with its progress -- BUT , the present City Administration ignores the more established areas and flatly refused to give them even elementary maintenance despite oft-repeated pleas.

Yet the Administration has no qualms about asking these residents to increase their tax burden continuously.

For example, after even medium-sized rain, water stands on South Kingshighway -- only because the City flatly refuses to merely unstop the conduits going under Murray Lane, into the new Shopping Center and the City Cemetery.

This requires no great engineering feat; just dig out the accumulated mud from these pipes and clean the ditch, both of which were designed to do the job, but cannot under present circumstances. Now they dam the water (which is why we South Sikestonians damn the uncaring City Administration.)

As long as neglect and flagrant disregard for the fights and needs of established, long-suffering citizens are so blatantly ignored, does it seem reasonable to expect them to continually escalate the subsidation of these entrenched local bureaucrats that will not spend pennies for jobs they are supposed to do.

We in this part of town have to drive to other sections to even see a Sikeston maintenance truck -- which we do, just to be surethey still have those our taxes are supposed to be paying for.

Dear Ron:

In regard to your Sports Corner article of October 29, 1974, I for one certainly agree that the City of Sikeston needs a full-time recreational director. When I served as a city councilman, I felt the need was there at that time as well as today.

As an example, Poplar Bluff has one of the finest recreational programs in the state involving not only boys but girls as well.

I could continue further, but just wanted you to know that I support your views on this matter which is very important to our fine city.

Very truly yours,
Lee C. Shell

Dear Mr. Blanton:

We would appreciate very much if you will publisn the enclosed news release.

I would appreciate it if you could furnish me a copy fo the printed article, for the Area Executive Director.

Thank you

American Cancer Society News Release
Southeast Missouri Area Office
225 Sheridan
Cape Girardeau, Mo.

A grant from the American Cancer Society will help support a new telephone system to answer public questions about cancer. Opeated by the University of Missouri Medical School, the system will provide twelve recorded messages giving answers to commonly asked questions about cancer. The program is an expansion of the original "dial access" system set up for the Medical School with funds from the Missouri Regional Medical Program. The program director is Donald A. B. Lindberg, M. D., professor of Pathology and Director of the Information Science Group of the University of Missouri Medical School at Columbia. Persons living anywhere in Southeast Missouri may dial 1-800 392-0546 (a toll free number) and ask for a specific message by number. The messages and message numbers are listed below:

| MESSAGE | MESSAGE NO. |
|---|---|
| Cancer Warning Signals | 616 |
| What is Lung Cancer? | 646 |
| Cancer of the Breast: How to Detect It | 729 |
| Patient and Community Service Program | 050 |
| Cancer of the Colon and Rectum | 627 |
| Cancer of the Skin | 625 |
| Cancer of the Larynx | 059 |
| Cancer of the Mouth | 635 |
| Cancer of the Stomach | 283 |
| Cigarettes and Cancer | 209 |
| The PAP Test Saves Lives | 614 |

This new service means that answers to questions about cancer will be just a telephone call away from people in every part of Southease Mo.

"Headstart Needs a New Grantee"

I am a Headstart parent and I am so disgusted with the present administratioin of the Delta Area Headstart Program that I have both written and called the Dept. of HEW in Washington D. C. In my opinion the Grantee, the Delta Area Economic Opportunity Corp and the Headstart Director, Mr. C. B. Huber are violating Headstart Policy in order to control the money and jobs in this Federal Program. The Headstart Program was written up in such a manner as to keep local politicians from gaining full control of the program, but continuous violations of Policy eventually will give them the control they need and want. There would be no need to violate any one of the policies unless this was the ultimate goal, complete control of over a Million Dollars.

Every taxpayer in the bootheel should object to the manner in which DAEOC is violating Headstart Policies. Taxpayers pay the bills for this organization to operate and as a taxpayer that very strongly objects to the manner in which they administrate the Headstrat, I have personally talked to some officials in the Washington D. C. Office The Headstart Area Policy Council voted to seek a new Grantee, and have very good reasons for having done so. The firing of the Social Service Director, Mr. John Porter after the Headstart Board voted twice to keep him and the last time even voted to get a new Grantee. Mr. Porter was fired without even the benefit of a list of charges or a chance to answer those charges. Were they afraid to give him a hearing, afraid of the truth coming out? In this country I thought a man was innocent until proven guilty. This is just a way to gain control. The Grantee knew they could never have complete control unless they got rid of Porter, he has been with Headstart for 8 years and knows the program inside and out.

The Regional Office in Kansas City is knowledgable of these policy violatioins and yet have not made any move to see that the parents in this program are getting the benefit of their services. Mr. Huber is being paid to the tune of $15,000 a year to violate the policies in a Federal Program and I wonder what sort of salaries the people in the Kansas City Office are getting? This has got to be some kind of joke, and I think the laugh is on the taxpayers. If the parents do not get a new Grantee, the Headstart Program should be closed down in this area because it will not be worth the Federal Paper it takes towrite it up on.

We do not need a program in this area that is run by a few backroom businessmen, hiring and firing people in a very nonprofessional manner. I think my tax money could be much better spent than this, and hope the letters and phone calls that have gone in to Washington will bring a new Grantee to the Headstart Program in the Bootheel. Clean it up or close it down. The DAEOC Program should be closed down and Headstart given a New Grantee. DAEOC lost their funds one time and Headstart was operated by another organization very well. This would be the best answer to the whole problem.

Mr. Tony Pippen, Editor
Daily Sikeston Standard

Sikeston, Mo. 63801

Dear Sir:

I would like to call your attention to a recent press release from this agency to the Daily Sikeston Standard which named the Heritage House as the recipient of a grant of $37,128 to partially fund the Sikeston Nutrition Program.

In regard to this announcement, I would like to explain that the Federal grant mentioned will only partially fund the Senior Citizen lunch program and will provide absolutely no funds for the other important activities of the Heritage House.

The past support of many Sikeston citizens has created one of the best Senior Citizen projects in Missouri. The continued success of the Heritage House is dependent on local support from the Unitted Fund and other sources. I want to stress the fact that Federal money will only partially fund the Nutrition Program and that local contributions are vitral to the continuance of the Heritage House.

Yours very truly
Vearl Caid,
Director

Today in U. S. History

By The Associated Press

Today is Wednesday, November 6, the 310th day of 1974. There are 55 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1860, Abraham Lincoln was elected the 16th President of the United States.

On this date —

In 1792, George Washington was re-elected President.

In 1913, the British arrested Indian nationalist Mahatma Gandhi.

In 1917, New York state adopted suffrage for women.

In 1926, Benito Mussolini prohibited all opposition parties in Italy.

In 1928, Herbert Hoover defeated Alfred E. Smith in a hard-fought presidential election.

In 1942, a tidal wave killed 10,000 persons in India.

Ten years ago: Chinese Communist Premier Chou En-Lai surprised the world by turning up for a Bolshevik anniversary celebration in Moscow.

Five years ago: Thousands of striking workers clashed with police in Milan, Italy's largest industrial city.

One year ago: President Nixon's personal secretary, Rose Mary Woods, was summoned to testify in court about missing White House tapes.

Today's birthday: Novelist James Jones is 53 years old.

Thought for today: My reading of history convinces me that most bad government results from too much government — Thomas Jefferson.
